BUTLER FACING UPHILL BATTLE IN SENATE FIGHT

Drift Now Is Believed in His Favor, but It May Prove Futile.

AL SMITH COMING TO AID HIS CAUSE

Prohibition Is an Important Issue in Massachusetts Campaigns.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 22.—It is impossible to see former Senator William M. Butler a winner at this time in the Massachusetts senatorial fight. Indeed, were the vote to come tomorrow the consensus of political observers is that he would be defeated and the wet Democrat, Marcus Coolidge, elected. But Butler's chances are perceptibly perking up. The trend the past week, it is believed, has been his way.

On the other hand, the gubernatorial race is a toss up, with the Democratic candidate, J. B. Ely, of Springfield, believed to be gaining ground.

The trend toward Butler is easily explainable. This is, after all, a Republican State. For a Democrat to win he must get thousands of Republican votes. These votes were plentifully available a month ago. Thousands of Republicans were off the reservation because of Butler's dry stand. His defeated wet opponent in the primary, Eben S. Draper, is still off, though it would not be surprising in the end if he voted for Butler. As to whether he will make a last-minute statement for Butler is doubtful.

Within 8,000 Votes of Victory.

The fact that Draper polled within 6,000 votes of beating Butler with a second wet candidate in the field, shows just how intense is the wet and dry question in the Republican party. It is not so among the Democrats. They are all wet.

Now the Republican drive the last few weeks has been to get these off-reservation Republicans back; to restore them to sanity, as they express it. They have made some progress, and that explains the Butler trend.

If they get enough back to put Butler across by November 4, they will have accomplished what is believed to be impossible today. It is a most uphill road for Butler, to say the least.

The great danger to the Democrats, the reason for the present recession of their campaign, is the apparent apathy of the Boston Irish. The primary evolved with an Irish name neither on the senatorial ballot nor the gubernatorial ticket. If Coolidge's name were O'Coolidge or Ely's name were O'Ely, it would be different here in Boston. In addition to this lack of Democratic enthusiasm in Boston one hears of shenanigans on the part of some of the local leaders in favor of Butler.

If the Democrats do not get a good vote in Boston, and there are 30,000 more votes registered than in 1926, they have no reason to hope for success.

Al Smith to Be Factor.

But the Republicans should not get too jubilant over this because Al Smith, the great, is coming here October 28 and, unless I miss my guess, he will supply the needed fire. This is one of the reasons why I say the Butler trend has a long way to go.

There is this much to be said for him, however: Months ago the Washington observers said Butler did not have a chance. After the primary their definite conclusion was that he was sunk. The gentleman has his head very much above water.

I get the very decided impression that prohibition is cutting the greatest figure in this campaign, more so than the depression. Massachusetts is just as depressed as any State, of course, but it has been in that condition so long that it has ceased to be a novelty.

Another thing, generally speaking, the two parties are formed along class lines in this State, the employers being Republicans and the employes Democrats. Therefore the depression has hit the Democrats mostly, and the only way they can deliver a protest vote is to vote the way they have been all the time. Of course, the depression helps the Democrats to the extent that those Republicans who are bolting because of prohibition primarily are pushed on in their decision by the thought that everything is all wrong.

Underhill Is in Trouble.

But that depression is not the issue upon which the result will turn is indicated by the consensus that no

Calvin Coolidge

Says: The organizing ability of the people and the capacity for cooperation between public and private institutions is being most encouragingly displayed in the plans being made to relieve any possible distress and want during the coming winter. Cincinnati, Detroit, Indianapolis and New York are leading the way in private charity for giving relief and work.

This is properly recognized as a local responsibility for town, city and county administration. They are the government units to which is legally assigned the responsibility for relief under our system. But in the present case it is fitting that the State and National governments should contribute their counsel and assistance through voluntary and extralegal committees. The needs of humanity reach all our government organizations and all our people. No one is immune from responding to that call.

It can not be repeated too often that the resources of the country are ample to meet all requirements. There is no occasion for any public panic. Such relief as necessary will be forthcoming. But local governments and private charity should both be alert to organize at once to meet this fundamental obligation of society to all its members.

LABOR MAKES ISSUE ON DANVILLE STRIKE

A. F. of L. Aims in South Hinge Largely on Outcome of Struggle There.

LONG FIGHT IS SEEN

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Danville, Va., Oct. 22.—From the standpoint of the American Federation of Labor, the strike of the 4,000 Cotton mill workers here is one of the most important labor controversies in the entire history of the trade union movement in America.

Danville is regarded as the front-line trench in the campaign of the A. F. of L. to organize the textile workers of the South.

That is why the nearly 5,000,000 members of the American Federation of Labor have been officially asked to chip in and help maintain the strikers and their families while the battle is on. Right now the strikers are being fed entirely by money that has been sent here by outside organizations or individuals.

In view of this interest on the part of organized labor as a whole, it seems likely that the strike here will be a long-drawn-out one.

Once an agricultural region, the South today is highly industrialized. Cheap labor is largely responsible for this; cheap labor and cheap power. Attracted by these, many cotton goods firms moved their plants down from the North. They were assured that, in Dixie, they would be free of the labor quarrels that seemed to be forever plaguing them in the North.

And for years this promise was borne out. The workers seemed to be content with the wages paid them, and with the form of employe representation that the companies allowed them. But now many of them are in revolt, and they are looking to the American Federation of Labor to help them out.

The strike here is a case in point. Not that the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mill Co. is a Northern firm; as a matter of fact, it is entirely a Southern enterprise, organized and developed by local men.

But like the other textile firms in the South, the Riverside and Dan River Co., was determined to keep its employes from joining the American Federation of Labor. As has been said, Harry R. Fitzgerald, the president of the company, regarded the representatives of the A. F. of L. as "foreign agitators" whose sole desire was to collect dues from his workers.

And so Fitzgerald inaugurated his system of industrial democracy. He allowed the employes a voice in the government of the plant, he built cheap homes for them, and established welfare buildings and the like.

He paid them an average wage of

HOOVER AND WOODS CONFER ON JOBLESS

U. S. Efforts to Ameliorate Unemployment Speeded as Director Arrives.

SEES SUCCESS FOR PLAN

(Associated Press.)

The renewed efforts of the Government to aid the Nation's unemployed took more definite form last night as President Hoover and the man he has named to direct the activities—Col. Arthur Woods, of New York—conferred at the White House.

Col. Woods arrived late in the day and went directly to the Executive Mansion, where the President awaited him in his office. Later he called upon Secretary Lamont at the latter's home.

Describing the situation as a "race against human misery," the new administrator said the Government "must and will win." He said the problem would be met with all the information and vigor that can be summoned and that he and the President's Cabinet committee of seven would try to take immediately the steps needed to meet the situation.

He had accepted the post, in which he will serve without pay, only Tuesday and declined to discuss particulars of the organization to be set up until he confers with associates today.

An organization similar to that which he directed in 1921 at the instance of President Harding is to be established, Col. Woods indicated, with changes to meet new conditions.

He said most of the work of the Government probably would lie in the coordination of local activities, and that the plans would be adapted to the varying needs of different sections of the country. The organizations already set up throughout the country had made the task easier, he said.

While the Cabinet committee awaited the coming of Col. Woods to press the relief operations, Secretary Davis, at the Labor Department, greeted a group gathering to assist in the statistical study of employment and economic matters which the Government conducts.

He warned them that they would be asked to lay down some method of determining to what degree the displacing of human labor by advanced machine designs or improved processes had contributed to unemployment.

Only a detailed study, as compared with an enumeration, would furnish a sufficiently good picture of this contribution to the total of the jobless, it was suggested, and help was asked in the application of methods to aid the Government in gathering data.

NAVY BUILDING OUTLINE READY FOR PRESIDENT

General Board Completes Program Within Scope of London Pact.

LOWEST ESTIMATE SET AT $650,000,000

LAST CONSTRUCTED BACK TEN YEARS AGO

New Aircraft Carrier Will Give Country 79,000 Tons in Class.

(Associated Press.)

The Navy General Board yesterday had completed a building program within the provisions of the London Naval Treaty to be submitted to Secretary Adams for presentation to President Hoover.

Within the scope of the program the board included prospective building and replacement plans in each category of vessels from submarines to battleships. The program, if it provided for bringing the Navy to full treaty strength, probably will extend over a period more than five years and cost between $650,000,000 and $1,000,000,000.

Desire for Destroyers.

No indication has been given regarding the details of the construction plan or the categories in which the board expects to build first; but on several occasions recently Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of Naval Operations, has indicated a desire for immediate construction of destroyers. It has been fourteen years since a destroyer was authorized, and none has been built since 1920.

There have been authoritative statements that the program calls for gradual replacements over a period of years in the 8-inch-gun cruiser and submarine classes. The treaty allows the United States 143,500 tons of 8-inch-gun cruisers, of which it now has 70,500 tons afloat.

The board recently settled on a submarine design which would displace between 1,000 and 1,300 tons. In this category the United States, on completion of two remaining V-boats, will be equipped with nine V and eleven S type boats, which will not be over age at the expiration of the treaty. Within the 52,700 tons allowed the United States, the program calls for Gradual replacement construction of the approximately 25,000 tons remaining which come over the age limit of thirteen years before the treaty expires.

Ordered New Aircraft Carrier.

In the battleship division board members have recommended modernization of the New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho and modernization of certain other dreadnoughts over the construction period. The treaty allows the United States 180,000 tons of 8-inch gun cruisers. Of that amount 140,000 tons already are built or building. One more 10,000 ton, 8-inch gun cruiser may be built immediately. The three remaining vessels of this category can not be laid down until 1933, 1934 and 1935, respectively for completion in 1936, 1937 and 1938.

The Navy Department within the week has ordered construction of a new aircraft carrier of 13,800 tons. When it is completed the United States will have 79,800 tons of carriers—the Lexington, the Saratoga and the new vessel. The board program has provided for the 55,200 tons to be built, bringing the category to treaty strength of 135,000 tons.

Tennessee Bank Loses $900 to Four Robbers

Foundations for the defense of Herbert M. Campbell were laid by his attorneys yesterday through cross-examination of Government witnesses, through whom the prosecution hopes to secure the "proper verdict" against him on a charge of killing Mary Baker.

Though on the surface the testimony of the witnesses was devoid of anything sensational, nevertheless, its details, says the defense, will nullify the Government's contention that she was slain in her automobile.

Had the court room been a lecture room in a medical college there could have been little difference in the narrations heard. Blood stains, contusions, dissection, autopsies, gunshot wounds, evidences of assault, all came to light in their grisly details.

Variance of Opinion.

To the spectators these gruesome stories may have meant little more than satiation of morbid curiosity; but to Campbell they may mean the difference between vindication and conviction.

There was a variance of opinion between doctors who examined the corpse as to the cause of death and the presence of blood, powder burns, and powder marks on the flesh, through which the defense hopes to prove that the killing of the girl was not in the car.

Though the defense seemed confident at the close of court, the prosecution was even more so, for today the Government will present the testimony of the three witnesses who saw the assault on Miss Baker in the Ellipse, two of whom say that Campbell resembles the man.

Jury Locked Up.

The jury that last night was locked in the Metropolitan Hotel will listen as Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Wood and Francis T. Rice describe the scene in the automobile where the girl made her frantic effort for salvation by faintly tapping on the window pane.

Easily the most significant part of Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins' forceful plea for conviction was his assertion that Campbell was seen and observed as "he turned the car around in Experimental Farm at 6:20 o'clock after concealing the girl's clothing in a trap basin."

If this is proven by the evidence, the alibi of the suspect, heretofore considered impregnable, will be punctured.

Coroner Takes Stand.

Coroner Benjamin H. Swain, of Arlington County, was the first witness called in the afternoon session. He described the condition in which the girl's body was found in the culvert. He disclosed that there were eighteen or twenty markings on the girl's neck evidently made by fingers.

Then he stood up and demonstrated on his own body where the bullets entered, one through the neck, one through the left side and one through the back. He told of contusions on the girl's legs and on the backs of her hands.

Two of the bullets, he declared, were removed by him and turned over

SECOND MAN FACES BUSH MURDER QUIZ

IS ABSOLVED OF GUILT

A second man, William Harold McKay, 24 years old, who is said to live on Somerset place near Seventh street northwest, was yesterday afternoon grilled for more than two hours at police headquarters in connection with the shooting October 6 of Louis Bush, wealthy bus line owner. McKay's arrest followed the alleged confession of Frank Mahoney that he drove the car which carried William J. Carnell, said to be the gunman, to the death scene.

Mahoney's confession was said to have been made early yesterday following several hours of police examination. Mahoney was reported to have agreed to give the police a full story of his part in the robbery and shooting on his arrival here from Pittsburgh, where he was arrested as he was getting off a bus. Carnell escaped detectives who had gathered, at the request of Washington police, to capture the two men.

Mahoney is said to have denied taking any part in the actual holdup, although he admitted taking Carnell to the Bush home in his car and owning the pistol which killed Bush. He left, he said, when he heard the shots fired.

McKay was said by Mahoney not to have had any part in the attempted robbery, not even knowing that it was going to take place. He did keep the gun for Mahoney, it was said, but had no knowledge of the purpose for which it was intended.

Police are still looking for the gun, although little hope was held for its recovery in view of the statement made yesterday by Mahoney that it had been hurled into the Potomac following the affair. He did not say whether he or Carnell had disposed of the gun.

Nothing has been learned as to the whereabouts of Carnell and police say that the Pittsburgh authorities have no idea as to where he may be hiding. However, Inspector William S. Shelby, who is heading the investigation, has ordered that 12,500 circulars with his picture and fingerprints be distributed over the country in the hope of apprehending him.

McKay, who is said to be a stonemason, was arrested yesterday morning following the questioning of Mahoney. He was invited to accompany

Woman With Petty Suit Invades Supreme Court

(Associated Press.)

The dignified Supreme Court chamber was invaded yesterday by a woman who rushed past guards to lay a damage suit before the highest court in the land.

A marshal requested her to leave the room immediately after she had told the court of her wish. She left without protest, leaving a copy of the suit she wishes to bring. Later she was informed that her suit presented no controversy that the Supreme Court could consider.

She said her name was Alma Boehm, of New York.

JURY ACQUITS MAN OF ABDUCTING GIRL

SHE SWOONS ON STAND

Richmond, Va., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—A jury in Richmond Hustings Court late today acquitted Harry Dickenson, young filling station operator, of a charge of taking and secreting Mary Frances McClenny, society girl, last July. The jury's deliberation required 35 minutes.

Dickenson's trial was begun this morning. Another indictment of transporting the girl to Waynesboro, Va., for immoral purposes, is still pending against him.

Dickenson testified that Miss McClenny threatened to go away and that he finally agreed to go with her. He said that they departed for Waynesboro July 1 after he had seen her that morning and she had again reiterated her intention of leaving home. The witness said that he loved Miss McClenny.

Miss McClenny swooned a few minutes after she was called to the stand by Joseph C. Nunnally, attorney for Dickenson, as first witness for the defense. She was testifying at the time of making arrangements to meet Dickenson near her home on the night they left Richmond to become

HOOVER EMBARGOES BRAZIL-BOUND ARMS

AIRPLANE DEAL GRANTED

(Associated Press.)

Acting upon a plea of the Brazilian government, President Hoover yesterday imposed an embargo on shipments of arms and munitions to Brazil—the first time in American diplomatic history such a limitation has been placed on exportations of arms to a South American republic.

The embargo was contained in a proclamation signed by President Hoover and countersigned and sealed by Secretary Stimson.

It carried the proviso that shipments could be made to Brazil under licenses granted by the Secretary of State, which, in effect, would prevent shipments to any Brazilians other than those representing the administration of President Washington Luis, the only government in Brazil recognized by the United States.

Brazil's request for imposition of the embargo was contained in a note dated yesterday and delivered by Ambassador do Amaral of Brazil to Secretary Stimson.

Closely following the issuance of the embargo proclamation at the State Department, the Navy Department announced that it had again granted private airplane manufacturers the right to deliver to the Brazilian government airplanes for which the Navy had contracted. The Navy's latest accession was to the request of the Glenn L. Martin Co., of Baltimore, to release to the Brazilian government three patrol planes being completed for the Navy. Twelve other planes have been released to Brazil on permission of the Navy by the Curtiss-Wright Co.

The President's proclamation was in line with Secretary Stimson's pronouncement of policy last week that the American Government would allow the shipment of arms and munitions to the Brazilian government.

"The Man in the Green Hat."

Already famous in Washington because of his alleged activities as "the official bootlegger" on Capitol Hill, "the Man in the Green Hat" now presents a story that will interest every American, whether living in Washington, California, Texas, Maine or Wisconsin.

Many stories have been written about George L. Cassidy, "the Man in the Green Hat." He has been arrested on several occasions in the vicinity of the United States Capitol. Liquor charges have been placed against him by the police. He has made fine "copy" for the newspapers and has stolen first page notices right under the noses of men in the halls of Congress who would have given much to gain the front page space given to this remarkable character.

Now the shoe is to be on the other foot. George L. Cassiday is to tell his own story, exclusively in The Washington Post and starting tomorrow. "Bootlegging Activities on Capitol Hill" is the general title under which Cassiday will write, but his series will include many things not exactly covered by this heading.

For the period of three administrations readers of Washington news-

Make a Fair Comparison

In the late seventies, the eighties and nineties, manufacturers and merchants passed through a period of intense price competition which had its inevitable result in the lowering of quality standards. Consumer rebellion then transferred the sales emphasis to quality and proved that the American people are willing to pay to secure the best. This emphasized the value of "brands" that could be taken as a guarantee of quality standards and also favored the package method of selling. Great benefit has come to the consumer as a result, and fair prices, commensurate with quality, have been maintained through the power of competition. It is manifestly wrong to compare prices of former years unless changing standards of quality and service are also considered.

Department Store Employe Dies by Gas After Writing "Thirteen Cigarettes," Which Unfolds Futility of "Carol's" Existence Without Romance.

A suicide which police term as being "the most romantic in the history of the homicide squad" was that yesterday of Miss Draper Gill, 26 years old, a saleswoman, employed in the book department of a local department store.

Miss Gill was found yesterday morning shortly after 9 o'clock in an unconscious condition lying on a bed in the attic bedroom of an old residence near Sixteenth and K streets northwest. A gas jet on the wall was opened wide. She was discovered by a maid at the house, Mary Woodpin, colored, who climed to the little room on the fourth floor when she smelled escaping gas.

Books were scattered about the room, and several "intellectual" magazines were on the floor and on a little table in the room. On the table, neatly written, was a story which police say the girl wrote as an autobiographical sketch. It was titled "Thirteen Cigarettes."

The story opened with a description of the little room in which the body was found, speaking of the "discolored, once-white walls, the plaster chipped and cracked, with a few nail holes about all." Like this little chamber, the room in the story was on the fourth and top floor of the house.

The character, named Carol, was 26, and her life had been entirely devoid of anything suggesting romance. Bills and debts were nightmares and horrid, every-day things with which to Dr. William C. Welburne. The third he could not find.

"In your opinion, what the cause of death," asked Mr. Collins.

"The bullet through her left side," he answered, "which went through her kidney and punctured her liver."

"Did you have an X-ray available to search for the third bullet?"

"No."

"Did you dissect the neck to see whether the jugular vein had been punctured?"

"No, I did not want to mutilate the body."

Pressure on Victim's Neck.

Mr. Collins asked Dr. Swain how much pressure was brought to bear on the girl's neck. He replied: "A great pressure which evidently was sustained from 5 to 10 minutes."

Dr. Swain believed, he said, that the girl was near death when shot. When the girl was shot, he said, she was in a moribund condition, which is the condition just before death.

Charles Henry Smith, chief defense counsel, then questioned Dr. Swain closely regarding the amount of blood which would be evacuated from the body from such wounds after choking.

Then he proceeded to examine the witness closely as to the depth of the water in the culvert where the body was found, and whether it was deep enough to cover her back, which, he said, was upward in the water.

Defense Plan Clear.

It was patent that the defense intends to prove that the water was not high enough to wash powder from the dress. This move was made, presumably, in an attempt to discredit any anticipated move of the prosecution to prove that water removed the powder.

Dr. Swain said that he observed blood on an inner garment that the girl wore, which evidently came from a wound in the back.

"Did you see any powder marks on the clothing?" Smith queried.

"I didn't see any and I didn't look for any."

Mr. Smith questioned Dr. Swain in detail regarding the amount of blood found in her body, and he was told there was about a pint or a quart in the abdominal cavity, caused by internal hemorrhages.

Mr. Collins then offered a number of exhibits, including the girl's clothing, showing holes made by the bullets, which were identified as those taken from the girl's body.

Dr. Welburne Testifies.

Dr. William C. Welburne then took the stand and told the jury that the girl died of strangulation. This decision, he said, he reached when he observed that the skin of the face was mottled by subsurface hemorrhages.

Furthermore, he added, her eyes protruded and the whites of them were mottled, which is symptomatic of strangulation.

Dr. Welburne told the court that he had received the bullets and placed them in envelopes for identification and submitted them to Department of Justice Agent Samuel W. Hardy.

Marks on Death Car.

Mr. Collins showed the witness a picture of the death car and, pointing to marks on the photograph, asked what they indicated.

"Blood splotches on the door," he said.

On further examination by Mr. Smith he was asked how much blood would make the splotches.

"About four ounces," he said, "the equivalent of a quarter of a pint."

From the nature of the questions it was evident that the defense will point out that a human body holds at least two quarts of blood.

In the abdominal cavity, between one point and a quart was found, while a quarter of a pint was found in the car.

Assault Is Described.

In all probability they will point out the difference as to the amount of blood found and the normal content of blood in the human body and ask: Where did the rest go? This, the defense say, will be used to bolster their claim that the killing did not take place in the car, as the State contends.

Dr. Welburne differed with Dr. Swain in the testimony regarding presence of powder burns and powder marks, having told the court that such traces were visible.

Dr. A. Magruder Macdonald amplified testimony of the other physicians in the respect that he detailed evidences that there had been a criminal assault on the girl.

Finding of Body Told.

The discovery of the body was told by Ray B. Cobean, Arlington County policeman, who found it. Pictures shown him of the girl's body near the culvert were shown to the jury and Cobean pointed out the spot where it was seen by him.

Hardly had John F. Bowes been selected from a special venire of 200 men to fill the vacant No. 6 chair in the jury when Mr. Collins launched into the opening address, which was carried to every reach of the courtroom by his clear diction.

Campbell twiddled his thumbs and listened with rapt attention as he heard himself denounced by the Government's attorney. Jurymen hung on to every word.

Parents of Accused Nervous.

Campbell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Loudoun Campbell, exhibited marked nervousness as the attorney outlined the Government's case against their son. Mr. Campbell left the room at one point, to return near the closing of the 40-minute address.

In his preface Mr. Collins told of Miss Baker's attendance at the Church of the Epiphany and her departure from her friends.

"We will show," he said, "that she was accosted about the time she entered her car, which was approximately 6 o'clock. We will prove that a man accosted her, made some advances which were resented.

Account of Assault.

"Miss Baker attempted to fight her assailant. As a result she received a heavy blow on the mouth, which loosened some of her teeth and badly bruised her lips. The man then attempted to strangle her, applying tremendous pressure with the hands. In less than five minutes the girl was in a moribund condition—next to death—from which there is no recovery.

"It so happened that another person was coming east on B street at this time. She was close to death. Mary Baker was then in the throes of death. That was her final movement, the swinging of her arm, just as the man drew alongside of the car.

Escape Is Described.

"Her assailant, realizing he was being watched, started the car immediately and drove away. Three pistol shots were heard a moment later by our witness."

Mr. Collins then described the route over the Key Bridge to the culvert and told of the wounds found in the girl's body.

"We expect to show," he emphasized, "that the assailant, who was Herbert Campbell, the defendant, proceeded along the road to the Agricultural Experiment Grounds and was in the grounds at 6:20 o'clock. He then put the clothes in a trap on the left side of the road and threw away the keys to Mary Baker's car, turned the car around and drove away. As he turned the car around he was observed.

"Then," Mr. Collins said, "he drove the car to the place where it was abandoned.

Mr. Collins then outlined the discovery of a pair of gloves in the trap basin and told of Campbell's identification of them.

Campbell's attempts to involve Barrere in the killing were narrated to the jury by the Government's attorney.

"When Campbell saw those gloves," said Collins, "Campbell declared: See those marks? See that grease?

Campbell's only thought was that they were stolen by Barrere from his house. These marks, he said, were made by working around a car."

Pistol Is Surrendered.

Mr. Collins emphasized Campbell's attempts to involve Barrere in the case and told of the defendant's action in turning over the pistol to Sheriff Howard B. Fields.

Campbell's story of the man with "the wart on his nose," who inquired what he (Campbell) had against Barrere and questioned Campbell regarding whether he owned a pistol or not, was told by Collins.

"When he turned the gun over to Sheriff Fields he said, 'I am satisfied that this is the gun that killed Mary Baker.' He told Sheriff Fields that he did not want the gun examined by Sheriff Fields or Mr. Gloth but by experts."

Different Stories Cited.

Mr. Collins then told of the different stories given by Campbell as to his whereabouts on the day of the murder. Once he said that he had been in the office all afternoon, then he said he had made a few trips on business, the prosecutor declared.

"We will show that after the arrest of Barrere in Montreal Campbell said that he would have never seen him indicted. When Campbell was questioned he was told to be careful because his story had been checked. After further reflection he was again asked, and replied that the story was true that he had not left his office.

Alleged Movements Traced.

"He was then asked who the woman was he had been parked with at 4 o'clock that afternoon on the road near where Mary Baker's body was found. He demanded that his questioners be more specific. He had been told that he was seen on the road with the woman and had taken her to her home at Twentieth and M streets.

"He was told that he later had called her to be careful about telephoning as he believed his wires were tapped. He was told he had informed her to say, should she be questioned, that he had been spending the afternoon showing her the beautiful approach to Arlington Cemetery.

"After this information was given to Campbell he admitted that it was so. We will show that later when the gun was identified by Dr. Wilmer Souder, as the weapon used in the murder, he said he was not surprised. On top of that he repudiated the story of the man with the 'wart on his nose.'

Statement Laid to Campbell.

"He asked that the gun be sent to Chicago for further examination. This was done. Now we expect to show you three experts, Col. Goddard, Dr. Souder and Lieut. John Fowler, who will testify that from tests they made the gun was used in the murder.

"We will show that he admitted that the gun was never out of his possession.

"Furthermore, Campbell told the police, 'You have enough to arrest, indict, convict and execute me, why should I tell you any more?'

"Proper Verdict Expected."

Then, with a dramatic pause, Mr. Collins learned to the jury and said: "Gentlemen, if the Government proves these facts, a proper verdict will be expected."

During the day Deputy Sheriff David A. Richards and Policemen Hugh C. Jones and John A. Conway told of the recovery of the car.

After Mr. Collins' address all of the witnesses, including Mrs. Ruth Callahan Campbell and Edwin Callahan, her son, and Albert H. Hamilton, defence ballistics expert, were excluded from the room.

Mrs. Campbell showed signs of nervousness as the attorney placed his case before the jury. Edwin Callahan sat near her before the trial opened.

Identification of Body.

Inez M. Eyre and Ora E. Smith, who were with Miss Baker at church services on April 11, told their stories to the jury.

Then Miss Olga Skinner, housemate of the Baker girl, told of the trip to this city from their Lyon Park home on the morning of April 11. Under the gentle questioning of the Government's attorney, she told of the failure of the Baker girl to return to their home that night, inquiries regarding her the next day and the trip to the culvert.

"Did you see a body when you looked down in the culvert?" asked Mr. Collins.

"Yes," she answered, choking back her emotions.

"Who was it?"

"Mary," she said in a scarcely audible whisper.

WOMEN OUTNUMBER MEN IN TRIAL LINE

PRESS CHECKS ARRANGED

Eight of every ten persons who try to "crash the gate" at the murder trial of Herbert Campbell are women, according to Louis W. Newman, daywatchman at the District of Columbia Supreme Court, who has the task of turning the curious away.

More that 1,300 persons tried to get into the courtroom during the day, Mr. Newman said. In addition to that number, there were so many persons who attempted to peer through windows of the court corridor overlooking the chamber in which the trial is being heard that United States Marshal Edgar C. Snyder and Assistant United States Marshal S. B. Callahan ordered all shades lowered and all persons cleared from that particular corridor.

Approximately 40 newspapermen representing local newspapers, press associations and out-of-town publications are reporting the trial and Marshal Snyder, a former newspaper correspondent, has devised a system whereby no one who is not a bona fide newspaperman can gain entrance into the courtroom. This is done by means of passes which are signed by the marshal.

Double Check Arranged.

"We have had so much trouble in big trials in the past with people who claimed to be newspapermen and newspaper women, but weren't, that we are going to do the thing in the right way," said the marshal.

In his efforts to enforce that rule, Marshal Snyder has instructed Deputy United States Marshal William J. Mullen, who is keeping guard at the door, not to let any one in who pretends to be a newspaperman or newspaper woman unless he or she bears the little pass with his signature. To double check the arrangement, Second Deputy Marshal John J. Clarkson has been detailed to the courtroom's interior to see that the arrangements are carried out.

Despite the fact that the crowd increased yesterday over the opening day, Mr. Newman declared that there was no evidence of excess morbidity on the part of the would-be spectators, and stated that all persons had been pleasant when told that they could not get into the courtroom.

Line Forms Early in Day.

Oddly, however, he pointed out that the line forms every morning before 8:30 o'clock and does not disintegrate completely until after court adjourns despite the fact that he and a number of deputy United States marshals repeatedly reminded the personnel that there is no chance to get into the courtroom.

Justice Adkins late yesterday ordered that, if the jury is held over Sunday or any Sunday, it is to be taken on a motorbus ride by deputy marshals who are in charge of the body.

He also made arrangements by which the jurors are to read two newspapers a day, but specified that the papers are to be delivered at his door in the courthouse so that he can clip out all references to the murder trial.

DAVIS WILL REDUCE CAMPAIGN ACTIVITY

Work in Capital on Situation in Employment to Take His Time.

PINCHOT RIFT IS DENIED

Philadelphia, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Gen. Edward Martin, Republican State chairman, told members of the Republican Women of Pennsylvania today that Secretary of Labor James J. Davis had asked to be excused from further engagement in his campaign for the senatorship.

The reason given, Gen. Martin said, was that President Hoover had demanded every minute of the Secretary's time to meet the unemployment situation.

This announcement came unexpectedly and followed closely on the speeches of Secretary Davis and Gifford Pinchot, the Republican candidate for governor, in which the two did not agree as to whether President Hoover told the Cabinet member that he desired the election of the whole Republican ticket in Pennsylvania.

State Group Backs Pinchot.

Gifford Pinchot has the support of the State Republican organization but is opposed by most of the members of the Philadelphia Republican city committee.

After the women's meeting was over Chairman Martin was asked whether the Secretary would attend the Republican rally in Philadelphia next Tuesday at which all the candidates were to appear. Chairman Martin replied that the Secretary would attend if he could.

(Associated Press.)

"No Differences," Says Davis.

Secretary Davis, Pennsylvania Republican senatorial candidate, said last night there were no differences between himself and Gifford Pinchot, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, and that they would speak from the same platform in Pittsburgh Saturday night.

"I am going to speak from the same platform with Mr. Pinchot in Pittsburgh Saturday night," he said, "and I shall stay in the campaign in my State as much as I can until the election day, speaking with Mr. Pinchot whenever there is opportunity.

"It will be necessary for me to remain in Washington in connection with the national effort to relieve unemployment for the forepart of this week and for the first day or two of next week.

"Aside from this I can continue the campaign and I do not understand the reports that there is any disagreement between my associates on the ticket and myself."

Lecturer Flies Here To Keep Engagement

Howard S. Ross, of Montreal, last night flew from Philadelphia to Washington to keep an appointment to lecture before the Howard University Forum at the school. It was his first airplane flight. The lecture was on "World Unrest and Its Probable Solution."

Th speaker will address the English Club of Howard today on "Modern Poetry."

Hospital to Get Junior League Aid

Debutantes Will Raise Fund to Help Children's Institution.

The Junior League will virtually take over "Peacock Alley" and other parts of the Willard Hotel November 20 to raise money for the financing of the social service department of the Children's Hospital.

A business men's lunch, at which young debutantes will act as waitresses, a tea dance, a fashion show, and a supper will be on the afternoon and evening program. Merchants will arrange booths, lending a carnival effect.

Mrs. Newbold Noyes is general chairman, while Mrs. Sidney Thomas is her assistant. Chairmen of the several committees are Mrs. Henry Ravenel, booths; Mrs. Laura Tuckerman, tea dance; Mrs. Carl Kurtz, waitresses; Mrs. H. L. Rust, jr., children's party; Mrs. Blaine Mallan, fashion show; Mrs. Leander McCormick Goodheart, supper dance, and Mrs. Charles B. Hayes, music.

REPUBLICAN TARIFF DEFENDED BY CURTIS

SKIPS PRESENT FIGURES

Pueblo, Colo., Oct., 22 (A.P.).—Assailing predictions of injury to American foreign trade as a result of tariff revision, Vice President Curtis tonight quoted figures which he said showed a gain since adoption of the Fordney-McCumber act in 1922.

Carrying into Colorado his extensive campaign speaking trip which began in the East and took him into a number of the Central States, the Vice President refrained from discussing in detail conditions under the new tariff act "since the measure has not been in operation long enough to determine its true merits."

"Our Democratic friends, disregarding the facts, have wrongly contended that by our policy of protection we have injured out foreign trade. Because they are wrong in their contention they have always refrained from giving the statistics, relying instead on general statements."

The veteran Republican campaigner said the value of the United States' domestic exports increased from $3,699,909,375 for the year June 22, 1922, to $5,284,200,000 during the year ended June 20, 1929, while the country's imports in the same years increased from $2,608,079,008 to $4,291,608,000.

Mr. Curtis said the increase in imports did not apply to farm products. Under the Underwood-Simmons act of the Wilson administration he said, agricultural commodities valued at $3,129,000,000 came into the country in 1920, and the subsequent Fordney-McCumber act "with its increased protection for agriculture," reduced importation of farm products to $1,905,000,000.

Censuring the Democratic position on the tariff in the last presidential campaign, Vice President Curtis said the minority party in 1928 purported to advocate a "competitive tariff" while its presidential candidate "referred with pride" to the Underwood-Simmons tariff. He said the late Senator Underwood, in speaking of the act of which he was coauthor, had said, "If it contained a vestige of protection, it is there by inadvertence."

Dean Brown's Estate Is Valued at $120,000

An estate valued at $120,045.97 was left by Dean E. Brown, who died September 25 in Baltimore, Md., according to the petition for the probate of his will filed yesterday in District Supreme Court.

The petition was filed by Mrs. Bertha Bliss Brown, the widow, explanation being made that no executor was named in the will. Mrs. Brown is to receive the bulk of the estate, but provision is made for three children, Katherine A. Brown, Dean E. Brown, jr., and Clarence G. Brown. Attorney W. C. Sullivan appears for the estate.

GERMAN MINE BLAST TOLL NOW 248 DEAD

MYSTERY VEILS CAUSE

Alsdorf, Germany, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Seven miners were rescued alive tonight from galleries of the Anna II mine, but there was almost no hope for 25 others still unaccounted for and believed entombed by the explosion which yesterday at dawn destroyed the shaft. The death toll stood tonight at 248, not including the 25 men still missing.

Four of the seven miners rescued had taken refuge in a small blind gallery and were severely injured. One of the four died soon afterward from the effects of poisonous fumes which he had breathed. At the 1,200-foot level nine others were found huddled together of whom six were dead and three injured.

When rescue crews, wearing gas masks, penetrated to a pit 1,500 feet below the surface, a ghastly sight met their eyes. All about them the victims lay, apparently asphyxiated. From this pit not one person had emerged alive. It was only then that the would-be rescuers realized hope must be given up for any others in that area.

There were heartbreaking scenes as the dead were taken from the shaft and their families identified them. Many persons came from surrounding towns, some even motoring over the nearby Belgian and Dutch borders. These thronged the town today but a strong force of mounted and foot police kept the crowds at a distance from the mine.

The cause of the disaster remains as mysterious as ever. Among experts opinion is growing and is shared by many survivors, that coal damp at least was the primary reason for the explosion.

The management asserts that recent arrivals of dynamite were stored last Saturday in their proper places. Messages of condolence are pouring in from all parts of the world. The victims will be buried Saturday.

Staple Found in Candy, Man Says in $30,000 Suit

Because he claims there was a metal staple in chocolate candy which he states he bought April 17, 1929, William H. McGrath, of 1139 Oates street northeast, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court seeking to recover $30,000 damages from F. W. Woolworth, Inc., 1201 F street northwest.

McGrath alleges that he was permanently injured when he bit down on the staple and declares the company was negligent in selling candy which contained such hazards. Attorney William Wendell appears for the plaintiff.

Traction Company Sued For $10,000 in Collision

Alleging that he had tried to avoid being struck by a street car and that as a result was forced to run into an automobile truck, Isadore Glukenhous, of 1736 Seventh street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $10,000 damages from the Capital Traction Co.

Glukenhous states that he was standing in a crosswalk trying to proceed across the car tracks. He declares that he stepped from in front of one car into the path of another. The motorman, he asserts, refused to halt the speed of the latter and in order to escape being run over by the street car he stepped out into a line of vehicular traffic and into the side of the truck.

LAST YEAR LEADER IN SCHOOL BUILDING

More Accommodations Banished Eight Portables, Ballou Says in Report.

REVIEWS BIG ACTIVITIES

The school year 1929-30 witnessed the opening of more additional schoolhouse accommodations for public school pupils than in any other school year in the history of the public school system of Washington, the first installment of the annual report of Superintendent of District Schools Frank W. Ballou reveals.

Other important achievements for the year as reviewed by the superintendent were the introduction of a recreational system for the District of Columbia; establishment of the free textbook law for high schools; the awarding of new scholarships for graduates of Washington high schools; progress in the education of crippled children and the organization of the Park View School as a model platoon school.

"Red Menace" Mentioned.

Investigation by a special committee of the Board of Education during the year into communism resulted in the conclusion that "the red menace" was having no effect on the local public schools. Study was given various courses in social science, but none have yet been adopted for general use. The two normal schools were converted into teachers' colleges. Names were selected for six new schools.

Committees were appointed to study character building activities in public schools. An illuminating report was made on visual education. The results of a study into vocational education are also discussed at considerable length in the superintendent's report. Local institutions given licenses to confer degrees, are listed.

Fewer Portables Used.

As a result of the opening of new accommodations the use of eight portables was discontinued—two at the Murch School, two at the Petworth School, one at the Phelps School and three at the Wilson School. In addition to these there were four portables not in classroom use in 1929-30, as follows: One at the Brookland School, one at the Jefferson Junior High School, one at the Garfield School and one at the Keene School. At the end of the school year 1929-30 there were 63 portables in use.

During the school year 1929-30 the Board of Education discontinued the rental of land in the vicinity of the Wilson School, on which portables had been in use. On March 15, 1930, the use of three rooms rented for cooking and sewing at 2806 Twentieth street northeast was discontinued.

$25,000 Damage Suit Filed Following Fall

Claiming that he had suffered serious injuries when he fell over a roll of wall paper, John Ryan, of 4115 Thirty-eighth street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court seeking to recover $25,000 damages and costs from Charles H. David and Samuel David, trading as the Union Wall Paper Co.

Ryan states that he was a customer of the company and went to the company's establishment at 630 Massachusetts avenue northwest to pay a bill. Leaving the place, he states that he stumbled over the roll of paper and fell several feet down an area way.

CHINESE REDS SLAY 8,000 AND LOOT CITY

14 Missionaries Are Held for $3,500,000 Ransom by Communists.

TWO BEATEN AND FREED

Shanghai, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Eight Thousand Chinese men and women have been massacred at Kian, Province of Kiangsi, by Communists in an orgy of slaying, looting and burning, said dispatches received today.

The Reds swarmed into Kian October 6, ransacked the city and ruthlessly killed 2,000 inhabitants in one day. Thousands of others were slain as depredations continued.

First news of the massacre was brought by Bishop Migniani, of the Italian Lazarist Mission at Kian, who, with a Chinese Lazarist priest, arrived at Kiukiang today. He had been released by Reds to attempt to raise $10,000,000 Mexican (about $3,500,000 gold) as ransom for fourteen missionaries held at Kian.

Paraded Through Streets.

Bishop Migniani said he and the Chinese priest, after being severely beaten and paraded through streets of Kian, left on foot October 14 to obtain aid for their fellow missionaires. These included four Italian priests, four Italian, one French and five Chinese nuns held at Communist headquarters.

Reporting deaths at Kian had reached 8,000, Chinese press dispatches said immediately after capturing the city, Communists massacred residents and started disastrous fires. Flames and smoke were seen many miles for three days.

"So many persons were murdered," said the dispatches, "that virtually a constant stream of bodies was seen floating in the Kan River toward Nachang. Scenes not describable were enacted."

Priest Reported Murdered.

From Pengsteh, eastern Kiangsi, came reports that Father Vonaix, French priest, had been murdered. Three thousand Reds, said press dispatches, overwhelmed the city in a surprise attack.

American Consul Lockhart at Hankow urged Nationalist government authorities to obtain the release of a Filipino nun, held by Communists at Kiah.

Reports, however, stated the government was having difficulty in forcing the few Nationalist soldiers in Kiangsi to fight Reds. Voicing the slogan, "soldiers don't fight soldiers," Nationalist troops permitted looting and slaughter to go on.

Neely Takes Campaign To Eastern Panhandle

Special to The Washington Post

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 22.—Former United States Senator Mathew Mansfield Neely, Democratic senatorial candidate, and Jennings Randolph, congressional nominee of the Democrats in the Second District, carried their candidacies to the Eastern Panhandle yesterday and last night, addressing audiences at Romney and Martinsburg.

A crowd that taxed the capacity of the Central Theater here greeted the pair. Both assailed the national administration for present business depression and urged that the Democrats be given an opportunity to run the Government.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

BOSTON, Mass.—They are still cleaning up the wreckage left by the American Legion convention here and grumbling that they have never seen the like of it since the famous police strike. Bootleggers operated openly on the streets, it is said, and the resultant alcoholic wit ranged all the way from dropping water-loaded paper bags out of hotel windows on the heads of pedestrians to riding a horse through the lobby of the leading hostelries.

But instead of the convention discouraging the drys they have been heartened to added endeavotr.

• • • • •

MRS. HENRY W. PEABODY, their head, does not attempt to disguise her disillusionment about the boys who went to France.

"I'd rather for my boy to have been killed in France than be in the condition I saw some of the Legion boys," she says very emphatically. Needless to say none of the legionnaires would accept the comparison, to say nothing of the alternative.

But what she saw during the convention has moved her to renewed zeal. She had a big rally last Sunday, and even old Patrick Callahan, of Louisville, was there. The speakers quoted Gen. Pershing as having once said he would shoot every man who sold whisky. It was probably one of the general's old war-time declarations. It was recalled by the drys to confound Gen. Edwards, of the famous Twenty-sixth Division, with whom Gen. Pershing did not get along, and it did.

• • • • •

AT any rate, the drys are planning mass rallies in the churches before election to pray for prohibition. They are having something of the same kind out in Ohio, but unlike Ohio, the Massachusetts wets welcome these church activities. They have the majority with them, and church activities only serve to accentuate their cause.

A lot of Butler's friends think he did wrong last Sunday by making a prohibition speech in a Methodist church. He probably did, too, because his best chances lie in Republican wets not thinking enough of the cause to bolt their party.

DANVILLE STRIKE IS HELD DECISIVE STROKE BY LABOR

about $15 a week, and while that may seem low, it was considerably higher than the average wage paid elsewhere in the South.

Stretch-Out System Established.

Then came the depression in the cotton goods market, the establishment of the "stretch-out" system, the pay reduction of 10 per cent, and the strike on the part of the 4,000 workers.

The longer the strike lasts—it has been on for three weeks now—the more bitter the strikers become. There was a time when they were willing to grant that the company was good to them; now they grant nothing.

Looking back, they recall that the company was at one time paying 20 per cent dividends to its stockholders, and that Mr. Fitzgerald was drawing a salary of $75,000 a year—the same salary drawn by the President of the United States.

Those dividends and that salary, they are now saying, were paid at their expense.

Fitzgerald Able Executive.

The stockholders, of course, feel that Fitzgerald was worth every cent he drew, and the impartial observer can't help but agree with them. Unquestionably Fitzgerald has been an able executive. Since the depression set in, it is said, he has reduced his salary from $75,000 to $50,000 a year.

At any rate, the mill workers now are convinced that their future welfare lies in affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, and so they have joined the United Textile Workers of America, the A. F. of L. union that now is trying to invade the Southland.

If, with the aid of the American Federation of Labor, the 4,000 workers win their strike, there is no question but what the A. F. of L. will be in a fair way to organize the other 350,000 textile workers in the South.

Failure Would Hit A. F. of L.

If, on the other hand, the strike is lost, there is no question but what the failure will be a serious blow to the Federation's campaign in the South.

The decision to organize the textile workers in the South was reached at the A. F. of L. convention in Toronto last year. Consequently the Danville strike was accorded considerable thought at the recent convention in Boston.

The delegates were told of the situation in Danville by two of the women strikers—Mrs. Lucille Humble and Mrs. Della Gilreath.

"The management has done everything possible to keep us from organizing," Mrs. Gilreath told the convention. "We have been discriminated against, we have been fired out of our jobs. People who worked for 31 to 38 years in those mills were fired because they joined the union. They were thrown out of their houses. We worked 55 hours a week, and did not make enough to live on."

Federation Extends Help.

Said Mrs. Humble:

"The Danville mills are the largest mills in the South and the fourth largest in the United States. Two years ago they brought about the stretch-out system. Before this we ran 16 looms, and afterward 64. If the daily production was not made, the boss would shake his finger in our faces.

"We all agreed that if we would organize we would not have to take the punishment we were taking. • • • We must win this fight, because if we go back unorganized it will be like going back to the penitentiary, with a man over us with a whip to see that we do what he believes is a day's work."

The two women called on the American Federation of Labor for help, and the delegates responded promptly by "passing the hat" and turning over to them something like $1,000. Then the delegates voted to send out a general appeal—that is, to call on the various organizations within the federation to contribute money for the support of the strikers.

Labor Officials on Scene.

How important the A. F. of L. regards the strike may be judged from the number and importance of the labor officials who are gathered here.

They make their headquarters at the Burton Hotel. Here one may see Francis J. Gorman, the vice president of the United Textile Workers and the leading spirit in the invasion of the South; Paul J. Aymon, president of the Tennessee Federation of Labor; C. S. Garrison, publicity director of the Southern organization; Winfield Gaylord, of the Internatonal Labor News Service; C. G. Bolick, organizer of the United Textile Workers; Matilda Lindsay, of the National Women's Trade Union League, who is cooperating with Gorman, and a half-dozen others.

Two commissaries have been established, and here the strikers draw rations once a week. The food, which is purchased in wholesale lots and with A. F. of L. money, is rationed out according to the size of the striker's family.

Applaud Hornet Story.

That the strikers are thoroughly "sold" on the idea of organization was shown by the way they applauded a story that was told them at a mass meeting last Sunday.

In Mississippi, so the narrator said, there was a farmer who was an expert in wielding a long cow-hide whip. His fame spread all over the South, and finally a traveling salesman looked him up and asked him to demonstrate his skill.

To begin with, the farmer took his whip and snapped off the head of a turtle who was crossing the road. Then he snapped off the head of a partridge, and, finally, he coiled his whip around a horse fly.

Presently the stranger spied a hornet's nest.

"Let me see you wrap your whip around one of those hornets," he said to the farmer.

"Listen, stranger," the farmer replied, "that turtle was all alone, and so was the partridge and the fly. But don't ask me to bother that hornets' nest. Brother, those hornets are organized."

Consulting Engineer Named in Petersburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 22.—The city council, at its meeting last night, created the office of consulting engineer and elected to that office Robert D. Budd, who has been city engineer of Petersburg for the past 27 years.

Mr. Budd resigned as city engineer on account of ill health. He is to receive an annual salary fo $2,100.

EASTERDAY IS HELD IN OKLAHOMA CITY

Associate of "Nicky" Arnstein Charged as Fugitive From New York.

ONCE HELD IN CAPITAL

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—W. W. Easterday, one-time associate of the notorious Jules (Nicky) Arnstein, was held by Federal officers here tonight, charged with being a fugitive from New York, whence he disappeared after posting bond of $25,000 on a mail fraud charge.

Easterday was arrested today by city police as the outgrowth of an investigation of the Oklahoma City Better Business Bureau of promoting companies offering stock for sale in Oklahoma City oil field enterprises.

He was arraigned late today on the fugitive charge before a United States commissioner, pleaded not guilty, and was under $40,000 bond for preliminary hearing November 7.

Readily Admits Identity.

The New Yorker, who was convicted with Arnstein in a $5,000,000 Wall Street bond robbery in 1922, had worked with a stock sales company here under the name of Harrington. He readily admitted he was Easterday after being confronted with pictures and fingerprints.

The mail fraud case in New York grew out of operations of the DeWolfe Stewart Co., a brokerage firm. Easterday was known also as Stewart.

Lee Mullenix, city policeman, who, with another policeman, R. F. Brandon, arrested Easterday, said he was told by Easterday on the way to police station that it "will be worth $1,500 to you if I would be permitted to go get a cup of coffee."

Was Arrested Here.

Easterday was arrested at the Chastleton Hotel here on November 4 by Detectives L. M. Wilson and Carlton Talley and locked up for New York authorities who claimed to want him on a $13,000 "forgery charge." Two days later he was identified as W. W. Stewart, of the DeWolfe Stewart Brokerage House of New York.

Arraigned before the United States commissioner on a charge of using the mails to defraud, Easterday was unable to furnish $25,000 bond and went back to jail on November 7. He asked that bond be reduced to $10,000, asserting that he was being "hounded."

After failing in an effort to secure his freedom through a writ of habeas corpus, Easterday on November 8 consented to return to New York, where the following day he was freed on $25,000 bond.

Easterday had previously been convicted twice in the District. He was indicted in 1925 with D. W. Sullivan and Norman Bowles on a charge of receiving stolen certificates in the $2,000,000 robbery of Clark, Childs & Co. A jury disagreed, but a year later the trio was convicted and sentenced to two years each in prison. They appealed, but the Court of Appeals upheld the sentence. Meanwhile they had been tried on charges of forgery, convicted and sentenced to three years imprisonment each. This sentence also was upheld by the Court of Appeals.

Winchester Veniremen Facing Bench Warrants

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 22.—Bench warrants for the arrest of a number of veniremen and witnesses were issued today in Circuit Court by Judge Philip Williams after their names had been called and they failed to respond. The court found it necessary, as a result of their failure to appear, to declare a recess and rearrange the docket.

J. D. McIlwee and R. C. Garrett, who had been summoned as prospective jurors, had sent word that they "would not be in," as they were picking apples. Several witnesses gave the same excuse for not obeying the summons of the court. Judge Williams directed warrants to be issued forthwith, citing the men for contempt of court.

Woman, Blinded by Dust From Truck, Wrecks Car

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Oct. 22.—Confused by the dust which followed in the path of a large truck behind which she was driving, Mrs. Mildred Walton, of Purcellville, crashed into a telephone pole at a sharp curve on the Leesburg-Washington pike near Leesburg this morning, wrecking her car and hurling herself and Mrs. Carroll Paxson, other occupant, against the front of the car.

Mrs. Walton received minor injuries. Mrs. Paxson was painfully injured on the face and both knees. Passersby took both women to Dr. H. C. Littlejohn's Pharmacy in Leesburg, where Mrs. Paxson was given treatment.

Cumberland Ministerial Officers Are Selected

Special to the Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 22.—The Rev. William A. Eisenberger, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, was elected president of the Cumberland Ministerial Union for the coming year at a meeting at Central Y. M. C. A.

Other officers chosen were the Rev. Frank Yewdall Jaggers, pastor of Kingsley Methodist Episcopal Church, vice president; the Rev. John E. Oliver, pastor of the Bethany United Brethren Church, secretary-treasurer. The officers, with the Rev. J. W. Rosenberger, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the Rev. C. L. Beard, pastor of Emmanuel Methodist Episcopal Church South, compose the executive committee.

the two others to Pittsburgh, but declined to go, even when assured that his transportation would be paid. He is being held for investigation at the Tenth Precinct station, where he was taken soon after his arrest. Detectives last night refused to divulge information which McKay is thought to have given them.

Inspector Shelby said last night that he had in his pomession a coat which was thought to be the one worn by Carnell at the time of the shooting, and which is said to be covered with splotches of blood. The coat had ben turned over to police by a second-hand dealer on Seventh street, who said he bought it for $4. The coat will be subjected to a microscopic examination by Edwin R. Donaldson, Police Department microscopist, according to the inspector.

SKETCH CASTS LIGHT ON WOMAN'S SUICIDE

STRANGEST, SAY POLICE

she was constantly being worried, until there seemed to be no romance left in the world for any one.

"Just the other day," the story ran, "she had read a story entitled 'Something Will Happen,' but nothing had happened, and in desperation she laid out thirteen cigarettes with a hazy idea of doing something to rid the world of herself and herself of the world when her last stub had been committed to the ash tray," and as the story ran, so were the thirteen stubs found when members of the homicide squad arrived to investigate and examine the room and its contents.

Near the middle of the story there was a single sentence paragraphed by itself: "There are eight cigarettes left." Further on there was another, "Now there are three."

Nearing the end of the probable biography was another sentence, potent and suggestive of desperate action: "There are no cigarettes left. The ashes of thirteen are lying in a crumpled-up heap in the ash tray."

It was the end. Evidently the girl, carrying out the story to the most minute detail, tidied things about the room, arranged her hair, straightened the manuscript on the little table by the side of the bed, and reached up for the gas jet, opening it wide.

Heads of the department where the girl was employed stated yesterday that she had only been employed for about a week this year and that she had been reported ill for at least two days of that week. Little was known about her personally, except that she seemed to have few friends, to be of a retiring disposition, and to have a good knowledge of current literature. She was employed at the store for a longer period last year, but had left their employ when she was out of town for some time.

The police and an ambulance from Emergency Hospital arrived on the scene after the colored chambermaid notified others in the building that something was wrong. Physicians who were summoned worked with members of the Rescue Squad in a vain effort to bring the girl back to life. The coroner issued a certificate of suicide by gas.

The woman left no note specifically explaining her act, only the story. Police located an uncle, William H. Gill, of Cherrydale, Va., and efforts were being made last night to get in touch with a brother who is in the Coast Guard Service on the New England Coast. He was referred to in the story she left, but only as "brother."

Service for Lodge Announced.

A special service will be held next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock in St. Stephen's Lutheran Church, at 1611 Brentwood road northeast, with the members of Dawson Lodge, No. 16, F. A. A. M., and their families as special guests. The Rev. Sam H. Kornmann, pastor, who is also chaplain of Dawson Lodge, will conduct the service, and he will have as his topic, "The Church and the Mason."

DISCIPLES DISCUSS MISSION PROBLEM

SESSION ENDS TONIGHT

Discussions on the status of the church in foreign lands and addresses on hindrances to foreign missions occupied delegates to the world convention of Churches of Christ yesterday. Last night the gathering was addressed by two nationally known speakers, John R. Mott, of New York, and Arthur Holmes, of Philadelphia.

Asserting that Christianity is under fire in China, Keh Ching Chen, of Luchowfu, opened the discussion of foreign conditions with an exhaustive review of Oriental problems, intensified, he said, by the fact that 134 different Protestant organizations were attempting to function independently.

Other speakers included Yokichi Hirai, of Tokyo; Don McGavran, Damoh, India; A. F. Hensey, Indianapolis; Silvestre Morales, Laog, Philippines; Albert Esculto, Laog, Philippines; H. J. Jaroszewicz, Poleski, Poland; Ludwig von Gerdtell, Berlin Germany; George H. Combs, Kansas City, and S. Earl Childers, of Eugene, Oreg.

The session theme for the afternoon session was the "present day affirmations of our Christian faith." More than a dozen speakers addressed group meetings in the Washington Auditorium and Constitution Hall. Special music, hymns and scripture readings opened all gatherings.

The convention will adjourn tonight, following an address by Hugh McLellan, of Winchester, Ky.

Virginia Girl Married To Man From Capital

Special to The Washington Post.

Marshall, Va., Oct. 22.—The marriage of Miss Mary Fitzhugh Ramey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Ramey, of Grafton, Marshall, Va., and Mr. John Hargrave Cunningham, of Washington, son of Mr. William N. Cunningham, was solemnized Saturday at 4 o'clock at Trinity Episcopal Church, Marshall. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William B. Everett.

Howard Pryor, of New York City, was best man. The groomsmen were H. P. Harnsberger and James Owens, of Washington; Poe Taylor, of Baltimore; John M. Ramey, of Marshall; Robert Fletcher, of Upperville, and Carter Wellford, of the University of Virginia. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride.

Native of Lonaconing Dies at Roanoke Home

Special to The Washington Post.

Lonaconing, Md., Oct. 22.—John H. Parrott, 80 years old, former resident and superintendent of the American Coal Co. here, from 1891 to 1902, died at Roanoke, Va., his home, according to word just received here.

In April, 1891, he was made superintendent of the Jackson Mine, operated by the American Coal Co. In 1902 he left Lonaconing, but remained in the employ of the same coal company until 1920, when he retired. He later engaged in the real estate business in Roanoke. His wife and four children survive.

Winchester Embezzler To Forfeit $1,000 Bond

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 22.—Bond money aggregating $1,000 was ordered forfeited in Corporation Court today, because Arthur G. Jones, former president and general manager of the Arthur G. Jones Woolen Mills Corporation, convicted of embezzlement and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary nearly a year ago, failed to pay the costs of his trial.

The money represented a cash bond for his appearance during trial. Now the sum of $800 has been deducted from the original amount for trial costs, which will be paid to the State and to officers for their costs in the case.

Student at University Badly Hurt in Crash

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 22.—Miller Van Dien, aged 20, of Essex Falls, N. J., a student in the college department at the University of Virginia, was injured critically and two other unidentified students suffered bruises and lacerations when their automobile left the road and crashed into a tree on the Richmond-Charlottesville highway last night.

Van Dien was brought by ambulance to the Martha Jefferson Hospital, this city, where first examinations revealed that both legs were broken, besides other possible injuries.

BUTLER IS BELIEVED LAGGING IN MASSACHUSETTS CAMPAIGN

Representative Underhill, in the Ninth, is in trouble and may be beaten, but it is mostly because of local issues and the fact that he is a dry and his opponent, Joseph J. Borgatti, is a wet. The main thing, though is that Borgatti is an Italian and there are a lot of Italians in the district.

Depression does enter into the troubles of Representative Holmes, in the Worcester district, and Representative Martin, in the Fall River district, and so does prohibition. These are about the only three districts seriously in doubt.

One thing that works in favor of the Republicans in getting over this off-year reverse tide in this State is the general weakness of the Democratic candidates. Ely is the only one whom they could possibly brag about and he has the hardest fight They speak of Gov. Allen, the Republican incumbent, as having a strong personal following. What he really has is a working understanding with the elusive Mayor Curley of Boston. Ely may beat Allen at that, though.

Governor's Power in City.

It is not generally understood why it behooves so many Democratic Boston mayors to play ball with Republican governors. It is because that under the arrangement in this State the governor has more or at least as much control over this city as does the mayor. He appoints a finance commission to watch him for one thing and the governor also appoints the city's police commissioner.

And I almost forgot. It is doubtful if the Democrats will hold that famous Second District which went Democratic for the first time in history several months ago. The Democratic incumbent, Representative Cranfield, has made himself mighty unpopular personally.

MAJ. S. B. MILTON EXPIRES OF STROKE

Evening Star Editorial Staff Member Succumbs at Summer Home.

FUNERAL IS TOMORROW

Funeral services for Maj. Samuel Burleigh Milton, 66 years old, a member of the editorial staff of the Evening Star, who died of a paralytic stroke Tuesday afternoon at his summer home on Chesapeake Bay in Calvert County, will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the late residence, 3545 Sixteenth street northwest.

Masonic Rose Croix service will be held at the home to be followed by rites at which the Rev. George F. Dudley, rector of St. Stephen's Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

The following will act as pallbearers: Jesse E. Potbury, Ellwood P. Morey, Lem Powers, Col. C. Fred Cook, Judge Arthur B. Hayes, Dr. Millard F. Thompson, Henry Hanford and Capt. Charles H. Franklin.

Began Career in 1876.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Inez Seymour Milton; a stepson, Seymour McConnell, and a nephew, Ormond Milton, of New York City. Maj. Milton's first wife was Pearl Irma Eldredge. Following her death, he married Mrs. Inez Seymour McConnell.

Maj. Milton began his newspaper career on the Star in 1876. In 1883 he went to the Dakota Territory and later established the Redfield Observer. Afterward he purchased the Redfield Journal and merged the two papers.

In 1905 he moved to Mason City, Iowa, and established the Mason City Star. Later he moved to Minneapolis and became associated with the Minneapolis Journal and the Northwest Farmer.

Active in South Dakota.

During the territorial period in Dakota he served as secretary to Representative Gifford and in a like capacity to Representative Lucas after the State had been admitted. He served on the inaugural committees for Presidents Harrison, Roosevelt and McKinley.

After leaving Minneapolis he returned to the Evening Star.

Maj. Milton was a native of Washington, the son of George Lafayette and Ophelia S. (Baggett) Milton. He was a member of the International Society of Arts and Letters, the Maryland State Society, the South Dakota Society, Scottish Rite (thirty-second degree), Knights Templar, Eastern Star, Elks, the Southern Society and the Columbia Heights Citizens Association

Conduct of Legion Praised in Boston

Hotel Association Denies Vigorously Reports of Disorder.

Boston, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The City of Boston Hotel Association today gave the American Legion a clean bill. The association vigorously denied all reports of heavy property damage and wild orgies during the recent national convention of the legion and said it would welcome the legionnaire here again.

The hotel men said the total property damage in 25 of the leading hotels which housed and fed nearly 50,000 persons amounted to less than $500 and they "would not hesitate for a moment recommending any city in the country inviting the legion convention."

Bradbury F. Cushing, managing director of the Statler Hotel, said: "There was absolutely no foundation for the stories that were circulated about the Statler Hotel property damage. We were glad to have the American Legion convention and no other city should entertain any fears regarding extension of an invitation. Naturally, there were abnormal conditions, but the legionnaires conducted themselves in a way that could in no way bring discredit upon that great body."

John Ewing Benton Services Arranged

Funeral of Late Bank Officer to Be Held Tomorrow From Residence.

Funeral services for John Ewing Benton, assistant auditor of the American Security & Trust Co., who died early yesterday morning at Garfield Hospital, will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the residence, 1713 Lanier place northwest. The Rev. Dr. Mark Depp, pastor of the Calvary M. E. Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Benton was born in Washington 63 years ago. His banking experience started with the firm of William Mayse. Later he became connected with the Traders National Bank, where he was made a paying teller. He became connected with the Home Savings Bank about fourteen years ago, and attained the position of assistant auditor shortly after this bank was taken over in 1919 by the American Security & Trust Co.

Mr. Benton is survived by the widow, Mrs. Irene Frey Benton; a sister, Mrs. Charles H. Clifford, of Pasedena, Calif., and a half brother, Ralph W. Benton. He was a member of the Board of Trade and was formerly quartermaster sergeant in Battery A, Light Artillery, District National Guard.

COL. B. H. CHEEVER DIES AT AGE OF 80

Was Awarded Medal of Honor for Exploits in Wars With Indians.

RITES IN ARLINGTON

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 22 (A.P.). Col. Benjamin Harrison Cheever, U. S. A., retired, who was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor in the Indian wars, is dead at his home here. He was 80 years old and had been ill for several years. Death occurred late last night.

Col. Cheever, who was born in Washington June 7, 1850, is survived by his widow, the former Cora Chapman, of Chicago, and one daughter, Mrs. Stewart C. Maxey, of Jacksonville, Fla. The funeral, full military honors attending, will be held at Arlington National Cemetery Friday.

Col. Cheever was a soldier of the old school. He saw active service in the Indian wars, the Philippine insurrection, Spanish-American and World Wars. He voluntarily retired after 34 years of service following the World War.

Appointed with the then Lieut. John J. Pershing, Col. Cheever rose to be known as one of the foremost horsemen in the military service of his country. He was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor at Wounded Knee Creek, near White River, S. Dak. The exploit is made memorable in the mounted forces. A first lieutenant in Troop K of the Sith Cavalry, with 53 men, Cheever was escorting a supply train to camp. Suddenly a band of 400 Indians attacked. Ordering his first twenty men to advance with him, Lieut. Cheever's command was not heard, as a heavy gale was blowing. The thermometer registered 20 degrees below zero.

After advancing a mile at full gallop a line of skirmishers was ordered Lieut. Cheever then found he had only thirteen men. With great difficulty he reached a bluff swarming with Indians. An ice-filled river failed to daunt him. Ordering his men forward again, he put spurs to his horse, swam the freezing river, attacked and routed the redskins and, clothing frozen stiff, returned to camp.

Pocketbook and $205 Stolen.

Miss Charlotte Dooley, of 1515 Massachusetts avenue northwest, yesterday told police that someone had taken a pocketbook containing $50 in cash and a check for $155 from beneath a pillow at that address.

Gift of Thomas Honors Memory of Educator

In memory of the sixty-sixth anniversary of the birth of John A. Chamberlain, late supervisor of manual training in the District Public Schools, flowers from the widow were placed in the office of Assistant Superintendent of Schools Stephen E. Kramer yesterday.

Mr. Chamberlain died June 10 of this year after a brief illness. He rendered 37 years of service to the school system. A successor has not yet been selected.

JOHN E. MORELAND RITES.

Services Will Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon; Burial in Glenwood.

Funeral services for John Edwin Moreland, 46 years old, member of the grocery firm of Moreland Bros., who died Tuesday night, will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the residence, 3623 Ordway street northwest. Burial will be at Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Moreland is survived by the widow, Mrs. Elsie M. Moreland; a young daughter, Elsie Moreland, and three brothers, William S., Arthur H. and Paul H. Moreland. He was associated in business with the first two named brothers.

Salesman Seized In Kidnaping Case

Faces Grilling Relative to Abduction of Heiress; Woman Also Held.

Carthage, Mo., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Bill Prater, about 40, a motor car salesman, was arrested here this afternoon and held for questioning in connection with the recent kidnaping of Mrs. Alma Wilson McKinley, heiress and expectant mother, from her home near Greenfield, Mo.

Prater was described as a motor car salesman working out of Greenfield. Police said he lived near Greenfield. It was disclosed that officers had been trailing Prater for several days.

Greenfield officers declined to divulge the nature of the clews on which Prater was suspected. Mrs. Emory Hill, recently divorced wife of a Stotts City, Mo., banker, was taken into custody with Prater and held for investigation.

$150 in Jewelry Stolen.

A diamond ring and a gold bracelet were reported stolen from a residence at 1701 New Hampshire avenue northwest yesterday by the owner, Lynch Luquer. The value of the missing jewelry was said to be $150.

Navy Official Falters On Government Here

The United States Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, N. J., apparently never heard that the District has a form of government different from any other city in land, it would seem from a commission received by the District Commissioners yesterday.

The letter was signed by Capt. H. E. Schoemaker, commanding the station, and told of plans for celebration of Navy Day next Monday, in the course of which one of the minor airships will visit the National Capital, and asked the cooperation of the "City Councillors" in advertising Navy Day.

The Post Office Department pondered the matter briefly and decided that it would be simpler to deliver the letter to the Commissioners than to one of the several hundred members of Congress who act as city councillors of Washington.

Gun Fight Foils Express Holdup

Employes Hide Under Tables as Guards Protect $17,000 Pay Roll.

Chicago, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—An attempted robbery of the American Colortype Co. was frustrated today after a gun battle between express company guards and the would-be holdup men.

The battle took place in the company's main office just as the express guards were bringing in the $17,000 pay roll. About 50 employes, most of them women, hid under tables and behind chairs while bullets shattered glass partitions and spattered the walls.

The three men who participated in the losing gun fight and two accomplices who stayed below escaped, but one of them was believed wounded. None of the guards or employes was wounded.

"You have laid the firmest of foundations for success in using the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of Lucky Strike"

Says

CLEMENT O. MINIGER

President Electric Auto-lite Company.
Director Willys-Overland Company.

"The demand of Americans for the utmost in comfort, convenience and safety has made the Electric Auto-lite standard equipment in many of the finest of American automobiles. In using the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos you have laid the firmest of foundations for the success of your product. Because you are rendering Americans a service which they appreciate most—the benefit of modern science."

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company has invited Mr. Clement O. Miniger to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE'S famous Toasting Process. The statement of Mr. Miniger appears on this page.

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating!

NOT GUILTY IS PLEA OF DEPUTY SHERIFF

ACCUSED OF ASSAULT

Deputy Sheriff David Jones and four other men indicted with him on a charge of assault with intent to rob pleaded not guilty yesterday in circuit court in Upper Marlboro. Their case is set for trial early next week. The five men are alleged to have stopped the car of W. F. Tucker, a son of a Washington policeman, and shot at him when he attempted to get away.

Four other persons pleaded not guilty to various charges on which the grand jury had indicted them. They are George Shanks, housebreaking and larceny; James D. Martin, named in the indictment with Jones, and Wesley Spriggs and Albert Taylor, larceny and receiving stolen goods. The man arrested under the name of Taylor claimed that he was not the man named in the warrant, but Sheriff Charles J. Early said that he was and said that the prisoner had given three other names when arrested. He will be held for trial and a not guilty plea was ordered entered for him.

The others indicted with David Jones are Francis Jackson, James D. Martin, Benson Kidwell and Samuel Morton. Alan Bowie has been retained as counsel by Jones.

Pleas of not guilty entered Tuesday by John Tillman, William Edge and John Samson were changed yesterday to guilty, by advice of counsel, J. Wilson Ryon. They are charged with larceny and receiving stolen goods. Ryon cited the previous good records of the three in asking the court for mercy for them. Sentence was postponed until the end of the week while the judge considers the case.

The trial of Louis L. Dyer for non-support was halted when he refused to raise his right hand while being arraigned. He said that he would not swear, and that he had studied law and knew his rights. He was sent back to jail. Dyer is the prisoner who threw a note out of jail during the summer, stating that conditions in the institution were unpleasant.

Fifteen old cases on the criminal docket were reviewed yesterday, and four of them will stand trial at this term of court. Four more are postponed until the accused can be found, and four were nolle prossed. One new indictment was returned against one of the men held on a previous charge, one was passed over, and the prosecution was undetermined whether or not the fifteenth charge would be pressed or not. One of this year's indictments, that accusing William E. Hawkins of larceny and receiving stolen goods, was also nolle prossed, though this will not affect the trials of the three others named in the same bill.

Damages of $200 were awarded Fred Spanagel, of Mount Rainier, Md., yesterday against Mrs. Louisa Bean, also of Mount Rainier, by a Circuit Court jury at Upper Marlboro. Spanagel had sued Mrs. Bean for $1,000 for violation of the provisions of a bill of sale given when Mrs. Bean sold Spanagel a restaurant.

The plaintiff claimed Mrs. Bean agreed not to open another restaurant within 5 miles of the place for a period of five years. She started operating a boarding house, which Spanagel charged was a public eating place. The court upheld his claim and awarded him $200. Attorneys for the plaintiff were J. Wilson Ryon and Allan Bowie.

Contract has been let for the applying of an asphalt seal coat to the 3-mile road between Waldorf and the Mattawoman swamp. The job will be completed about the last of this month and will cost approximately $25,000. This makes a total of nearly $46,000 spent on this stretch of highway in the last few months, as concrete shoulders were put on the road during the summer, at a cost of $20,235.

Right of way for the gravel road between Oakville and Sandgate, a distance of 2 miles, has been procured. The contract was let several days ago, subject to the procuring of the line for the road.

The State roads commission, which announced the other contracts, has determined to repair the bridge over Brooks run, on the Leonardtown-Hollywood road, which was damaged by heavy floods early in the spring. The repairs will cost $4,274, and this sum covers partial replacement of the abutments, which were washed out. Traffic on the road now uses a temporary bridge, which will not carry heavy loads.

Sixty-three names will appear on the two-column ballot to be used in Prince Georges County elections on November 4. At the top of one column will be printed the name of Stephen W. Gambrill, Democratic candidate for reelection to the National House of Representatives, and the name of Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, Democratic candidate for reelection to the State Senate, will appear at the top of the second column.

Gambrill's name will appear alone, as he is unopposed, but Sasscer's name will be followed by that of William R. Smallwood, Republican candidate for the same office. In addition to choosing from the 63 names on the ballot, voters will have two questions submitted to them. One will be on the subject of calling a constitutional convention and the other is a referendum on the question of amending sections 2 and 3 of article 6 of the constitution.

Tony Jarrusso, jr., was fined $25 yesterday in Police Court at Hyattsville on a charge of disorderly conduct. He is alleged to have entered the home of Mrs. Mary E. Smith of Mount Rainier. In default of the fine he was remanded to jail.

Two men were injured yesterday in an auto crash on the Defense highway at the intersection of River road. Robert and Ralph Van Pelt, occupants of one of the cars, were taken to Providence Hospital by the Prince Georges County rescue squad, and Robert remained at the hospital for observation. The other brother was allowed to leave. Both were suffering from lacerations and bruises. The two men are residents of Cheverly, Md.

The accident is reported to have happened when the Van Pelt car and a truck belonging to a local bakery collided. The driver of the truck was not injured.

The Oxon Hill School fair, held yesterday, was marked by a silent drill by soldiers from Fort Washington and by speeches by George P. McCeney and Leroy Pumphrey. The affair is an annual one, held for the benefit of the school, and exhibits are made of the work of the children in the school.

A joint meeting of the Northern and Southern convocations of the Episcopal Church in Southern Maryland was held yesterday at Trinity Church in Upper Marlboro. Principal speakers were the Rev. H. S. Parkman, chairman of the Southern convocation, and the Rev. C. W. Brown, head of the northern group. The meeting was marked by communion services at Trinity Church and a luncheon served by the ladies of the church.

Twenty-five ministers were present at the gathering. Tentative plans were made for an Armistice Day service in St. Barnabas Church at Leland, Md.

Petersburg Prices On Tobacco Good

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 22.—The Petersburg Tobacco Board of Trade announced today that the Petersburg tobacco market has outstripped at least two Southern States and several places in Virginia in respect to the sale price average of tobacco.

With a little more than four weeks of sales recorded, the local market has shown to much better advantage, insofar as the size of price averages are concerned, than many of the markets of Georgia and South Carolina. The records show that the prices paid for bright tobacco in Petersburg are higher than the price average for the entire season on the Georgia markets.

C. H. Goodman, secretary of the Petersburg Tobacco Board of Trade, says: "We sold approximately 3,515,000 pounds of bright tobacco last season and our price average was officially the highest recorded in Virginia."

Apple Crop Held Small, But of Good Quality

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Oct. 22.—Only 50 per cent of the apple crop gathered last year in the commercial orchards of this county will be harvested this year, according to reports from the Roudabush, Ford, Mauck and Price apple-growing belts near Luray. The quality of apples this year is excellent, growers say, but the size is small compared with other years. The small apples, however, are in demand in Europe, and exports to England and Germany from this section are expected to be large.

Local exportation of apples to South America is being hampered by revolutions in that country. The "lesser grades" of apples are moving slowly at present. Drought caused more than half the usual amount of apples to drop from the trees.

Man Pleads Not Guilty To Slaying of Youth, 15

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 22.—Dorsey Lamb, alias Dorsey Raylor, entered a plea of not guilty in circuit court here today to an indictment charging him with the slaying of 15-year-old Lorenzo Marino, son of Constable Marino, at Blairton, a limestone quarry settlement near here, last month.

Judge D. H. Rodgers designated counsel to defend Lamb when the latter pleaded financial inability. Accidental shooting will be the defense, it was indicated.

Boy, 4, Kicked to Death By Father's Farm Horse

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., Oct. 22.—Calvin Keiter, aged 4, died as the result of injuries suffered when a horse kicked him in his chest this morning while playing in the barn yard at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Keiter, 2 miles from here.

The mother carried the child half a mile in her arms to the home of a relative, who brought the child here. The boy was pronounced dead on arrival here.

the subjects of a widespread search organized by her father.

Dickenson pleaded not guilty when arraigned and the State elected to try him on six indictments, charging a felony and punishable with from two to five years in the penitentiary or one year in jail and a fine of not more than $1,000. The prosecution rested at 12:30 o'clock after placing a few witnesses on the stand.

Judge Julien Gunn cleared the courtroom of spectators on request of defense counsel as soon as the first witness was called.

Johnny Leadbetter, against whom charges of aiding in the secretion, were dismissed today, told of driving Dickenson and Miss McClenny to Waynesboro on the night she disappeared. He said that Harry told him to tell any one asking questions that they had gone to Norfolk.

Dr. D. C. McClenny, father of the girl, testified that Miss McClenny was under 21 at the time she went away with Dickenson. He said he had asked Dickenson, who is a married man, to cease his attentions to Miss McClenny and that Dickenson had said that he would. Dr. McClenny said that Miss McClenny was of a mental age of 15 years.

Miss McClenny was permitted on the stand to tell of agreeing to meet Dickenson when asked by defense counsel if she was taken away. Judge Gunn overruled prosecution objection on the ground that the father had questioned the mentality of the girl.

KIWANIANS TO OPEN CONVENTION TODAY

Capital District Will Have International Officer as Guest at Norfolk.

SESSION ENDS SATURDAY

The Capital District convention of Kiwanis, which opens today at Norfolk, will have as its guest Dr. Walter Rupert Weiser, of Daytona Beach, Fla., representing Kiwanis International. The convention will end Saturday.

Dr. Weiser, elected treasurer of Kiwanis International at Atlantic City in July, 1930, was a member of the International Board of Trustees, having been elected at the Seattle convention in 1928. Dr. Weiser became a member of the Springfield, Mass., Kiwanis Club after his return from military service in 1919. He entered the service of the U. S. Army as a captain in 1917 and served for more than two years. He was in charge of all surgical efficiency in all base, post and general hospitals in the United States with headquarters in Washington. At the close of his service he was honored with the distinction of colonel.

Later, moving to Florida, he became a member of the Daytona Beach Club. He served as a president in this club. In 1925 he was elected by convention acclamation for the governorship of the Florida Kiwanis district.

Dr. Weiser is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. For more than 25 years he was a practicing surgeon in Springfield, where he was an attending or consulting surgeon to most of the hospitals in western Massachusetts.

Jesse H. Binford, assistant superintendent of the city schools in Richmond, is givernor of the Capital district composed of cities of Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia, and will preside at the Norfolk sessions.

Robrt E. Turner, of Norfolk, is the district secretary, and representatives from 49 cities in States along the Atlantic seaboard will be present at the Norfolk meeting. It is announced that the headquarters will be in Cavalier Hotel at Virginia Beach.

The six division governors are Edwin F. Hill, of Washington; Sam S. Stephens, of Martinsville, Va.; the Rev. Francis H. Scott, of Roanoke, Va.; David Nelson Sutton, of West Point, Va.; Dr. E. Reinhold Rogers, of Covington, Va., and Arthur G. Wilkinson, of Wilmington, Del.

Many problems concerning the civic development in this area will be considered by the delegates, and it is expected that at least 500 men will be in attendance. The Norfolk Club is arranging a number of social features in connection with the meeting and receptions will be given to the women.

A golf tournament is being arranged and several trips near the seaside city.

Southern Cities Utilities Company Reported Purchased.

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Oct. 22.—Negotiations looking to sale of properties of the Southern Cities Utilities Co., Philadelphia, to the Central Public Service Corporation, Chicago, were learned here today. The sale is to be reported to stockholders in Philadelphia, October 28, and, if ratified, will be effective November 1. In the transfer is involved the sum of $46,000,000.

The sale involves gas properties here and in Roanoke, and in Asheville, Raleigh and Durham, N. C.; Salem, N. J.; Manila, Philippine Islands; Salisbury, Md.; San Juan, Porto Rico; Santo Domingo, Haiti; Palma, Mediterranean Sea, and Canary Islands.

Smudges Save Plants In Lynchburg Parks

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 22.—Plantings of Dutch bulbs this fall in Miller park will aggregate 100,000, according to G. H. Reed, head of the parks department of the city.

During recent cool days tropical plants in the park have been saved from freezing by smoke from improvised smudges which burned a cheap grade of motor oil. The smudges were lighted by night policemen when the temperature dropped low enough to be hurtful.

SENATOR METCALF FAVORS DRY REPEAL

G. O. P. Reelection Aspirant Urges Temperance and Control by States.

REFERENDUM IN OFFING

Providence, R. I., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—United States Senator Jesse H. Metcalf, Republican candidate for reelection, today declared himself for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and advocated State control of liquor. Senator Metcalf has been generally considered as a supporter of the Hoover administration on prohibition.

"It is my conviction," Senator Metcalf said, "that temperance may be best promoted; that the moral tone of the American community may be lifted to a higher plane and that respect for law and reverence for government may be best preserved by a repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

Voters of Rhode Island will render their opinion on prohibition in a referendum on election day in November. Senator Metcalf indicated his willingness to abide by the outcome, saying "this is a personal conviction and in no way alters my obligation set forth in the Republican platform, to vote as the people of Rhode Island vote in the matter of the referendum on November 4."

Senator Metcalf's Democratic opponent in the coming election is Peter G. Gerry, former United States senator and newspaper publisher. Mr. Gerry has declared for repeal, as has the Democratic platform.

Rhode Island was carried by a small margin by Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, in 1928. The State has never ratified the eighteenth amendment.

Senator Metcalf said both wets and drys "agree that the existence of temperance in this country is necessary and desirable."

"I think that the people of the United States have alienated from their minds any thought that the return of the saloon is either practical or desirable. In that, I heartily concur. * * *

"After ten years of observation of national prohibition I have concluded that better social results can be obtained with regard to the traffic and consumption of alcoholic beverages by return of control to the State. This is not an issue of whether we are to have alcohol or no alcohol, but whether we are to adopt a new method of solving a perplexing social problem. I pledge myself to the voters of Rhode Island to work for temperance to that end."

Water Use Restricted By Charlottesville

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 22.—Learning from City Manager H. A. Yancey that Charlottesville's supply of water fell from 222,000,000 to 206,000,000 gallons last week, the city council, at a called session last night, passed an emergency ordinance making it unlawful to use water for "washing automobiles, sprinkling streets, lawns or sidewalks."

The ordinance followed a recommendation from the city manager that such a step was necessary at this time. He stated that there is enough water in the two reservoirs to furnish the city for all normal purposes for 72 days.

Eight Driven to Street In Early Morning Blaze

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 22.—Eight persons were driven from their beds this morning at 3 o'clock when a neighbor discovered the residence of J. C. Wood, 863 Brook street, on fire.

The residents escaped in their night clothes and nothing was saved. The loss, around $2,500, was uninsured. Origin of the fire has not been determined.

Seven Missionary Unions in Session

Worker in Chinese Field Addresses Session in Petersburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 22.—The Petersburg, Appomattox, Dover, Concord, Hermon Middle and Rappahannock Associations of the Woman's Missionary Union to the Baptist General Association of Virginia, convened here today.

The Rev. John Lake, missionary to China, spoke of his work in the mission field. He said he had been located at Canton for more than 26 years, and had the opportunity to study at close range the situation in that country. He said he had carried with him a tiny Confederate flag which he said h has carried around the world three times. It was worn by his father during the siege of Petersburg, Dr. Lake said.

Frank T. Crump, treasurer of the Baptist General Association and the W. M. U., gave a report on the cooperation which the association receives from the W. M. U. He said that 48.5 per cent of the funds received for missions in the State during the year were contributed through the union. Other addresses were made at the morning session by Mrs. R. Aubrey Williams, Richmond; Mrs. N. P. Cofer, Richmond; Mrs. W. E. Morrison and Mrs. Harvey Seward, Petersburg; Mrs. J. T. Bass, Mrs. Charles Spain, Miss Nan Weeks, Mrs. W. W. Douthat.

Alleged Forger Tries To Swallow Evidence

Williamson, W. Va., Oct. 22.—Arrested while attempting to purchase a watch and a chain with a check said to have been forged, J. R. Davis, of Lebanon, Va., attempted to eat up the evidence, according to A. R. Stepp, chief of police.

The chief said that Davis took several checks from his pocket and crammed them into his mouth, but a few were retrieved before they could be masticated and swallowed.

$50,000 IS OFFERED TO AID UNEMPLOYED

Advance to Hagerstown Depends Upon City's Raising Sum of $200,000.

COMMITTEE IS FORMED

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 22.—While organization of the Washington County Welfare Federation was being effected here today, with Judge Frank G. Wageman, of the circuit court, at its head, Thomas H. Pangborn, one of the leading manufacturers here, annpunced that he had offered to loan the City of Hagerstown $50,000 to be used to finance work in the city to provide the unemployed here with work.

Five organizations are to participate in the federation which will direct the expenditure of all money for charitable purposes. They are the public health associations, King's Daughters, Salvation Army, Day Nursery and Washington County Chapter of American Red Cross. These organizations are allotted money by a central council of the federation and overlapping of charity work is eliminated.

Mr. Pangborn's offer of $50,000 to the city was contingent upon the raising of $200,000 from other firms and individuals forming a working capital of $250,000. The money will be loaned free of interest and other charges. The offer will be considered at a meeting of the city council, Mayor Reuben Musey said. The mayor said no municipal work was under contemplation, but that there are some projects which might be pushed during the winter months, giving employment to many who might be thrown on charitable organizations.

Henry Holzapfel, chairman of the Washington County farm relief committee, several days ago announced that a survey had revealed that approximately 900 of the 2,700 farmers in the county would need aid, having no collateral with which to secure loans, and that of this number 200 would be dependent upon charity. It was estimated by Mr. Holzapfel that $200,000 is needed to finance these farmers. Washington County's drought loss was placed at $2,500,000.

Common labor has been hardest hit here. Most of the manufacturing plants here are operating almost full time, and skilled labor has been least affected.

Three Mothers Agree

When mother is tired, nervous or ill the whole home is upset. For her family's sake, every mother wants to be well and strong. These three women tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps them to care for their families.

Mrs. H. Dolhonde,
6318 York St.,
New Orleans, Louisiana

"Before my last baby was born, I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got such good results that I named her Catherine Lydia. I have six older children and five grandchildren, too. I am now taking the Vegetable Compound again because of my age. I eat and sleep better and I do all my housework, and my washing. I will do my best to answer letters."

Mrs. Harold Goodnow
36 Cane St.,
Fitchburg, Massachusetts

"I cannot praise your medicine enough. After my baby came I was rundown. I had to go to bed often through the day. I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I felt like a different woman. If any mother has those tired feelings I advise her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Lloyd R. Blasing,
Anaheim, California

"After my baby came I was so nervous and tired that I felt miserable. One day a booklet was left at our door and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now on my fourth bottle and I feel much stronger. It has helped me in every way and I feel sure that other women in rundown condition will pick up if they will only take a few bottles."

NO DEBT CANCELLATION.

The visit of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, to the United States has been the occasion for a lot of loose talk as to suspension or cancellation of war debts and revision of the debt funding and reparations agreements. Dr. Schacht is in this country for the purpose of arousing a public opinion favorable to that end. He is trying to make such a course appear profitable to the United States as well as to Europe. The proposed five-year moratorium, which some fertile mind created out of thin air, is being used as a wedge to reopen the entire question of debts and reparations. If the United States could be induced to suspend or reduce the payments from Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy and other of the allied nations, these countries, it is said, would in turn mitigate their demands upon Germany.

The administration has let it be known that there is no foundation for reports that a moratorium is being considered. To launch such a program at this time would be utter absurdity, from the French and English standpoints as well as from the American. England believes that such an admission of financial difficulty would do that country more harm than good. France fears, with good reason, that a suspension of payments to the United States would play into the hands of the elements in Germany that are trying to repudiate Germany's international obligations. With such encouragement the Hitlerites might gain sufficient strength to overturn the Young plan and bring Europe to the verge of hostilities.

There are some indications that Germany is magnifying her economic difficulties to prepare the way for another reparations adjustment. But even should economic adversity force the German government to suspend payments to the allies, under the terms of the Young plan, Britain and France could not afford to suspend payments to the United States. At present nearly every one of the allied European countries is collecting more from Germany than it is paying to the United States. Why should they favor a moratorium?

Talk of further reducing the payments received by the United States from its European debtors becomes ridiculous when the actual amount to be received in 1931 is taken into consideration. During the next year America will collect in principal and interest a total of $235,000,000. During the same time American taxpayers will be assessed approximately $2,000,000,000 to pay the expenses of the war. A large share of this drain upon the taxpayers is accounted for by the loans made to foreign governments. These foreign debts have already been scaled down at rates ranging from 17 to 75 per cent, and interest rates have been cut to a minimum. There is no talk of canceling the American debt. It must be paid by the taxpayers. Every dollar that is trimmed from the debts of these foreign governments must come out of the American taxpayers' pockets.

Instead of adopting a policy that would suspend the meager payments to the United States at a time when the Government needs to expand its revenues, the administration ought to turn in the other direction. Since the war the Government has been reducing the national debt by not much short of $1,000,000,000 per year. The total has shrunk from approximately $25,000,000,000 to $16,000,000,000. Should the same annual payments be applied during the coming 10 or 12 years, the debt would be reduced to insignificance.

On the other hand, the debts of European countries owed to the United States will not be liquidated for more than 60 years. After the Government has collected the cost of the war from American taxpayers, Europe and debtor nations will find ample excuse for discontinuing their payments to the American Treasury. They will hold the anuual payments in the light of clear profit to the American Government, and the moral obligation to fulfill their agreements will be severely shaken.

It is time for the Government to turn part of the fund that is going toward such rapid reduction of the public debt into constructive channels. There is no reason for extinguishing the public debt 40 years or more before the European debtor nations pay up. American taxpayers will bear the brunt of this financial burden under any circumstances, but why should this country hustle about and pay the whole debt so that the real debtor will no longer feel his obligation to pay?

There is reason to believe that Schacht is egged on by international bankers in the United States. These bankers are anxious to have European debts canceled, so that fresh loans in enormous amounts may be floated in this country, with corresponding huge profits to the banks. But the American people are opposed to lending more money to any European country until it pays what it already owes.

RETAIL FOOD DISTRIBUTION.

The application for modification of the packers' consent decree now being heard before the District of Columbia Supreme Court promises to have an important bearing on the distribution of foodstuffs. During the Wilson administration Armour & Co., Swift & Co. and other concerns were charged with violation of the antitrust laws, and in 1920 they entered into an agreement to refrain from retailing their products. Now, however, the companies contend that the foodstuffs distribution system has been revolutionized to such an extent that it is necessary to enter the retail field if they are to survive. The application for modification of the decree is based upon this premise and in the contention that there is no longer any danger that their entry into the retail field would result in a monopoly.

The hearing promises to shed new light on the structure of the machine that has been built up for the distribution of foodstuffs. A long list of economists and other experts will testify during the trial. Their statements will be most illuminating. Victor H. Peltz, of the American Institute of Food Distribution, for example, has testified that there are 900 chain store companies now in operation and that they control between 60,000 and 65,000 grocery and meat stores. In addition there are 551 groups of chains embracing 60,000 individual establishments whose owners have entered into an association in order to pool their purchases. This group controls 25 per cent of the grocery business, while the chain store corporations control 35 per cent. With 60 per cent of the grocery business dominated by chains of one sort or another the extent of the revolution in the distribution of foodstuffs is apparent.

The largest American chain store corporation sold in 1929 $1,054,000,000 worth of merchandise. The sales of the twelve largest chains aggregated in that year $2,250,000,000. In 1929 the Swift Co. sold $1,035,000,000 worth of merchandise, while Armour's sales came to $1,004,000,000. The sales of the twelve largest chains were more than the combined sales of Swift and Armour.

Whether or not in view of the growth of chain stores it is necessary or advisable to keep the packing houses out of the retail field is a question for the courts to decide. Whatever the decision, however, the record of the trial at its conclusion will constitute a valuable textbook on the modern foodstuffs distribution machine.

LABOR IN RUSSIA.

Dispatches out of Moscow, saying that Russia faces a shortage of labor while unemployment is general in the rest of the world, need a good deal of explaining. Russia differs from all other nations in this respect. Under the Soviet regime it is quite possible, indeed it seems inevitable, that a shortage of labor should exist while millions are actually unemployed.

Russia has plenty of workmen, but many refuse to work under conditions that the Communist regime imposes upon them. A recent survey showed that from 50 to 70 per cent of all workingmen changed jobs within a year, and in many cases the annual turnover is 100 per cent. Dissatisfaction with living and working conditions and the meager wages that are paid has turned the Russian laborer to nomadic habits. Thousands "desert" their posts and attempt to improve their conditions elsewhere.

It would not be surprising, however, if Russia should face a real shortage of workmen in the near future. Since the revolution of 1917 the country has lost upward of 50,000,000 inhabitants, in spite of an annual increase of some 2,000,000. Strict barriers have been erected by the government, but emigration continues and many Russian envoys sent abroad refuse to return. Russian emigres may be found throughout the world awaiting a time when they can return to their native land without fear of imprisonment or death.

In the early days of Lenin's regime it was found necessary to mobilize men into what were called "industrial armies" and to force them to work. Current dispatches say that the "Communist party has instructed the government" to mobilize 1,300,000 qualified workers for Soviet factories. Women, children and landless peasants have been ordered to register. Presumably they are to be assigned to definite tasks as slaves of the government.

Drastic measures are also being taken to punish members of the working class who "desert" their jobs. One penalty is to be a six-month vacation without pay. The horror of losing a job under these circumstances can be realized only when it is remembered that the government is the sole proprietor of industry in Russia. Unless the workers submit to this slavery they have no opportunity of making a living.

It is difficult to reconcile this policy with the theory of the proletariat dictatorship on which the Soviet government is supposed to be based. The great mass of laborers and peasants have never been permitted to join the Communist party and, therefore, have no part in directing the government. Now they are mobilized like slaves and put to work whether they like it or not. The new labor policy offers another bit of evidence that Russia is in the grip of a clique of Communists who manipulate affairs in accordance with their own interests.

VIRGINIA PLANTS A TREE.

The Commonwealth of Virginia planted a tree Saturday in the capitol grounds at Richmond. This is the first State-planted tree marking the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington to be registered on the national honor roll of the American Tree Association. Gov. Pollard, who has issued a tree-planting call to the people of Virginia, officiated at the planting, plans for which were made by Mrs. J. Allison Hodges, State regent of the Wakefield National Memorial Association. Representatives of the thirteen original colonies attended the ceremony, as did representatives of patriotic organizations.

The plan of the American Tree Association, which is directing the tree-planting phase of the bicentennial celebration for the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, is to get the trees planted now and dedicated in 1932. Thus there will be a year of growth in the tree. This plan to plant bicentennial trees will result in the growth of thousands of living memorials throughout the country. The Father of His Country can not be more fitly honored than by beautifying the land with noble trees.

FACING REALITIES

By ALEXANDER D. NOYES,
In American Bankers Journal.

What caused the famous outburst of American prosperity in 1925, when our markets of 1921 and 1922 had been talking of industrial ruin from the crash in staple prices and the Nation-wide "frozen credits?" Does any one question for a moment that those bitter experiences of deflation days were the direct and immediate occasion for the drastic economies, the increase of productive man-power, the discovery of the secrets of mass production with equivalent lowering of prices, the extension of markets on the basis of sound credit, which introduced what was for American industry at any rate a new economic era?

We are about to enter now on another and precisely similar chapter of experience. Let us not overlook the fact that, in all these previous epochs of revival, our industrial achievement was not based merely on application of new and aggressive methods, but on courageous recognition of the fallacies and blunders that had prevailed before the economic reckoning. If the markets of 1879 and 1898 and 1925 had chosen to revert to the reckless use of credit which was a matter of course a very few years before, if they had resumed the talk of an American position so impregnable that industry was at liberty to discard the economic maxims of the past, we should have had a very different picture. If the prediction very generally made six months ago had been fulfilled, that last spring would bring resumption of the "business boom" and the Stock Exchange speculation of 1929, the longer prospect for the new chapter of real prosperity might have been gravely jeopardized. But with all their mercurial and imaginative instincts, this is not the way in which the American people deal with an economic crisis. The very fact that disappointment of unwarranted hopes had brought the markets face to face with the realities of an unpleasant situation was the surest guarantee that the situation would be met.

When we may look for the new chapter of prosperity, how long the present atmosphere of gloom and discouragement will last, is a question for the prophets. The mood of the markets, frightened by shadows and agonized by empty rumors, is at present of a character to prolong the period of depression. Yet the change from such a situation has in our past almost invariably come with suddenness; it has usually come when the spirit of pessimism was almost at its worst. It came in 1922 even before the tangle of "frozen credits" had been unraveled, and we are not confronted with the "frozen-credit" problem in 1930.

We have our strong and unshaken banking system. The useful powers of our Federal reserve have been strengthened by the economic readjustment. Our position as creditor country of the world has been reinforced. With all the sweeping cut in export and import valuations, resulting both from the fall in prices and the world-wide economic reaction, our surplus of exports over imports is running larger than in any year since 1922. Our national reserve of gold fills up by the inflow from southern and far eastern continents as fast as it is reduced by outflow to Europe. But, possibly more important than any of these powerful elements of economic strength, our producers, our financiers and the American public as a whole, are facing their financial problems soberly and intelligently, settling down to hard work.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

AS IT GOES.

At first the little lady said:
"No common fellow I will wed,
For I've ambitions lofty,
I will not choose an ugly man
A slender, gaunt and smugly man,
Nor will I take a 'softie.'

"The man I'll wed must handsome be,
Who knows what's what on land or sea,
Full six feet perpendicular;
He must be clever, brave and shrewd,
A gentleman in every mood,
In that I'll be particular."

The little lady fussier grew,
Found fault with every man she knew
And all ho came a-wooing,
"Too fat, too lean," we heard her sigh,
"Too slow, too fast!" the years went by
And there was nothing doing.

"Too loud a laugh; too solemn-faced,
Too thick and bulgy round the waist,
Inclined to baldness clearly;
Too dull of speech, too slow of gait,
I still await the perfect mate
Or one that's very nearly."

And then she wed a skinny male,
Bald, bow-legged, misty-eyed and pale,
Who sold pop guns and rifles.
"At thirty-five I've learned," said she,
"A maid would very foolish be

The Right Weapon to Use in Warfare Is the One That Will Whip the Enemy.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"THERE is no such crime as being a public enemy," says Darrow, speaking in defense of gangsters.

He is mistaken.

It is the greatest of crimes, commonly called treason.

The Nation is at war. It is in the midst of a struggle to determine whether civilization or outlawry shall control America.

Lawyers and their legal technicalities have cheated justice too long.

What is law but the will of the people written in statute books? If it is the will of the people to suppress crime, then what does it matter which tool is used so long as the work is done?

If a known bandit can not be convicted of banditry, then let him be charged with vagrancy. And if lawyers procure his release under $10,000 bond, let him be rearrested tomorrow, since again he is guilty of vagrancy, and let the process be repeated until his ill-gotten fortune is exhausted or his ways are mended.

If he is a public enemy, then get him. And if he can not be got in one way, then in the name of all that is decent let him be got in any way that may be necessary.

The forces of decency have weapons enough if men can be found with the courage and honor to use them.

It is not "legal" to protect and tolerate pickpockets and receivers of stolen goods, but the police in every great city do it because they are blind without a spy in the enemy's camp.

It was not legal to dump tea in Boston's harbor, but such acts were a necessary part of America's fight for freedom.

It was not legal to hang horse thieves in the old West, but it was necessary and it stopped the stealing of horses.

Legal technicalities are the buffer and shield of rogues, and those who most loudly protest any violation of the letter of law are first to violate its spirit.

In the desperation of war to save civilization from outlawry, any statute that will serve the cause of decency is righteous and just.

Why should those who are enemies of law receive the benefit of its technicalities?

The outlaw must be suppressed; and if he can not be jailed for murder, then jail him for wearing jewelry on Sunday if a statute can be found to provide the authority.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Socialism Is Bureaucracy.
Chicago Tribune.

The President's reference in his speech at King's Mountain to "the tyranny of bureaucracy" needs no elaboration for Americans who understand and value their heritage of liberty. But there are many Americans who do not. If there were not many we should not have had in recent years a vast growth of bureaucracy, repeated invasions by government in spheres of private activity, the tendency of discontent or impatient reform to turn to politics and government for relief which could better be had from private initiative and cooperation.

To radicals, to headlong reformers preoccupied with the symptoms of social evil rather than their cause or judicious remedy, to dreamers of the so-called intelligentsia, the state is an infallible and benign mother. If a wrong appears it is the state which will correct it, a wise and beneficent doctor for all our ills, a mysterious potency worshiped and exalted.

Our fathers knew better. They were wisely jealous of all forms of political or governmental power, and sought earnestly to put checks upon it and to restrict it within the limits of essential authority. For they knew that the state is government, and government is officialdom and politics. They knew that neither is infallible nor disinterested nor reliably benign.

Socialism seeks to escape from the oppressions of private self-interest by submitting us to the oppression of government. Its appeal is based upon a fallacious idealization of the state and of the nature of officialdom. Socialism in actuality is and can be nothing but bureaucracy, the imposition upon the individual of the will of the official.

Even Chairman Fess must admit that prohibition is a talking subject.

An Unbearable Threat.
Atlanta Constitution.

The proposal to broadcast the proceedings of the Congress is calculated, if realized, to render the radio an affliction that would soon grow intolerable to the American people. Even now very few of them take the trouble to read the Congressional Record of Congress proceedings. They are usually so boresome that Washington City idlers taking shelter and ease in the galleries of the two houses can patiently endure a whole day's session.

How would any one tuning in upon either house find out what he should hear was all about? There would be no raucous announcer to warn that "now you will listen to Senator Jaberwock from Arkiasippi on the bill to provide Federal fifty-fifty aid for the muskrat industry," or to warn the national population that "Congressman LaGuardia is recognized for ten minutes to shed a few wet tears into the prohibition problem."

Nay, nay! May whatever gods arouse the welfare of the country of G. Washington forefend the calamity of a congressional broadcast. It would be almost fatal to the radio trade and maybe provoke an antibroadcast campaign more fatal than that which was made by the Antisaloon League. "Where ignorance is bliss it is folly to be wise," via the radio, to what our congressmen may be getting off their chests from day to day. It is bad enough to feel what Congress does. It would be unbearable to have to hear what they have to say every day.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Filipinos Hatching Scheme to Imitate Gandhi in "Passive Resistance" Drive for Independence.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Katipunan," the revolutionary society which undertook to overthrow the Spanish sovereignty from the Philippines will be the name of a new nationalistic organization being formed to carry on a systematic and aggressive campaign for independence presumably along the line of Gandhi's passive resistance.

The leading spirit of the patriotic movement is Manuel Roxas, speaker of the House of Representatives, who has just returned here from another unsuccessful independence mission to the United States. Speaker Roxas, upon arrival, reported that the methods heretofore followed, which he described as apologetic, were ineffective. He advocated a decisive and vigorous drive, one that will startle the people of the United States and force them to face the issue.

Two other members of the mission who returned by way of Europe urged the adoption of the Gandhi methods. They said that unless some radical changes are made and put into effect all efforts will be in vain.

Plans of the new "Katipunan" have not yet been revealed, but it has been indicated that all the vital forces of the nation will be mustered into its folds. The organization will be a coalescence of the major political parties and all civic associations.

Leaders have not yet decided what methods of campaign should be adopted, although they have announced the need for radical tactics. This matter will be brought to the attention of the Philippine Independence Commission which will convene after adjournment of the legislature on November 8. The commission is composed of elective senators and representatives, the appointed members of the legislature being excluded.

The commission will also decide on the advisability of launching a third fund drive. Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, supreme head of the Association of Veterans of the Revolution, stands pat on his opposition to the fund drive and will not support it unless an accounting of the funds of the first and second drives is made public. Exaggerations Regarding Earthquakes, Fires and Tragic Scenes—Old-Timer Tells His Experiences.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An Associated Press dispatch of October 19 from New Orleans described an earthquake there of such violence as "literally shaking some residents of New Orleans and surrounding regions out of their beds."

I was in the San Francisco earthquakes of April, 1906, when slightly disjointed water mains resulted in an unquenchable fire that raged four days and nights and burned off 600 solidly built upon city blocks.

I was in the New York earthquake of half a dozen years ago.

In my experience, I suppose I have felt, big and little, more than 200 earthquakes.

No earthquake of record anywhere on this sphere ever has been so violent as to be able to throw a person off a bed, or to tilt him out of it. If the bed tilted that much the whole house would be so far off balance as to flop over too.

If a child, or an adult, should be sleeping precariously on the edge of a bed and some one should suddenly drop a shoe in the hallway, the noise might awaken the sleeper with a physical start that would flop him to the floor.

But writers unfamiliar with a subject usually conform to the conventions: Women "faint" in a moment of excitement; others "sob audibly" while witnessing pathetic parades; "strong men turn ashen," fire-rent buildings are "completely gutted by flames." In forty years of observing and mixing in wartime conflicts and in peacetime athletic contests I never yet have seen a woman actually faint, and never have actually witnessed a human being killed or breathing his last, although I have been on the scene a few moments after the casualty.

ROGER W. DOVSON.

Has His Own Answer to Question, How Was Union Station Plaza Formed?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Geological Survey has published a story about the effect of glaciers on this part of the country. He says that Washington has been submerged three times by the sea, and that each time the sea has dropped a new hill terrace has been formed; also that when the last one, which calls "the Illinoian glaciation" receded, it left the Union Station Plaza in full view.

If that is the kind of history the survey is putting out, somebody else ought to take ahold of it, for there are plenty of people still living about town who can tell you that the Union Station Plaza was formed by the "cold shoulder" given to the taxpayers of the District of Columbia less than 30 years ago, when Congress gave the railroads a lot of our money to get them to move their tracks from the streets (which belong to the Government) where they had no authority to be.

Let us get our history straight.

JOHN McLOTT.

Autumn Yields a Happy Thought to Mr. Holmes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The foliage is changing; in some sections it has wholly changed, though now and again one may see trees whose leaves are scarcely turned. Yellow, red and brown are everywhere. Here and there is a tree which stands out more brilliantly than those around it. A maple glows golden—gloriously golden—in the sunshine. Another tree exhibits an almost indescribable splendor. Evergreens are unchanged. Their verdancy contrasts favorably with the more showy foliage of autumn.

Over vale and hill there stretch streaks of gorgeous colorings. Leaves are falling—more and still more of them. They lie, like a carpet, upon lawn and walk. They whirl and rustle in autumnal breezes. Soon the splendor of this foliage will be gone, and then will come "the melancholy days," which Bryant thought "the saddest of the year," because of their "wailing winds and naked woods, and meadows brown and sere."

KINGSFORD-SMITH GREETED BY FIANCEE

Aviator Completes Journey Nearly Around World and Back Again.

FLIGHT SETS RECORD

Sydney, N. S. W., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—After an eight months' absence, during which he flew nearly round the world and back again, Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith today returned to his fiancee, Miss Mary Powell, whom he will marry late next month.

The pretty girl, modishly clad in black and white, left her sick bed to greet him at Mascot Airdrome as he arrived from Sydney, escorted by eighteen planes, completing a record-breaking flight which has brought Sydney to within less than thirteen days of England.

She waved as he circled the field once or twice and landed, but it was not until he taxied his little single-engined machine across the field toward the official dais that he saw her and waved kisses at her.

Embrace as 6,000 Cheer.

When he stopped his plane and throttled its motor she ran out to meet him, and she took his hand as he stepped from the cockpit. They embraced and talked smilingly and happily as they walked toward the cheering crowd of 6,000 or more.

She led him to his parents and the official reception committee, and stood by him as they bade him welcome and he spoke into a ready microphone. Afterward she rode with him in a triumphal procession through the streets of Sydney to the home of his parents at Lane Cove.

"I am very happy," she told newspapermen tearfully.

Flier Takes Over Radio.

In a speech before the microphone Kingsford-Smith said: "I honestly believe that what I have done will be of some service to development of aviation as the greatest modern commercial transport. Time is money and with safety of flying under properly organized conditions, which are now established, nothing can hold aviation back.

"This flight was made under normal conditions which allowed me to rest and keep fit, in a light single engined machine—which behaved just as well as the big Southern Cross. It is a demonstration of the commercial possibilities of the route I followed provided nothing is left to chance. Proper organization is no less than the man, and h'e machine is a vital factor in success of long flights."

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Radio telephone conversations between Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith, at Sydney, Australia, and friends in the United States, scheduled for this morning, were postponed until tomorrow because the Australian aviator was not able to reach the Sydney broadcasting station in time.

Another attempt will be made at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

PRESIDENT GRANTS EMBARGO REQUESTED

authority of an act of Congress of 1922 carries a penalty of two years' imprisonment or a fine of $10,000 or both. The penalty was cited in the proclamation.

The note of the Brazilian government asserted "the conditions of domestic violence" prescribed in the act under which an embargo could be placed, existed in Brazil and persons in the United States sympathetic with the revolutionists were endeavoring to purchase arms in America. To preclude such purchases, it was requested that the embargo be placed on all arms and munitions except those permitted by the State Department to be shipped.

Only two other embargoes exist in Latin America, both in Central America. These are on arms to Nicaragua and Honduras. A similar embargo is in effect on shipments to China. State Department officials said, however, that no embargo has ever before been placed on arms shipments to a republic on the continent of South America.

Walton Quits Oklahoma Race for Seat in Senate

Oklahoma City, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—J. C. Walton, impeached former Governor of Oklahoma, announced his withdrawal today as an independent candidate for the United States Senate.

Walton, ousted from the governor's office in 1923, was the Democratic nominee for the Senate in 1924 and was defeated in the general election by W. B. Pine, Republican, who is a candidate for reelection this year. Thomas P. Gore, former senator, is the Democratic nominee. Three other independent candidates, Edward D. Evans, Leslie P. Ross and Thomas R. Hopley, remain in the race.

INSURGENTS CLAIM ADVANCES IN BRAZIL

OTHER CLASHES CITED

Curityba, Parana, Brazil, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Steady advances on all fronts, especially in the Sao Paulo—Parana sector and in the region of the railway connecting the two federal strongholds—Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo—were claimed today at Brazilian revolutionists headquarters.

Getulio Vargas, generalissimo of the rebel campaign, today telegraphed the president of the Rebel Etate Minas Beraes that revolutionary forces had broken the federal lines in the Sao Paulo-Parana sector and at other points.

(Communiques from Rio de Janeiro assert the strongly fortified federal line running through Itarare, Riberia and Curinhos is resisting all attacks.)

Another battle sector is near the juncture of the States of Minas Geraes, Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro. In that vicinity rebel light horse yesterday occupied Cruzeiro, an important junction 125 miles from Rio de Janeiro, thereby cutting railway communication between Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro. A large federal force was defeated.

Many Prisoners Claimed.

Today a strong revolutionary army under Lieut. Col. Gabriel Marques fell upon a company of federal infantry and two companies of Sao Paulo State police near Passa Quatro, defeating them decisively. Passa Quatro is a trifle north of Cruzeiro and also is an important railway point in the region between the two great federal cities.

In this battle the rebels claimed the capture of many prisoners.

To the west of this, on the other side of the southern projection of Minas Geraes, the rebels declare that federal forces which captured the towns of Muzambinho and Monte Bello were driven out today. The capture of the Saltos railway tunnel, on an important line in southern Minas Geraes, also was announced, and was hailed as a definite strategic victory.

Bahia Invasions Reported.

The warfare in the northward has developed with invasions of the northeast and south central portions of Bahia State. The northern invasion is in charge of Jaurez Tavora, who, heading an army of more than 10,000, marched southward after the capture of Pernambuco. He overran the small states of Alagoas and Sergipe, and now is advancing upon the City of Bahia.

Revolutionists from northern Minas Geraes have invaded lower Bahia and today captured the City of Carinhanha after a hard battle.

Rebel headquarters also claim another defection in the federal ranks at Florianopolis, the island capital of Santa Catharina, which is the only loyal possession in south Brazil. Advices today stated that a battalion of chasseurs had gone over to the revolution.

BRAZILIAN FEDERALS PLAN NEW CAMPAIGN

Offensive in Minas Geraes Expected as Next Step Against Rebels.

AIRPLANES AIDING ARMY

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—With the Brazilian federal battle lines declared to be holding in the hotly contested Sao Paulo-Parana sector, the government today announced a new offensive was being planned against the rebels in southern Minas Geraes.

The rebels now are struggling to cut off all railway communications between Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo. There have been engagements in the last two days at Cruzeiro and Passa Quatro.

To halt this invasion federal troops from several points converged today at Itajuba, in the lower projection of Minas Geraes, near Cruzeiro and Passa Quatro, and are preparing to move in defense of the region.

All government communiques stress that the loyal forces of President Washington Luis are successfully opposing the revolution, which began in southern states because of dissatisfaction with the spring elections.

The strongly fortified battle line in the Sao Paulo-Parana area, running through the Cities of Ribeira, Itarare, and Curinhos, is declared to be holding in good fashion. Two attempts of rebel troops to cross the Sengues Bridges near Itarare were repulsed.

Airplanes are credited with much of the government's success. They are flying constantly over interior Parana and other rebel areas, mapping the terrain and observing military preparations, while others aid in battles by bombing and machine-gun strafing.

"MAN IN GREEN HAT" TO TELL OWN STORY

papers have followed the experiences of "the Man in the Green Hat." That is, they have followed that part of the story as told by the officials who have made charges against Cassiday.

The other part of the story—what Cassiday has learned about senators and representatives during the three administrations—is to be revealed for the first time in this new series of articles. It will be an astonishing story which "the Man in the Green Hat" will reveal in the story starting tomorrow. Light will be thrown on prohibition enforcement conditions. The attitude of senators and representatives toward the eighteenth amendment will be told by one who knows.

"The Man in the Green Hat" has been an interesting figure in the news, despite alleged violations of the law laid to him. His story of what he has learned about prohibition will be even more appealing.

Start this series tomorrow in The Washington Post and follow it to its conclusion. The revelations in it will surprise you. "The Man in the Green Hat" again rates the front page.

James Hagerman, jr., who died October 11, left an estate valued at $130,107.04. This was disclosed yesterday when the petition for the probate of his will was filed in District Supreme Court by Frank S. Bright, executor. The estate consists of real estate assessed at $83,500 and personal property estimated to be worth $46,607.04.

The estate is to be shared by three daughters, Mr. Annalee Siddons, of 2116 Kalorama road northwest; Mrs. Margaret Conner, of 1359 Rittenhouse street northwest, and Jamie Hagerman, of 3317 Newark street northwest.

WASHINGTON HOST TO FIRST DIVISION

Salvo at Fort Myer Today Opens Outfit's Twelfth Annual Reunion.

5,000 ARE EXPECTED

The twelfth annual reunion of the First Division, American Expeditionary Forces, will be opened at 6:05 o'clock this morning with the firing of a three-round salvo at Fort Myer by Battery C, of the Sixth Field Artillery, the outfit that fired the first shot by American troops in the World War, at exactly the same time in 1917.

The reunion, which will be under the auspices of the District chapter of the First Division, is expected to draw about 5,000 delegates to Washington. Headquarters will be at the Willard Hotel.

Registration and group meetings of the several regiments will occupy today's program. Tomorrow the delegates will go to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and on Saturday they will journey to Mount Vernon.

Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock a ceremony will be held at the First Division Monument, just south of the State, War and Navy Building. The convention will conclude with a banquet Saturday night.

Salesmanship Is Urged To Cure 'Bad Times' Talk

Persistent and intelligent salesmanship on the part of business men will aid in the dissipation of current talk about "bad times," Edward M. Johnson, of Syracuse, N. Y., told the Washington Lions Club at its luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday.

Guy W. Leadbetter, president of the club, presided. A report was submitted on plans for the ladies' day meeting next Wednesday.

The MAN in the GREEN HAT

George L. Cassiday Tells His Own Story of

BOOTLEGGING ACTIVITIES ON CAPITOL HILL

During three administrations Washington newspaper readers have heard about the "man in the green hat." They have been familiar with this mysterious figure as the official bootlegger of Capitol Hill . . . Now, the real story is to be told—to shed a new and astonishing light upon prohibition enforcement conditions and to reveal the attitude of many Senators and Congressmen in relation to the Eighteenth Amendment.

BRITAIN'S POLICY HIT BY JEWISH COUNCIL

Votes to Reject Statement and Joihn Weizmann in Palestine Protest.

PLEDGE VIOLATION CITED

Jerusalem, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The Jewish National Council voted unanimously tonight to reject the British statement of policy for Palestine and decreed against participation in the proposed legislative council.

The British proposal, the council declared after an eight-hour session, is calculated "to end the building up of the Jewish national home."

Another resolution voted for participation in the protest of Dr. Chaim Weizmann against what he charges is the British government's breach of promise to the Jews.

Violation of Pledge Claimed.

While two revisionist members and M. M. Ushishkin, head of the Jewish National Fund, abstained from voting on the resolution not to participate in the legislative council, the revisionists concurred in the resolution rejecting the government's statement.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency says the proclamation asserts the British government's declaration violated the historic pledge the British people assumed with regard to the Jews. The statement, the Jewish National Council charges, is "barren of constructive phrases and vitiates the undertaking regarding the Jewish national home which was given to the entire Jewish people, and not only to the Jewish community of Palestine."

"The national home without immigration and land is a cruel jest and political hypocrisy," the statement continues. "The Jewish community in Palestine rejects the statement and hopes that the government does not express in this case the will of the British people. The right to constitute the Jewish national home was confirmed by the League of Nations and the United States and reaffirmed by all British governments since the Balfour declaration.

Cooperation With Arabs.

"The Jewish community in Palestine will not take any part in parliamentary institutions calculated to arrest the establishment of the Jewish national home. The prosperity and progress of the Arab population is more linked with Jewish immigration and colonization than with all the activities of the British administration.

"We consider cooperation with our Arab neighbors the most faithful guarantee for the continued prosperity of the peace of the country. We appeal to the English people and the entire civilized world to vindicate our rights, and we urge the Jewish people in all countries to stand fast."

The Arabs here have not yet taken a stand on the British report.

Trio in Chicago Cleared In Murder of Buckley

Chicago, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Failure of Detroit police to identify three prisoners of the Chicago police today cleared the trio of suspicion of connection with the murder of Gerald E. Buckley, Detroit radio announcer.

Police Sergt. O'Day, of Detroit, said he was satisfied the trio knew nothing of the Buckley slaying.

Joseph "Eaglebeak" Miller and Al Bernstein were arrested Monday on suspicion. In Miller's room police found a revolver and a woman, who was also arrested. They were held on burglary charges.

Pay Rise for MacDonald Urged.

London, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—A House of Commons committee appointed several months ago to study "ministers' remuneration" has in its report recommended an increase in salary for the prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, of from the equivalent of $25,000 annually to $35,000.

Macfarland Community to Sponsor Little Theater Organization.

A Little Theater group has been organized at the Macfarland Community Recreation Center among adults in the community interested in amateur drama. The first meeting will be held at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at the Macfarland Community Center.

Persons interested in acting, stage designing, costuming, stage lighting, play reading, and all the technical branches of the modern theater have been invited to enroll. Work will begin on one-act plays, one of which will be entered in the annual tournament sponsored by the Community Drama Guild in February.

Ruth Harsha McKenzie, a professional player and director, will direct the new drama group. A graduate of the University of California, she has been associated with repertoire and stock companies for the past ten years. Last year she studied at the Yale Theatre under George Picer Baker.

Severing's Naming In Prussia Hailed

Berlin, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—All but extremist circles agreed today that appointment of Carl Severing, former Reich Minister of Interior, as Prussian Minister of Interior had put the right man in the right place.

Government circles considered the appointment a personal victory for Premier Braun of Prussia, and as additional security for the political bonds uniting Prussia and the Riech.

Among socialists and communists Herr Severing's return to office was interpreted as a sign that the middle parties are thoroughly frightened at the turn of events, and as a sheer provocation calculated to add fuel to flames of discontent with the present regime.

Coat Firm Head Shot; Assailant Gets Away

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—A man entered the office of the Katz Coat Co., on the eighth floor of a building in the congested garment center today, fired two shots at Louis Katz, the proprietor, wounding him seriously, and escaped by way of a freight elevator.

Police reinforcements were called to disperse a crowd which gathered in Thirty-ninth street about the entrance to the building as news of the shooting spread. Some of the Katz employes said that they believed their employer's assailant was a man who formerly worked in the place.

Two Hurt as Bomb in Mail Explodes.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Detective Grills Own Wife In Slaying of His Daughter

Despite Alleged Failure of Quiz, Denver Police Intend to File First Degree Murder Charge Against Mrs. O'Loughlin in Ground Glass Killing.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Forsaking the role of husband for the moment, City Detective Leo O'Loughlin late today cross-examined his wife, apparently without success, in an effort to obtain more information of the mysterious slaying of the officer's 10-year-old daughter.

Despite indicated failure of the questioning, admittedly a last effort to obtain a confession from the stepmother, Bert Clark, detective captain, said that first degree murder charges would be filed against Mrs. O'Loughlin.

Details of the examination were kept secret. It was the first time the detective had met his wife, Pearl, since the body of his daughter, Leona, was found a week ago in a city park lake. The woman, who has been held several days, has steadily asserted her innocence.

The day before the child disappeared the officer was taken to a hospital suffering from what later was diagnosed as illness resulting from eating ground glass. An autopsy proved that the child also had eaten particles of glass and been struck on the head before being placed in the water.

Two family pets, a dog and cat, also died from effects of glass they had swallowed.

Another suspect in the case, an unidentified man, was arrested today by investigators for the district attorney. He was questioned, but was placed in jail without his name being divulged.

In continuation of their efforts to obtain more information from Mrs. O'Loughlin, police took her to a mortuary last night and confronted her with the body of her foster daughter.

Britain Names Cripps As Solicitor General

London, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The Hon. Richard Stafford Cripps, son of Lord Parmoor, today was appointed solicitor general to succeed Sir James Melville, resigned.

Reign of Terror Is Laid to Sheriff

New Mexico Officer Held Aid of Gamblers in Ouster Fight.

Gallup, N. Mex., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Charges that Sheriff R. L. Roberts has been conducting a terrorist regime in McKinley County were contained in ouster proceedings filed today by District Attorney Jack Kenney. The complait alleged the sheriff "has built around himself an organization of bootleggers and thugs which have terrorized the City of Gallup."

Included in the charges are allegations that Sheriff Roberts has worked in "close harmony" with bootleggers and gamblers; that he has been "drunk and intoxicated in public places," and has fought with citizens on the streets.

Another charge was that Roberts made deals with prisoners sent to the county jail and that immediately after the release of such prisoners, Roberts deputized them and added them to his staff. The sheriff, a Republican, was defeated for renomination at the recent primary.

Easy to look at

WHY are Camels welcomed with cheers in any company—a twosome or a crowd? Because they're mild—not flat or tasteless but naturally mild. They have the marvelous aroma that only choice tobaccos, mellowed by golden sunshine, then expertly cured and superbly blended, can give a cigarette. There's nothing artificial about this delightful fragrance. No doctoring, no over-processing can produce it. Camel's refreshing mildness is there from the start.

Swing with the crowd to Camels. Learn the happy difference between true mildness and insipid flatness. Smoke without fear of throat-discomfort or after-taste—just for pleasure!

Mrs. Bullock And Gen. Poore Are Married

Retired Officer to Live In Bay State After Visit Here.

MAJ. GEN. BENJAMIN A. POORE, U. S. A., retired, and Mrs. Flora B. Bullock, of Fitchburg, Mass., were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride at 30 Prospect street, Fitchburg. The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock and was attended by a number of friends. Mr. Richard Bullock, son of Mrs. Bullock, was the best man.

Gen. Poore will bring his bride to Washington for a visit of a few weeks during which time they will occupy Gen. Poore's apartments at Tilden Gardens where he has made his home for some time. They then will return to Fitchburg, where they will make their home.

Mrs. Poore, who has been a lifelong friend of the general and his family, always has made her home in Fitchburg, which is also the old home of the Poore family. When Gen. Poore, then Lieut. Poore, married Miss Carlton of Salem, in 1888, Mrs. Bullock served as bridesmaid at the wedding.

Mrs. Benjamin Mauborgne, daughter of Gen. Poore, and wife of Lieut. Col. Joseph O. Mauborgne, who lives on Connecticut avenue, was unable to attend the wedding. Col. Poore has two other daughters, Mrs. Donald O. Robinson, wife of Col. Robinson, of Fort Huachuaca, Ariz., and Mrs. Lawrence Bolte, wife of Capt. Bolte, of Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Gen. Poore has engaged in active warfare during a great part of his Army service. He engaged in the Aisne-Marne offensive and defensive in the World War and also in the siege of St. Mihiel and the offensive in the Meuse-Argonne. Later he was with the Army of Occupation in Germany. Outstanding in his record are the engagements in the Philippines, where he commanded a detachment at Guin-Tabuan.

The general was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and the Distinguished Service Cross and two War Department citations. He is an officer of the French Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre wit palm and of the Italian Croce di Guerra al Merito. He is a member of various clubs, including the Army Club, the Army and Navy Club and the Army Navy and Marine Corps Country Club of Washington.

Ambassador of Peru Entertained in New York.

The Ambassador of Peru, Senor Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander, was guest of honor at a luncheon on Tuesday given by the Pan American Society at India House in New York, when more than 100 members and guests of the society welcomed him upon the occasion of his first address in New York since assumption of office as ambassador.

The Postmaster General, Mr. Walter F. Brown, will fly in the first plane leaving the Newark, N. J., airport on Saturday morning, going as far west as Columbus, Ohio. Two officials accompanying him will be Mr. W. Irving Glover, Assistant Postmaster General in charge of air mail, who will go on to St Louis, and Mr. Earl Wadsworth, superintendent of the air mail service, flying to Kansas City.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilton J. Lambert have returned to Washington and have opened their house here for the winter, after having been away since June. They spent some time at Atlantic City, and in July visited their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Baker, at their summer home at Chaumont, N. Y. The remainder of the summer they were at Swampscott, Mass., as is their custom.

Mrs. Ella Herbert Micou will entertain at a tea for the sponsors of the Society of the Navy tomorrow at 3:30 o'clock. Mrs. Russell Langdon, who is president of the society, will be the guest of honor. There will be a business meeting held before the tea to arrange the programs of entertainment for the season.

The daughter of the late Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Hilary A. Herbert, Mrs. Micou's interest naturally lies in that direction and she generally lends an active support to navy projects furthered by the society.

Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Dales have closed their summer cottage at Haven, Me., and have returned to their apartment in Wardman Park Annex for the winter.

Mrs. Walter Tuckerman entertained at a box party yesterday afternoon at the Shubert-Belasco Theater to see Ted Shawn and the Denishawn dancers. Mrs. Tuckerman's guests were Senora de Alfara, Mme. Prochnek, Mrs. Guy V. Henry, Mrs. Frederick Atherton, Mrs. Joseph Davies and Mrs. James Carroll Frazer.

Miss Swink Married To Mr. A. G. Stevens.

Miss Mary Lois Swink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Swink, and Mr. Alla Gray Stevens, son of Mr. E. B. Stevens, were married last night at 7:30 o'clock in the Hamline Methodist Episcopal Church, where a large assemblage of friends and relatives was present. The Rev. Dr. Chesteen Smith performed the ceremony.

The bride wore an ivory satin gown made on princess lines with a tight bodice fashioned with a becoming neckline and long, close-fitting sleeves, the skirt falling to the ankles in front and continuing to a long train. The veil, of ivory tulle, was caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of cream roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Susie Kirby, the maid of honor, was in golden brown transparent velvet with a tricorne hat of velvet trimmed with bow of moire ribbon that matched the gowns worn by the bridesmaids. She carried yellow chrysanthemums and talisman roses. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Frank Geicker, of Fairfax, Va.; Miss Evelyn Follin, of Fairfax; Miss Virginia Byrnes, of New Haven, Conn., all cousins of the bride; Miss Essley Thrift, Miss Edith Long and Miss Eleanor Hopkins, all of Washington. They wore moire taffeta, three maids in pale capucine and three in burnt orange tones, their hats made of velvet with large bows matching the honor maid's gold brown dress.

The best man was Mr. J. Darley. The ushers were Mr. Frank Diecker, Mr. Paul Main, Mr. Ernest Graves, Mr. Patrick Bradley, Mr. Gwinner Miller and Mr. James Kline.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens left later for a motor trip through New England and Canada. After November 15 they will be at home at 135 Longfellow street.

Ocean Liners Have Several Capital Folk

East, West Bound Ships See Passengers From Washington.

Incoming and outgoing passenger lists of large liners arriving in and departing from New York yesterday read like a section of the Washington social register and the diplomatic list combined.

Among those disembarking from the French steamship Ile de France were the Ambassador to France, Mr. Walter E. Edge, and Mrs. Edge and their children, and Judge John Barton Payne, chairman of the American National Red Cross, who came directly to his home in Washington. He attended the Red Cross conference in Paris, where he spent five weeks. Mr. Chao Chu Wu, the Chinese minister; Brig. Gen. Charles H. Sherrill and Mrs. Orme Wilson were also on board.

The Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Wilbur J. Carr, and Mrs. Carr arrived on the North German Lloyd liner Europa which docked yesterday. They have been traveling in Europe for the past two months. Mr. and Mrs. Carr will come to Washington today and will be in their new home at 2300 Wyoming avenue.

Among the other interesting passengers on the same ship was Mr. Harry Lang, commissioner of the United States Shipping Board.

Mrs. Truman J. Newberry, wife of the former Secretary of the Navy, and Gen. James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, were on the Olympic.

Haworths Entertaining Guests From Wichita.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Haworth have as their guests the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Stodder, of Wichita, Kans., who motored here with Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Coleman, also of Wichita.

Commander and Mrs. Harvey Delano will have as their guest for a week the latter's sister, Mrs. Howard Fleeson, of Wichita, Kans., who will arrive in Washington on Sunday, November 2. Mrs. Fleeson with Mr. Fleeson, is now in New York, where they are passing several weeks. They are attending a number of the football games at New Haven before coming to Washington. Mr. Fleeson is a graduate of Yale. He will return to Kansas from New York when Mrs. Fleeson comes here.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Gallagher entertained at a bridge party on Tuesday evening at Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Shelton have moved from Wardman Park to their new apartment in the Shoreham Hotel, where they will make their home during the coming season.

Mrs. McFeat Will Return To America

Former Irish Diplomat Plans to Apply for Citizenship.

The news from London which indicates that Mrs. Matthew McFeat, former Secretary of the Irish Free State Legation, will return to this country to take out citizenship papers, is received with interest by the many friends she made while detailed here.

Mrs. McFeat, the only woman ever accredited to Washington as diplomat, is pining for the United States and plans to come back after an absence of several years. She was attached to the legation during the regime of the former minister, Mr. Timothy Smiddy, present Irish commissioner in London, and first Irish Minister to the United States.

Mrs. McFeat was christened "Agnes," but having an aversion to the name, was known to her friends as "Pat." Her husband, the late Col. Matthew McFeat, was one of the casualties of the World War, dying with his entire regiment in one of the battles of the western front. After the war, Mrs. McFeat was induced by her friends to embark upon a diplomatic career, and after an apprenticeship in London, was sent to Germany in the first British diplomatic mission after the signing of the peace pact.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

IF successful, how could the synchronization scheme outlined to the Radio Commission by M. H. Aylesworth, of the National Broadcasting Co., better conditions in Washington? The gist of what he said was that a system perfected by C. W. Horn, chief engineer, made it feasible for two or more stations to broadcast the same program at the same time on the same frequency.

Thus where two or more frequencies, or channels, were heretofore required it is now believed possible to accomplish the same results on one frequency. In Washington the N. B. C. through Station WRC has coverage from one network only, with two hours or so in the early evening set aside for local programs.

If a "booster" transmitter such as Mr. Horn mentions were set up in the Capital, bringing to us the WJZ national program, a listener could turn to WJZ's frequency on his dial and hear this program, or he could, by twirling the dial to the regular WRC frequency, receive local entertainment.

If there were likewise a booster transmitter for WEAF in this locality, every listener could have both network programs in addition to local, where he now has but one N. B. C. choice.

THIS is of particular interest to listeners having cheaper sets, for those having superheterodynes or more selective sets can already tune in WJZ or WEAF. Also, if the WEAF programs were brought into Washington by wire and broadcast from here with 50,000 watts power, Baltimore would also be adequately served. As it is now, Baltimore only gets the WJZ programs.

Since the Horn synchronization plan apparently has no strings to it and is to be offered to everybody, Columbia could put in a "booster" in Washington for WABC, leaving WMAL free to handle local programs exclusively, thus giving the District the full Columbia national programs where now we get only a part of them.

However, Columbia's problem is not quite the same as the N. B. C. because they have only one network and if they could buy or acquire an interest in WMAL, which they would still like to do, the single station would answer their purpose.

Getting back to the N. B. C. it is just possible the next step may be the experimental synchronization of Stations WEAF, in New York, and WRC, in Washington, both owned by them, or WEAF, WRC and WTAM, Cleveland, the latter recently leased.

THE audience is pressed into service when Norman Brokenshire directs the Schwartz Radio Follies Friday night (WMAL—10 p. m.). At a signal from him it applauds or chorties loudly—as he previously instructs them, "whether you like it or not."

The Follies stars tomorrow night will be Robert Chisholm, formerly of "Luana," and Alice Boulden, "Fine and Dandy."

The novelty having worn off of reaching remote parts of the earth, radio amateurs with short-wave receivers are now trying to pick up rebel stations in Brazil.

ONE plan, when Amos 'n' Andy plug their new picture, during the R-K-O Hour tomorrow night (WRC, 10:30), is, at the conclusion of the skit, to have them talk to the audience in their every-day conversation. If they do, it will be the first time in years the boys have appeared over the air out of character.

They presented themselves in white face at the White House newspaper correspondents' dinner here last winter, and the next day at Walter Reed Hospital put on a number of original stunts, none of which included negro dialect, any one of which was good enough, in the opinion of this writer, to carry a vaudeville skit.

Their appearance tomorrow night will be in addition to their regular Amos 'n' Andy period at 7 p. m.

The announcer giving the "correct" time over WRC at 7 o'clock Tuesday night was only fifteen minutes off.

BECAUSE he has a Scotch control engineer in the morning and another in the evening, Phil Cook must avoid Scotch jokes. Each has sworn to cut Phil off the air immediately if he starts one.

Jane Corbett INTERPRETS the MODE

An unusual negligee deftly combines red and pink satin. (Courtesy of Marynowitsky, Paris.)

IT is said that Polycrautus, the ancient tyrant of Samos, fearing that the gods were hostile to him, decided to offer them what he treasured most.

No, it wasn't a lovely lady, but an emerald ring, which he threw into the sea. Maybe it was just as well, for the next day the emerald reappeared in the gullet of a fish he was going to eat, and it was supposed from this sign that the gods were propitiated.

Now, I ask you, just in an effort to be funny, of course, suppose it had been a lovely lady he treasured more than an emerald ring?

And, oh yes, didn't they clean fish bfore they cooked them in those days?

It hasn't any business in a fashion column, but I just can't help giving three cheers in capital letters for Liu-Man-Chin, the Chinese girl who, alone except for a few servants, made one of the severest journeys in the world, half way across Asia from Nanking to the capital of Tibet on a diplomatic mission which she carried through with complete success in the face of terrific dangers and hardships. The weaker sex, you know!

Every time I attended a carnival or Mardi Gras last year in Europe, and there were several, I kept my eye open for unusual and interesting costumes to tell my dear public about. So now that Halloween parties are in the offing I knew you'd be interested in a leaflet of them, so it's made and waiting for your stamped, self-addressed envelope mailed to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. These aren't especially for Halloween parties, these costumes, you know, but for any costume party at any time of the year—so you'd better send for the leaflet just to look them over for ideas if nothing else.

Speaking of looking them over for ideas if nothing else, may explain to you why I keep on trying to sketch the gorgeous colors of Marynowitsky creations in cold black and white! I know it can't be done, as in today's tea gown which dared to combine certain shades of red and pink satin, and did, so very successfully.

Some day I promised to tell you more about not packing pleats. If you simply can not avoid it, then be sensible and sew all of your pleats in place with a basting thread before packing. Then you can iron them yourself under a thin cloth, dampened, and take out the bastings after they are ironed.

The prediction that lace mittens would return to favor has not been fulfilled, except for the occasional "personality frock" of no great importance. Yet tightly fitted lace over milady's pretty skin continues to intrigue her, for although safely out of sight, or presumably so, she is wearing black lace stockings with her evening gowns.

And some embroidered stockings, too, which, by the way, must be worn with the very simplest of opera pumps, perhaps showing a distinctive buckle but nothing more in the way of trimming.

And remember, the weekly fashion letter in The Post every Sunday.

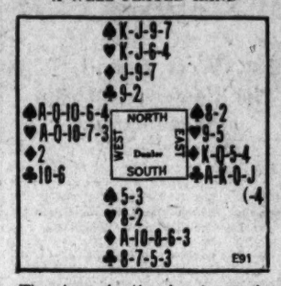
A WELL PLAYED HAND



The above Auction hand was played at the Chicago Auction Bridge Club. South dealt and passed; West bid one Spade, the higher-ranking of his two five-card suits; North passed and East, with great Club strength and no support for Spades, bid two Clubs. South passed a second time and West bid two Hearts. East now felt obliged to deny Heart support also, and showed a stopper in Diamonds by bidding two No Trumps which became the final declaration.

At Conract South would pass, West would bid one Spade, North would pass, and East would bid three Clubs which, being a jump-shift to another suit, would command West to keep the bidding open. This West would be glad to do by bidding three Hearts, after which East would bid three No Trumps.

South's opening lead was the Six of Diamonds. Dummy played the Deuce and North the Jack. Declarer could count eight sure tricks—five Clubs, one Spade, one Heart and one Diamond. To go game, one more trick must be made in Spades or Hearts; but either would involve a finesse and possible loss of the lead to North.

So North's Diamonds must be exhausted before he is allowed to obtain the lead and this can be accomplished by holding up. East played the Four of Diamonds to trick 1; and when North returned the Nine of Diamonds East played the Five and South the Trey which showed five cards in suit. North then led his remaining Diamond, the Seven; East played the Queen and South the Ace. At trick 4, South shifted to Spades, as he had no entry to cash his Diamonds after establishing them. Declarer played dummy's Ace; as the King of Spades probably was held by North, he dared not lose the lead until North's hand had been stripped of Clubs as well as Diamonds.

Five Club tricks were cashed, and at trick 10 the King of Diamonds led to squeeze North who so far had been guarding both major suits. Dummy had discarded his last Spade, but if North bared his King of Spades, Declarer would put him in with a Spade and make him lead Hearts up to the Ace-Queen in the dummy. His only chance was to unguard the King of Hearts, hoping that East would finesse the Queen and allow the long King to win. Declarer, however, read the situation correctly and played the Ace of Hearts, making game.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed rose. MRS. M. H.

I am sorry, but it is impossible to identify a rose from a withered blossom.

I have an Easter lily about to bloom. Please tell me what to do when the bloom is spent. Must I take the lily indoors over the winter? H. R.

After the bulb has finished flowering it must be allowed to ripen. When the leaves have all turned yellow, which occurs about six weeks after the flowers fade, lift the bulb and keep it over winter in a cool, dry place where the temperature does not go below 32 degrees F. Plant it in the open ground when the weather permits in the spring.

The inclosed leaves are from a pussy willow tree about 4 years old. The center of the tree seems to be dead, but the outer branches are very healthy. What do you suggest to remedy the unsightly condition of the tree? JEANNE D.

Perhaps if you prune away the dead portion of the tree the surrounding foliage will in time fill in the gaps and then the tree may develop into a shapely specimen. In so young a tree this should prove possible.

Please tell me the name of the bush from which the inclosed leaves were taken also tell me whether it is necessary to immediately transplant a potbound fern or must I wait until a certain season to do the work? MRS. H. L.

The bush from which the inclosed leaves were taken is a spirea prunifolia. A potbound fern should be transplanted at once. Use a soil composed of good garden loam, sand and manure equal parts or a soil of leafmold and good loam with a dash of sand for drainage.

An insect or crawler has attacked my sycamore tree. What do you suggest to use to get rid of the pest? ROSE McN.

Spray the tree with coated lead arsenate.

My English ivy is growing in a fernery in a sunny window. The leaves are gradually turning brown like the inclosed specimen. Please tell me what to do to save the vine. MRS. J.

Better remove all dead or dying leaves and remove the fernery to a less sunny place. A north window is an admirable place for an English ivy. In the future spray the foliage once a week with cold, soapy water. The vine has become attacked by the mealy bug.

I have a small cactus plant that is 5 years old, which so far has never bloomed. Can you tell me what to do for it? Please also tell me the name of the vine which blooms in June with a very large, deep purple flower. MRS. W. W.

A cactus is a slow grower and as a rule most varieties are shy bloomers. If the plant keeps green there is nothing you can do to hasten its blooming. Of course, it must not be overwatered and must have sun and fresh air at all times. The vine to which you refer is a clematis jackmanii.

Please tell me the proper care to give a spirea plant. I have attempted several times to grow this plant, but the foliage always turns brown and even the flowers soon wilt. The plant is kept in a partly shady place in my garden, fed bonemeal, and always watered regularly. MISS MARY Z.

As you state you are giving it the necessary water and shade, the soil conditions must be unsuitable. Better try incorporating some well-rotted manure with the soil, also apply a mulch of peat moss.

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA."

IF October 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m. and 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8:15 and 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

There will be more happiness than prosperity on this date. Toys of amusement will be much in evidence, and you will flit from objective to objective, snatching at the shadow and forgetting the substance. An uncertain evening, which will be full of startling surprises.

Children born on this October 23 will have rather selfish natures, astrological influences inclining them to be hard and somewhat careless as to the feelings of others. They will be self-reliant, industrious and ingenious. They should have good vitalities, and strong nerves.

An insight to your character may be gleaned through the things you do not do, and the characteristics which you do not possess. You never lose your temper, you never refuse to help a "down and outer," you never refuse to do a good turn, you never go back on a friend, and you never make an enemy. You are not a snob, you are not a bully, you are not a hypocrite and your are not a physical, moral or mental coward. You find that there is more profit in coaxing than in kicking—and more friends to be made through praise and flattery than through criticism or "slams." You halve your treasures and bear your troubles and losses alone.

You have too strenuous a soul to wish for cheap successes, and you are willing to place corner stones of sacrifice underneath the castles of your dreams. You do not dislike or try to evade the hours of tiresome work before you can receive the adulation of "the captains and the kings." The pronoun "I," however, does not predominate in your mind, nor drip from your tongue. You are interested in other people, in their hopes and ambitions, and in the general welfare of the world. Your city of happiness is found in your state of mind. You love tenderly, sincerely and loyally, and are faithful in your family life.

Successful people born October 23:

2—Adlai E. Stevenson—Vice President under Cleveland.
4—Frederick Southgate Bigelow—editor.
5—Mrs. F. N. Doubleday—("Neltje Blanchan") author.
6—Sarah Bernhardt—actress.

PICNIC SANDWICHES.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Cottage cheese makes a delicious sandwich filling for the picnic season. For sandwiches, moisten the cheese with sweet cream and flavor with a little chopped parsley, chopped or sliced olives, sliced celery, pimentos, horse radish, Spanish onion, pickles or nuts. Some persons like the flavor of caraway seeds in cottage cheese. This spread is equally good on white bread, rye bread, nut bread and brown bread. Other sandwich combinations suitable for picnics are as follows:

Cucumbers, sliced very thin, and spread with a little mayonnaise dressing. These are especially good on brown bread.

Cream cheese, ripe olives and nuts.

Chopped raisins, with nuts and lemon juice to season.

Butter mixed with strained honey.

Smoked fish, carefully picked over to see that no bones are left in.

Assolant's Wife Returns To U. S. to Await Decree

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The young woman from Winthrop, Me., who went to Paris as the wife of the transatlantic flier, Jean Assolant, returned to America on the Ile de France today to await a final decree of divorce from the French courts.

Mme. Assolant, who was Miss Pauline Parker before her sudden marriage to Assolant just before he took off in the Yellow Bird from Old Orchard, Me., in June, 1929, blamed her ignorance of the French language for her marital trouble.

Guiding Your Child

Health Precautions.

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Mothers today know a great deal about proper diet, health routine, and measures for guarding against infections. They know what to do, but often they are forced to admit that they do not know how to do it.

Knowing what food to give, they have difficulty in getting the child to accept it. Rushing for the mercurochrome to prevent infection, they precipitate a scene.

They find that their very anxiety to put to use the knowledge which they possess develops in the child a whole crop of fears and resistances, of undesirable emotional attitudes that defeat their worthiest intentions.

Many a child has become nervous, preoccupied with his physical self and fearful of ordinary risks simply because his parents injected an element of anxiety into the health routine.

Other children learn to use this parental apprehension as a means of getting attention or as a pretext for avoiding unpleasant situations.

A sane attitude toward his physical well being is so important to the individual that we can not afford to bungle our training of mental attitudes towards health.

Health precautions and proper diet can be effectively "put over" by the parent only if she is at least apparently unconcerned about them. Any sign of apprehension is sure to arouse an emotional response where little or none is desirable.

With ordinary good sense and tact it is possible to make a child accept disinfectants, precautions against contagious disease and routine measures of hygiene in a perfectly matter-of-fact way.

Dr. Sproul, 39, Heads California U.

Berkeley, Calif., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, 39, was installed as president of the University of California today. He is the youngest president in the university's history.

At 4 o'clock Sugar will help give you new Vigor

Wise indeed is the business man or woman who in mid-afternoon munches a piece of candy or takes "time out" for a moment for a sweetened drink. Such foods with their refined sugar content can do wonders in nourishing and thereby reviving a work-fagged body.

Scientists tell us that refined sugar cannot be matched by any other food product for quickness in nourishing the system. Its value, therefore, as presented in cookies, candy, milk drinks, tea or coffee, should not be overlooked. A glass of water sweetened with sugar has a remarkable revivifying effect.

These foods and beverages are readily accessible to the great majority of people in business.

Extensive experiments among office workers have proved that a sweet of some sort eaten in mid-afternoon renews vigor in a most speedy, satisfactory way. The Sugar Institute.

IT WAS LOCKED

By JOHN HAWK.

Robin Smith, young poet, accepts an invitation to a house party because Lady Gwendolen Winston, with whom he is desperately in love, will also be present. After quarreling with the Earl of Winston, Gwendolen's brother, and Donald Flint, her fiance, he locks the door of his bedroom and flees through the window back to his attic room. The Earl of Winston is missed, and on a search the earl's body is found under Robin's bed. The poet is arrested. Scotland Yard detectives return him to Alston Manor, the scene of the murder. He is questioned. The poet is held for the coroner's inquest. All the members of the house party give their testimony regarding the murder. Donald Flint, newly announced fiance of Lady Gwendolen is called to the stand.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER 13.

All necks are craned for a better view of the famous financier and newly-announced fiance of Lady Gwendolen. He is dressed in a stout Norfolk jacket and knickerbockers and looks more as if he were prepared for golfing than for the serious business of an inquest. His nonchalant detached air intensifies this impression. It is proving an exciting day for the twelve men of the jury. One they would talk of for years to come.

"I understand, Mr. Flint," the coroner resumes in his most gracious manner, "that you saw Lord Winston from the window after the other guests were assembled in the music room."

"I can almost swear I did. I was standing at a window which opens on the garden, when I caught sight of a tiny, flickering light, such as a cigarette would make if it were being smoked. Then I discovered in the dark a faint outline of a figure. I was about to say that it looked like Lord Winston, when a flash of lightning lighted up the garden and revealed to me very distinctly the figure of a man with head bowed, as if in thought. The back was turned to me, but the build was identical with Lord Winston, as far as I could judge."

"That is an important point," observes the coroner, addressing the jury, "for it almost certainly dates the murder as occurring after the guests had all reassembled in the music room, and would thus eliminate all the guests who were in the presence of each other up to the time the murder was discovered . . . or to within an hour of that time, as the doctor fixes the time of the death at about 10 o'clock on the fatal night."

While the coroner is speaking, Robin feels all eyes turning in his direction. He lowers his eyes, and tries to bear the scrutiny as if he were not aware of it. This new evidence is to him the worst blow of the morning, for he had overlooked the matter in preparing himself for the ordeal. He had entirely forgotten Donald Flint's calling out that he saw Lord Winston until he was reminded of it so rudely. How did the coroner know so much before hand? Robin is troubled.

Mr. Flint next verified his fiancee's evidence as to the inconsequential nature of the difference which occurred between Robin Smith and Lord Winston, due to the poet's impetuosity in coming to Lady Gwendolen's defense. And after confirming the evidence of the other guests, the coroner dismissed him with a gesture.

Prince Pozolevsky is next announced. He is only able to corroborate the testimony of those who had gone before him. He, as Mr. Flint, had been a stranger to the dead man, the coroner observes, and it is therefore natural that he should know little of the unfortunate occurrence.

The thin white hands of the prince work nervously behind his back as he replies to the formal questions, but he answers collectedly enough. Only Bruce Armstrong seems to watch the thin white hands. And as he watches them he frowns.

The inquest proceeds. Robin finds himself growing more and more restless and impatient. Impatient for what? he asks himself ironically. The rope? He daren't think of it! He could never get through the morning like a man if he did.

Miss Hadden is called, and her testimony proves as meager as that of the two men who had preceded her. Next comes Andree. When the coroner's now familiar voice calls "Lady Opie," Robin looks up with interest. She is his friend, yet she, even as those thirteen men who would listen so carefully to her words, believes him guilty. Would they know how she felt? He wondered. Would it make them all the surer because she, his friend, thought so, too?

"I understand, Lady Opie," commences the coroner, "that you and Mr. Smith have been acquainted for some years. Now I want to know if he was to your knowledge in the habit of taking French leave in the manner he did on that fatal night?"

"I never knew of his doing it."

"You think ordinarily he would leave by the door, not by the window?"

"Oh, yes!"

"Then something unusual must have happened on that night to make him choose the window. Do you know of any unusual happening which might account for it?"

"No, I do not." Her voice is very even; there is a slight hesitation every time she speaks, and she enunciates her words slowly and carefully, as if she gave thought to her answer. When a nod from the coroner dismisses her, a look of relief comes into her face. Robin is quick to notice it, although the others do not seem to see anything out of the ordinary. He can not help wondering why she should be so relieved. It is odd. It makes him wonder if she knows something, something which might help him, but which she does not want or does not dare to tell. He desperately wishes he knew.

"Mr. Armstrong!"

How the twelve necks in the twelve chairs stretch when this name is called! Who among them had not heard of Bruce Armstrong, the famous explorer, who had dared more and suffered more than almost any other man of his time? Who among them had not looked at his picture in the illustrated papers and vicariously lived through his thrilling experiences? And here is the paragon before them in the flesh for them to feast their eyes on quietly and contentedly.

"I didn't know that he had such a big beard," murmurs one to his companion.

"Nor that he was so powerful a man," whispers another. "I'll bet you a quid that he'd tip the scales at fourteen stone."

"The pictures in the papers don't give an idea of him!" observes a third.

"Now, Mr. Armstrong," the coroner's respectful voice breaks in on these whisperings, "I understand that you know more about the happenings of that fatal night than any of the other guests. Also that you have been acquainted with the dead man for many years. Now can you throw any new light on the tragedy?"

"I may be able to, and again I may not," is the quiet reply. "The last time I saw Lord Winston alive he was walking in the garden, smoking. That was before I went in and joined the others in the music room . . ."

"Allow me to interrupt you," says the coroner. "Would you first give the jury an idea of the conversation you had before you went into the garden?"

"I'm afraid I don't remember——"

"It had to do with a similar subject to the one now under investigation, I understand."

"Oh, you must be referring to my remarks about the fundamental similarity of civilized and jungle life." A curious half-smile played about the explorer's lips, as if he were amused at some secret thought.

"It is your views on murder that we want to get at."

"I don't know that I expressed any," is the cool reply.

"I understand you said that it was unreasonable that a man should be able to kill an enemy because he is a foreigner, and not your own personal enemy, and that Mr. Smith shouted, 'I agree!' Is that correct?"

Hats, Shoes and Handbags Have Own Style in Paris

Paris, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Hats, handbags and shoes have a little style entente of their own. They match, regardless of possible disagreement between coat and dress.

For sport and general utility some of the best dressed of the leaders here are carrying brown crocodile handbags and wearing brown crocodile shoes. Brown berets or felt hats with brims complete the trio.

Brown accessories are combined with greens and with the rich dark reds. But Paris is making crocodile accessories in red and green this winter for the people who prefer one color effects. When costumes are worked out in one color various combinations of materials provide contrast.

Black patent leather handbag, shoes and trimming touches are a favorite Parisian combination of accessories. Dressmakers here particularly like the combination of shiny leather with dull-surfaced broadcloth.

For formal afternoon costumes velvet hats, shoes and handbags are the last word in chic when combined with dull canton crepe or marocain. Black is the favorite.

Velvet shoes are distinctly for indoor wear.

Debutantes match pastel-colored velvet three-hole laced shoes to their five to seven long dresses. They carry velvet handbags of the same shade and wear large velvet hats or draped berets.

Mr. Goodyear Is to Marry Capital Girl

Miss Maxime B. Rolle Is to Have Attendants From Sorority.

At the wedding of Miss Maxine Frances Rolle and Mr. Augustus S. Goodyear, which will take place at Grace Lutheran Church on Wednesday, October 29, Miss Rosemary Arnold, of Washington, will be the maid of honor. Mrs. Floyd Bush will serve as matron of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Agnes Brown and Mrs. Ervin Johnson. All the attendants are members of Miss Rolle's fraternity, Sigma Kappa, of the George Washington University Chapter.

Mr. Goodyear will have his brother, Dr. Emil Goodyear, as best man and the ushers will be Mr. Floyd Bush, Mr. M. F. Hall and another brother, Mr. Frank Goodyear.

The ceremony will be performed by Col. Julian E. Yates, chaplain of the U. S. Army, assisted by the Rev. G. E. Lenski, pastor of the church, the service taking place at 7:30 o'clock.

Miss Rolle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. O. Rolle, of Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Robinson, of Los Angeles, Calif., entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton, where they are stopping while in Washington.

Miss Tobin Engaged To Mr. McCormick.

Mrs. Clement Tobin, of New York, now in California, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Aileen Tobin, to Mr. Ernest O. McCormick, jr., of San Francisco. Mrs. Tobin and her daughter divide their time between New York and California, and will return East early in November. The marriage will take place in the spring in California.

Miss Tobin is the granddaughter of Mrs. Eugene de Joly de Sabla, of New York, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tobin. She is a niece of the popular former American Minister to the Netherlands, Mr. Richard M. Tobin. She is a graduate of the Spence School and was presented to society two years ago.

Mr. McCormick is a son of Mrs. Ernest O. McCormick, of San Francisco, and the late Mr. McCormick, who was vice president of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Miss Mary Rose Norwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Norwood, of Sixteenth street, is visiting friends in Phillipsburg, Pa.

Mrs. Wilbur Keblinger entertained at tea on Tuesday at the Mayflower in honor of Col. and Mrs. Harry N. Cootes, of Fort Myer, Va. The company included Judge and Mrs. C. C. McChord, Mrs. Margaret Shuster, Mrs. Ormond M. Lissak, and Mr. and Mrs. Smith Bowman, of Sunset Hills, Va.

The Washington Chapter of the Mary Baldwin Alumnae Association will have as its guest of honor at the fall meeting Mrs. Constance Curry Carter, from Staunton, Va., general secretary of the alumnae association. Mrs. Keithly Wilson, of Charles Town, W. Va., and Mrs. Kate Danner Mahood will be hostesses at 518 Chatham Court, 1707 Columbia road northwest, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Ivitations have been sent out to all Mary Baldwin girls in Washington.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

"Women and Their Standards."

DEAR Miss McDonald: May we protest the statements of that perfect gentleman who wrote your column concerning the shortcomings of the weaker sex? He claims that women have no standard. What good would they do us if we did have them? Men refuse to live up to the standards that foolish women set. The glorious male has been strutting his stuff now for a thousand years and no one has thus far been able to stop him. A wife here, a sweetheart there, a platonic friend somewhere else. Where does a man get off to start laying down the law to woman? Who are they, to tell us what not to do. If we are at last doing as we very well please, just as they have been doing for years, is it up to them to wave flags over us or sing us to salvation?

Men make me sick. They always have. My father was one of these "do-as-I-say-not-as-I-do" moguls who pulled the wool over my mother's eyes for twenty years, but never for a moment fooled yours truly. I knew my mother had all the brains and all the morals in our family and at the age of 18 was turned out for saying so. I admit that "standards" are not my long suit. But I would consider myself above living with a hypocrite like my father. And I would not hide behind a marriage service if I knew my husband was not fit to live with. Like another of your correspondents in the column who believes she is crowned queen of May or something for living 30 years with a man she never loved.

Standards are difficult things to discuss. And they are funny things for any man under heaven to start discussing. The less the strong sex has to say about standards and morals and honor and honesty and all those expensive sounding things the better. They can't afford them and neither can a woman these days. We have learned not to have standards just as we have learned not to expect to fly. We have learned that we can't, and live. Women used to die of broken hearts because they had standards and husbands both and the two did not go together. Now we know better. We take the dear men as we find them. We accept their lies and their petty deceits and smile at them. Standards? What would a woman in this day and age do with her standards if she had a set?

Men had better be thankful instead of critical. Women give men a fair break today and the least the men can do is reciprocate. The less howling they do for standards the better for them. If women had standards men would have no wives.

FEMALE-and-THANKFUL.

This column is for you! Your experiences and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS.

MENTALITY OF WOMEN.

DR. MJOEN, chairman of the consultive eugenics commission of Norway, hopes for much from the entrance of women into public affairs, provided she can be properly educated and trained, and provided that she will specialize in racial and social hygiene. This is a field in which the male members of society have shown their utter incapacity as statesmen, politicians, legislators and administrators.

Dr. Mjoen quotes from a book on feminism by Prof. Weith-Knudsen that * * * "woman is less honest, less truthful than man; that she is imperious without ability; a family tyrant without proficiency; cavilling without sense of duty; is more antisocial and materialistic."

Dr. Mjoen does not agree with Prof Weith-Knudsen in all his assertions. He does not think that the mentality of woman is different from that of man, and that she should have different education and should undertake a different line of work. He holds that woman will always be inferior to man as heads of police departments, in engineering, navigation and political occupations; in professions calling for abstract reasoning, ability of observation and combinations.

"I admit the inferiority of woman in all tasks requiring physical strength and perseverance. On the other hand, she is more than a match for man in those vocations that call for mutative ability, talent for reproduction, patience, sensibility and maternal affection. She is superior in art and music.

"She has not a lower mentality, but another. We have no right to measure woman with a man's standard. There is no common standard. Woman has her own tasks and her own measures."

He is in favor of an education for women that differs from that of men.

Norway, thanks to three succeeding ministers for social affairs, Abrahamsen, Castberg and Petersen, has adopted a program for the education of woman which will fit her not only for the home, but also for public affairs. It trains in some twenty lines, many of which are in racial and social hygiene. Women who have had this training will be superior to men in administration and in legislation, particularly on subjects lying in those fields. Her natural superiority is supplemented by her greater capacity for training.

MAY BE AN INFECTION.

A Reader writes:

1. What is the normal temperature for a child of six years? My little boy has had a temperature of 98½ for about a year.

2. Is this a sign of tuberculosis? He eats well, sleeps well, and does not show any signs of fatigue. He is 46 inches tall and weighs 44½ pounds.

REPLY.

1. 98½.

2. It may be. It is probable he has some mild infection. Whatever it is he seems to be equal to handling it. My advice is to quit taking the temperature and quit worrying. Things will work out.

Many children have a little fever due to a mild infection. It is better for all parties that the mother should lose the thermometer or forget to use it.

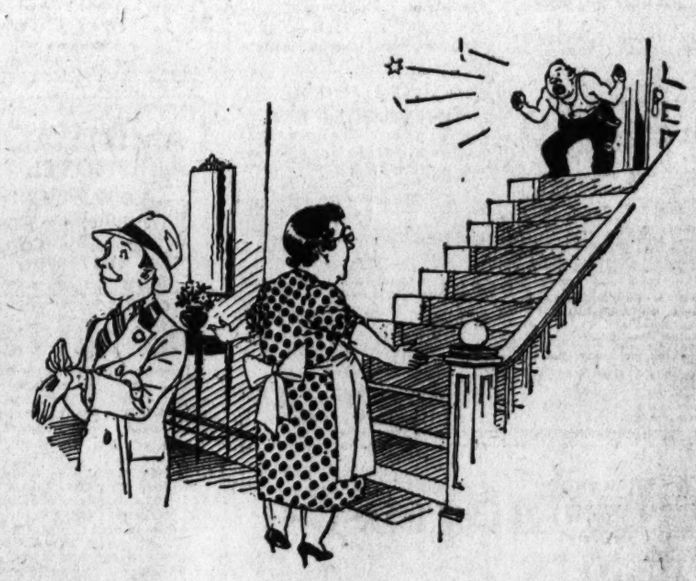
That boy has taken all the hot water



NOW, now, father . . . be yourself. Freddy had to take a bath before going out to his "frat" dance, but you can hardly blame him for that.

Just because there's no hot water for you to wash and shave in before going to your booster banquet you blame it on Sonnyboy. As a matter of fact isn't it your fault for not buying a Self-Action Storage Water Heater long before this?

At any rate, putting aside the question of blame, you can avoid the inconvenience of insufficient hot water in the future, by buying a Self-Action Water Heater today.

The cost of operation, with the new low gas rates, is just a few cents a day. We allow you $10 for your old heater. Five dollars down and the balance in 18 months will put a Self-Action Water Heater in your home.

Will Step Out Under $10,000 Bond if Other Charges Are Not Preferred.

EXCITEMENT DIES DOWN

Chicago, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The furore aroused by the chase and capture of George "Bugs" Moran, one of Chicago's most prominent "public enemies," died down today as it developed the former gang chief probably would be free again tomorrow.

Ever since the slaying of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter, Moran has been sought with great determination. Known as a foe of Al Capone, Moran was wanted for questioning regarding the reporter's death.

When Moran was arrested in Lake County yesterday excitement in police and gangster circles was at high pitch. The gangster was hurried to the Lingle investigation headquarters, where Pat Roche, chief State's attorney's investigator, interrogated him. At the finish of this inquisition Roche announced he had learned nothing. Moran had steadfastly denied any knowledge of the Lingle slaying.

As an anticlimax, Moran was taken to detective headquarters and booked on a charge of vagrancy. Moran nonchalantly denied any fear of such a charge. He was arraigned before John H. Lyle today. The judge ordered him held until 5 p. m. tomorrow, to give prosecutors time to file other charges against him if possible. If not, Moran will gain his freedom on a $10,000 bond.

Two Couples Killed In Automobile Crash

Salisbury, Conn., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Four persons met death and one other was slightly injured early today when their automobile crashed into a tree and caught fire.

The dead were: Helen Adams, of New Britain, instantly killed; Alfred Casey, of Canaan, died a few minutes after the sedan turned over; Robert Condon, of Canaan, died at a hospital, a few hours later of internal injuries, and Julia Regalli of New Britain, who was taken to the Sharon Hospital, where she died.

The party was returning from a dance. Police said all were in the early twenties.

$106,604 Tax Fraud Is Laid to Florida Man

West Palm Beach, Fla., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—D. F. Dunkle, former real estate operator, financier, and once mayor of West Palm Beach, was arrested and placed under $2,000 bond today on an indictment charging violation of the internal revenue act.

Dunkle, as secretary-treasurer of the Pinewood Development Co., together with two other officials of the concern, were named in a Federal indictment charging conspiracy to defraud the Government of $106,604.45 in income taxes. Pending arraignment of the other two, their names were not made public.

Galli-Curci Hurt In Motor Car Upset

Singer Is Bruised When Chauffeur Loses Control in Avoiding Collision.

Birmingham, England, Oct. 22 (A. P.).—Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci was badly bruised and suffered a severe shaking up near here tonight when the automobile, bearing among others the famous soprano and her husband, Homer Samuels, overturned. Their chauffeur swerved to avoid collision with another car and lost control.

The singer's car barely scraped past but overshot the road and somersaulted into a ditch. While every member of the party was badly shaken up none was seriously injured. A passing car picked up the soprano's party and brought them back to Birmingham.

Mme. Galli-Curci made light of the incident and announced she would carry out her program here Thursday night and all subsequent engagements.

Two Couples Stripped Of $64,000 in Holdup

Chicago, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Two couples were stripped of jewels valued at $64,000 today by three holdup men. The victims, George E. Crandell and Ralph Gardner, brokers, and their wives, were returning to the Crandell apartment.

As they stepped from a taxicab in the driveway of the building the robbers, displaying pistols, warned the women not to "scream or move." They took two rings, one valued at $30,000, a bracelet and necklace from Mrs. Crandell, and a $10,000 bracelet from Mrs. Gardner.

Spanish Fliers Receive Confinement Sentence

Madrid, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Maj. Ramon Franco and Capt. Ignacio Jimenez, noted Spanish transatlantic fliers, who have been imprisoned in the last few days on charges of violating the law prohibiting military men from writing or making political declarations, were sentenced today to two months and one month confinement, respectively.

Franco said that when his term expired he would leave the military service, adding that he did not care to support the present monarchy longer.

BOB VISITED PHOENIX GOING SOUTH, CLAIM

Newspaper Says Capitalist Was in City 48 Hours After Disappearance.

TRAVELED BY AIRPLANE

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The Phoenix Evening Gazette said today Charles V. Bob, New York and Chicago capitalist, visited Phoenix within 48 hours after he was reported missing from Chicago on October 5.

The newspaper said it learned from "an apparently reliable informant" of Bob's presence here in connection with the filing in the county recorder's office of a mortgage of $750,000 on the Westward Ho Hotel of Phoenix in favor of August Heckscher, of New York.

Bob is the principal stockholder of the Pacific Hotels Co., parent corporation controlling the Westward Ho. The mortgage, dated October 11, was signed by Walter J. Mellody, New York, secretary of the Pacific Hotels Co., and George Lindholm, resident manager of the Westward Ho and president of the company. Mellody's signature was attested by Louis G. Langer, notary public, New York City, and Lindholm's by W. S. Pickrell, Phoenix notary.

Pickrell said he knew nothing of the transaction except Lindholm appeared before him to have his signature attested. He said Bob did not appear. Lindholm said Bob, to his knowledge, had not been in Phoenix.

The newspaper's informant said Bob passed through the city by airplane "heading South for some point in South America," accompanied by Frederick J. Russell, his confidential secretary, and Dean Lamb, pilot.

Russell and Lamb were missed from Chicago when search was started for Bob by the New Yohk State Attorney general's office to question Bob concerning the affairs of the collapsed Metal & Mine Shares, Inc., and other Bob enterprises.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

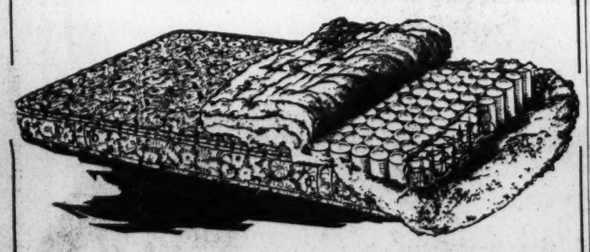
Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Old Mattresses Made Modern



THERE are thousands of people right here in the city of Washington who are being robbed of sleep by their mattresses.

Felt or hair mattresses in constant use will eventually "pack." Some develop a sink in the middle. They do not permit the body to fully relax.

There is one kind of mattress which does not pack and that is our Coil Spring Mattress shown above. We can make such a mattress out of your old one. We will take the old felt or hair and sterilize it—clean it—and use it as a covering for the resilient springs. The ticking will be new. There will be ventilators in the side. The mattress will be the equal of those costing $40.00, but by using the material in your old one the cost to you will be only $12.50 to $22.50.

Phone today for our van to call and submit samples of charming tickings from which to make your selection.

We specialize in beds and bedding that make for restful sleep. Simmons beds, wooden beds, springs, mattresses. Zaban's box springs and mattresses made to order at factory prices. Pillows and nursery equipment.

ONE OF TWO YOUTHS FOUND BURNING DIES

FROM NORTH CAROLINA

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Two wood choppers in lonely swamp lands by the Mississippi River today found two youths, bruised and beaten, burning alive in a mysterious brush heap fire. One of them died late today of a crushed skull and the other, still unconscious, has only a fighting chance to live.

Letters, a diary and an automobile key served as means of identifying the boy who died as Burton Hensley, 17 years old, and his companion, Woodrow Wilson, both of Bald Creek, N. C.

About a mile from the Arkansas approach to Harahan Bridge the wood choppers found Hensley with one side enveloped in flames and Wilson's feet nearly burned away. Had the choppers been a little later their find would have been only the ashes of a funeral pyre, the siftings from which likely would not have proved more mysterious than their actual find.

Physicians said the boys apparently had been beaten six or eight hours before.

Letters Signed Irene.

A salt shaker, dotted with blood stains, was found near the fire, but there was nothing else to indicate they had been camping. Neither had any money, and physicians at a Memphis hospital said both appeared to have been severely beaten.

The diary contained entries of an automobile journey, but there was no trace of an automobile.

The letters signed "Irene" were dated at Day Book, N. C. One was written October 16 and the other October 13.

"I miss you so. I sure wish I could be with you," one of the notes headed "In School" said. With the letters was a scrap of poetry.

Bald Creek, N. C., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Woodrow S. Wilson and Burton Hensley, reported victims of a mysterious attack near Memphis, Tenn., left their homes here October 14 in an automobile, relatives said today. The pair, both students in the local high school and of the same age, 17 years, first drove to Greenville, S. C., where they visited the former's father, M. M. Wilson, a textile worker.

After a short stay in Greenville, the youths visited relatives in Asheville Friday night. They left the next morning, saying they planned to return home. On Monday, W. M. Hensley, a farmer, received a card from his son which had been mailed in Asheville.

No other word was received from the boys until dispatches told of their being found in a camp fire near Memphis.

The writer of the letters to Hensley, signed "Irene," was said to be Miss Irene Peterson, a school girl of Day Book in this (Yancey) county.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT is doubtful if there has ever been a motion picture in the film history of the Capital that will have been so thoroughly premiered as "Check and Double Check," in which Amos 'n' Andy are about to crash the screens of the world, by the time it gets going on its regular all-day grind Saturday morning of this week.

Tonight it will be unreeled for the first time locally in compliment to the National Press Club in the RKO-Keith Theater beginning at 11:30 o'clock. Tomorrow night there will be another preview midnight performance at Keith's for which all seats will be reserved. In New York they have even gone us one better by building a new theater for this particular strip of gelatine.

It is Ace Berry, zone manager for Radio-Keith-Orpheum in the Washington territory, who relays word from Mark Luescher to the effect that the R-K-O Corporation has set Friday night, October 31, for the dedication of its new metropolitan playhouse, the RKO-Mayfair Theater, at Forty-seventh street and Broadway, with the first Goeden and Correll screen vehicle as the inaugural attraction.

This will be quite an event on Broadway. It will celebrate R-K-O's initial incursion into central Manhattan with a modern, well-equipped and commodious first-run outlet for its product, comparable with those of the other major producers of sound and talking pictures who maintain elaborate "show windows" at the crossroads of the world.

The RKO-Mayfair, adapted to the screen from the old Columbia—or am I wrong?—has been completed in record time. Work was started on the new house on March 28 of this year. The theater was designed by Thomas W. Lamb, architect and builder of the Tivoli and Ambassador Theaters in this city, and, if memory serves me correctly, of Loew's Palace. The capacity of the newest addition to Broadway's flash houses will be 2,300—which probably will not be large enough by half for the Amos 'n' Andy engagement.

New York need not feel too snooty, however. We have an opening coming off next week ourselves. Maybe reopening would be better.

At any rate, on Monday next the Little Theater on Ninth street—seating as many as the RKO-Mayfair, except for a paltry 2,000 odd—will again throw open its doors with a picture bearing the provocative title of "Unguarded Girls," presented by the same entrepreneurs who a few months ago were by way of making a record at the Little with an audacious bit of celluloid known as "Damaged Souls."

More important than the coming of the picture to the Little is the announcement that the reopening of the tiny house marks the first step toward a return to the film game of John J. Noonan, owner of the property, who, I am informed, will serve in an advisory capacity of one sort or another under the new management.

But there is likewise one we don't get. No sooner is Sam Jack Kaufman brought back to serve as master of ceremonies at the Fox—brought back on an Underwood No. 5, that is—than word is flashed from the offices of the local cathedral that the announcement was perhaps a trifle premature. Maybe 2, 4, 19 or 40 weeks too soon!

Mr. Kaufman, who practices his delsarte exercises while leading the band, has caught on like nobody's business in Detroit and will remain there indefinitely to charm the auto makers with his mesmeric batoning.

A phone call has just apprised me that Buddie Messinger, who once enjoyed a considerable vogue as one of the cinema's more precocious juveniles, and whose sister, Gertrude, also has won fame as a movie star, is making his temporary home in Washington and will be dropping by the office just about the time you finish reading this.

Pending Saturday, when the gossip will probably be ready to dish, you may be interested to know that Buddie's real name is Melvin Joy Messinger, that he holds a degree or two, plays the piano and has been a bit of a globe trotter, Chicago, New York, Spokane, Boston, Miami, Honolulu and Los Angeles having been among his various places of residence, in addition, of course, to San Francisco, where he was born. He entered pictures in 1915. I'll tell you later when he got out—if he did.

An extra shift of artisans, under the watchful supervision of practically the entire Loew technical staff—assembled from New York, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and points north, south, east and west—completed the installation of the "Realife" screen at Loew's Columbia Theater last night.

This is a silver sheet of the same full-proscenium proportions as the oversize screen sometimes used for special scenes at the Palace. There are, however, improvements that I am given to understand render the new Columbia equipment superior to any other ever revealed in this city. Mr. Cullen tells me, for example, that by new "heads" and special lenses on the projectors, "Realife" creates quite the illusion of a third dimension and proper perspective. Figures move about the fore, middle and back grounds in their proper proportions and altogether a swell job of realistic projection is made possible.

The new device is to be sprung upon an expectant and palpitant public in conjunction with next week's presentation of "Billy the Kid," supplanting "A Lady's Morals," come Saturday.

Mr. Cullen, who is too warm in a new camel's hair topcoat as I write this in an office registering an easy and suffocating 110 with the radiator shut off and the windows open, also tells me that Allan Rogers, the blond tenor who created so enthusiastic a following here upon the occasion of his first engagement as master of ceremonies at the Palace, is to return to the F street house when the m. c's are again made permanent on the Loew time.

Wesley Eddy is assigned to Jersey City and Ted Claire, also popular with the Palace clientele, goes to Pittsburgh. Baltimore, where stage shows are to be resumed November 1, after months of controversy with the musicians, is still to be filled.

As I get it, when the "permanency" of these first assignments shall have worn off, it will still be possible to get Wesley Eddy back for a try at his own record of 75, or 78, or whatever it was, consecutive weeks.

An ace in the hole, I believe they call it.

Or don't you play backgammon?

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—One evening during the world series Mr. Sam Breadon, the owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, told me of having met a young man from Mexico City who had come to this country authorized by his government to spend $1,000,000 for footballs, basket balls, and all manner of other athletic tools and equipment. So that the sales managers of sporting goods manufacturers who may be interested shall waste neither time, toils, nor stamps inquiring the name and probable whereabouts of this interesting customer, I will state that I do not know his name nor where he is likely to be found, but that Mr. Breadon does.

If this mention shall prove to be the first clew to a million-dollar sale, I shall be glad to accept a setting of golf balls from the successful bidder as my commission.

"This man tells me," said Mr. Breadon, "that the Mexicans have decided to go in for athletics for the masses as a means of diverting them from revolutions and other lawless and violent relaxations. Mr. Morrow, the ambassador, helped to stimulate this new interest in healthful recreations, and this young man advises me that within a few years the Mexicans will have quit shooting one another to devote themselves to American sports."

Mexican Government Deceiving Itself.

Considering the homicide rate in the United States particularly in the large cities where sport enjoys the status of a robust industry, the Mexican government would seem to be deceiving itself regarding the social effects of athletics. There is no more athletic nation in the world than the United States, the champion in golf, swimming, polo, rowing and most of track and field events, and yet it seems hardly correct to argue that preoccupation with and proficiency in sport bespeak a tranquil and law-abiding state of mind among the people.

My impression of Mexico has been derived from the news of the long series of revolutions dating from the time when Porfirio Diaz retired, and I realize, of course, that it probably is a distorted notion. But it is the only impression I have and it reveals ragged bands of brave, credulous peasants marauding, fighting, melting away, and the survivors re-forming into other bands, ad infinitum, always with the illusion of freedom as the motive. These Mexicans were very ignorant and simple, but they loved liberty and demanded high standards of honor and patriotism in the high places.

Consequently when they were called upon to turn out any particular set of rascals at any particular time, they hopped upon their horses, or stole horses to hop upon if they had none of their own, and rode away to turn the rascals out by the most direct and effective method.

Rascals Eliminated Permanently.

This way of doing gave Mexico a bad name for a long time, but it had this advantage: that it tended to eliminate a great many rascals in a permanent way, by contrast with the American method, which only suspends their prerogatives temporarily, if at all. My conception of Mexican political life may be inaccurate, but it occurs to me that if the same simple political remedies existed in the United States, the cities of Chicago and New York, for instance, would have been relieved of certain embarrassments a long time ago.

Possibly other embarrassments would have acceded to important offices immediately, but frequent repetition of the treatment in time would have inspired the ultimate occupants of these places with a zeal for duty and the public weal. In a situation like the present one in New York City the simple, nonathletic Mexican doubtless would have burned Tammany Hall, executed several eminent jurists and some minor statesmen in City Hall Park and installed new officers, subject to the same brusque system of recall. Naturally, a few regrettable errors would have occurred, but these, in time, would be counterbalanced by the gain in official probity.

Benefits of Sports In U. S. Uncertain.

This is not to argue for the substitution of violence for the orderly processes of law, but I do not see that the North American passion for games has conferred an unmitigated benefit in the social and political life of the country. It has tended to improve the American physique, but the ideal of sportsmanship seems too fine for practical effect in the situations which arise in Government.

It is inconceivable that Al Capone should have lived as long as he has, living as he has. If he had been a Mexican, some neighborhood leader, becoming impatient and indignant, would have rallied the citizens of his block, there would have been a fight and Mr. Capone would have been expunged long ago.

The American, however, occupies himself with his golf or spends his spare time at the ball yard or football stadium, leaving the execution of justice and other public problems to officers who know he is thus occupied

Tilden Is in Serious Danger of Losing No. 1 Place.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The problem of making up the American tennis ranking list for 1930, with the scrambled results of the season's tournament play to work on, has prompted the ranking committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association to start its work weeks earlier than usual.

The task has not been lessened by a change in the chairmanship of the ranking committee, placing the responsibility upon Dr. Philip B. Hawk, who already is chairman of the men's national championship committee of the U. S. L. T. A. and chairman of the tournament's committee of the West Side Club, Forest Hills. The former chairman of the ranking committee, William M. Fischer, resigned in midsummer upon taking up tennis instruction.

If Dr. Hawk's present plans work out, he will hold a meeting of the national committee on or about November 17, in New York, two months in advance of the annual meeting of the association, in order to whip the rankings into shape. Meanwhile he has called for the rankings of the fourteen sectional associations of the U. S. L. T. A. as a basis for the main job.

"Big Bill" Stumped On Home Courts.

For the first time since his suspension nearly pushed him from the top of the list a few years ago, Big Bill Tilden is in danger of being deposed from the No. 1 position he has occupied for ten successive years. Taking into consideration his play abroad, where he won the Wimbledon crown and scored America's only Davis Cup triumph, Tilden well might be kept at the top, but he slumped on home courts, losing to Frank Shields at Southampton, defaulting to Cliff Sutter at Rye, and losing to Johnny Doeg, the new national champion, in the semifinals of the national championship.

On the other hand the inconsistency among younger rivals of "Big Bill" mitigated against the selection of any one of them to displace him.

Doeg, by winning the national doubles with George Lott and then sweeping through the national championship field, defeating Tilden and Frank Shields in the semifinals and finals, compiled the most impressive record at home.

Allison Beat Cochet, Doeg at Wimbledon.

Wilmer Allison defeated Henri Cochet and Doeg at Wimbledon, but lost to Sidney Wood at Southampton and to Shields at Forest Hills. Wood beat Shields at Southampton, but lost to the latter in the nationals.

Other rising young stars who will be candidates at least for positions well up in the "first ten" include Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, sensation of the early tournament season; Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, the national clay-court champion, and Clifford Sutter, of Tulane, the new intercollegiate title holder.

Canadian Race Betting Falls Off $7,573,699

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Betting at Canadian race tracks in 1930 fell far below the level of 1929, according to figures released today. During the 332 days racing this year the total amount wagered was only $38,007,146 compared with $45,580,845 during 335 days of racing in 1929. The decrease was $7,573,699, or 17 per cent.

Uruguayan Soccerists To Invade U. S. Again

Montevideo, Uruguay, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Uruguay, champion nation of the world in soccer football, will send a team to the United States this winter.

Peru also will be included in the itinerary of the Bellavista Football Club, which is to leave here December 3 for Lima, and play several games there and then go on to the United States to meet leading American aggregations. The tour was authorized today by the Uruguayan Football Association.

When a Uruguayan National Soccer Team toured the United States in 1927 the trip was marred by free-for-all fights and rioting. A police riot squad was needed to end a melee on March 27, 1927, at Newark, N. J.

Two women and two Boston players were hurt in a riot at a game between Uruguay and Boston at Malden, Mass., April 19, 1927. Officials said the trouble started when Scarone struck an opponent and 2,000 bleacherites rushed onto the field.

Andrade and Castro also were members of the invading team of three years ago.

Football Strategy Dwindles to 2 Systems, Rockne's and Warner's, Declares Meehan

All Styles Based on Methods of Two Noted Coaches.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The great game of intercollegiate football has dwindled down to two styles of play, two sets of strategy, and there it is going to stay until the last pigskin is booted and the final whistle blown. You can take this on the word of John ("Chick") Meehan, head coach of the New York University Violets.

"Chick"—short, powerful and dynamic—is a forceful leader. He was a grand quarter back at Syracuse, coached there with success, and hit his real stride when he took over the Blushing Violets in 1925. Since then Meehan's Violets have turned into snapdragons, winning 39 games, losing 9 and tying 3.

"Football," remarked "Chick" on the authority of this background, "has come down to the Notre Dame system on one side—the balanced line, shifting backs—and the Warner system on the other—unbalanced line, wing backs. With but three exceptions, every offense in the country is based on one of these two plans.

Rockne Likes Speed, Warner, Power.

"Knute Rockne has put deception, lateral passes, thrusts, speed into his attack. Warner, into the unbalanced line, has moulded power, fakes, guile, double and triple passes. Now show me any system and I'll prove to you its derivative of one or the other," he challenged.

Yale was suggested.

"Yale is Warner," said "Chick."

Colleges Rescind Ban On Grid Play-by-Play

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 22 (A.P.). The ban by athletic authorities today on play-by-play news accounts and broadcasting of the annual South Carolina-Clemson fair week game tomorrow was rescinded tonight.

Closely following the announcements of the ban came protests from newspaper publishers. T. R. Waring, publisher of the Charleston Evening Post and the Charleston News and Courier, asked the governor to intervene.

W. Carey Dowd, publisher of the Charlotte (N. C.) News, referred to the action as not only a "specimen of base ingratitude" toward news agencies and papers, but a "disregard for the rights of the people."

The committee had based its ban on the contention news play-by-play and broadcast accounts of the game might cause a reduction in attendance at the contest. All seats have been sold.

Stanford Proponent of Power; Notre Dame of Speed.

"Unbalanced line, haven't they? Backs in 'Z' formation? Nothing to it."

"The Rockne system," Chick continued, "requires acrobats for players. They must be clever, have poise. Warner builds on power and drive. Those are the fundamentals of the two systems. For myself, I'm following Warner. Army is doing it this season. Last year they were Rockne.

"Strangely enough," Chick went on, "the West Coast, as a whole, runs to the Notre Dame system, the East Coast goes to Warner, the South to Rockne. The Midwest, jealous of Knute, probably, won't copy Rockne, so they follow Warner. However, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Purdue, in the Big Ten, are playing Rockne football."

Zuppke, Stagg, Yost Defy Classification.

Bob Zuppke, at Illinois, Amos Alonzo Stagg, at Chicago, and Fielding Yost, athletic director at Michigan, are the three men whose football styles defy classification in either the Rockne or the Warner lists in Meehan's opinion.

"Zuppke uses all styles and says he starts where the others leave off," Chick announced, with a grin. "Stagg is beginning to talk about 'flank movements,' and is losing plenty of games. Yost goes back to the kick formation, old as football itself."

Stribling Will Battle K. O. Christner Tonight

Newark, N. J., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Young Bill Stribling, heavyweight ace of the Southland, will swing back into action here tomorrow night for the first time since his spectacular knockouts over Otto von Porat, in Chicago, and Phil Scoot, in London. The Macon youth is scheduled to go ten rounds with K. O. Christner, iron puddler from Akron, Ohio.

Christner has slipped backward since he flared into fame a couple of years ago and fought Jack Sharkey to a standstill in Madison Square Garden. Recently he was listed among the knockout victims of Primo Carnera, but he still retains considerable walloping powers in his right hand and ability to stand up under punishment.

$2,500 Glendale Open Tournament Canceled

Glendale, Calif., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The Glendale Junior Chamber of Commerce $2,500 open golf tournament was canceled today because of the request of the Professional Golfers' Association Tournament Bureau in Chicago for 10 per cent of the prize money.

Phil Thomson, chamber president, said the bureau's action had discouraged the idea of holding the tournament as scheduled next December 27 and 28.

The action followed the canceling of the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce $3,500 annual tournament several days ago and the refusal of the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce to comply with the tournament bureau's request that $1,000 of the annual $10,000 open championship be paid to it.

Shamrock V, Battered, Arrives in England

Southampton, England, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Battered by terrific seas encountered on her way across the Atlantic, the Shamrock V arrived today minus her original steering wheel, which was washed away when she was 24 hours out of Bristol, R. I.

Capt. William Greenock, who brought the America's Cup challenger home, said the yacht ran into bad weather practically all the way over. At times the boat was held to a standstill.

"It was no pleasure cruise," he said. "I don't think the weather could have been more unkind, for we struck a bad patch just after leaving America."

The Shamrock will be taken to a shipyard for the winter.

One-half hour each week is set aside by Chicago public schools for "humane education." Methods of protecting animals from cruelty are discussed.

Rockne Drills Three Teams For Pitt

Notre Dame Coach Is Pleased at Showing of Squad.

Sutherland Drives His Pitt Charges Until Darkness.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 22 (A.P.). Knute Rockne today drove his first, second, and third Notre Dame Teams through a long scrimmage against Pittsburgh stuff and was especially pleased with the work of the first stringers. They stopped the Pitt formations; and when they took the ball, gained almost at will. Rockne named 38 men for the Pittsburgh invasion—6 ends, 16 linemen, and 16 backs composing the squad.

Sutherland not Pleased With Pitt.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Pitt's Football Team went through a drill that lasted until after dark today, scrimmaging against a freshman team equipped with Notre Dame plays. Coach Jock Sutherland was not pleased with the results and ordered another long session tomorrow.

Meehan Sends Gaudet To Back Field Post.

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Chick Meehan sprang a surprise today as he prepared the New York University team for the Fordham game. He sent Al Gaudet, veteran back who has not seen service as a regular this year, into the varsity back field in place of Bill McNamara and left him there through 40 minutes of a long scrimmage.

New Yale Back Field Expected.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—A new Yale back field may take the field against Army Saturday as the result of Mal Stevens' experiments today. With Quarter Backs McLennan and Heim still out of condition, he used Crowley and Dunne who played with Albie Booth last week, together with Parker and Sullivan, last year's freshman quarter. Booth had Austen, Taylor and Muhlfeld.

Army Grooms Defense For Yale.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Defensive work marked Army's preparations for the Yale game today with a team of scrubs and plebes attacking in the brief scrimmage. Machine work and kicking drill took up most of the time. It was learned today that Hillsinger will not be able to play at right guard, leaving a bad hole to be filled in the line.

Bogar Stars in Drill At Princeton.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The playing of George Bogar at quarter back in today's scrimmage against Rider College practically assured him of starting against Navy Saturday. Bogar ran back a punt 60 yards for the longest run of the day.

Holy Cross Drills On Tackling.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The Holy Cross Team returned to fundamentals today as Coach McEwan sent the linesmen through a long attack on the tackling dummies. A half hour defensive drill against Brown plays and signal practice completed the workout.

Harvard Brushes Up On Defense.

Dartmouth Guard Goes to Hospital.

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The Dartmouth squad suffered a heavy loss today when Gay Bromberg, star guard, was sent to the college hospital suffering from a cold. It was uncertain whether he would be in condition to play against Harvard Saturday. With Sonny Foley and Red Porter on the injured list, Coach Cannell devoted much time on Bob Sumner and Jack Whitcomb, fourth and fifth team backs.

POLOISTS INVADE MEXICO.

Mexico City, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The polo team of San Angelo, Tex., arrived here today for a series of games with the Mexican Army Team. They are repaying a visit made by the Mexicans to the United States earlier this year.

MANAGES HOCKEY TEAM.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Bernie Morris, who managed the Hamilton (Ontario) entrant in the International Hockey League last year, today was named manager of the Detroit Olympics, member of the same league. Morris played with the Olympics in 1927 and 1928.

Rosenbloom Retains Title; Referee Stops Bout in 11th Round

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (N.Y.W.S.).—Maxie Rosenbloom not only retained his light heavyweight championship of the world in the Madison Square Garden tonight, but in doing so, incredible as it may seem, he scored a knockout over Abie Bain, of Newark.

Of course, it wasn't a real knockout, for the referee, Lou Magnolia, helped Maxie to get this K. O. on his record by stopping the bout after 1 minute, 47 seconds in the eleventh round. Abie was plenty strong when the end came, but he was bleeding profusely from a wicked looking cut over the left eye, the gore painting his face such a gruesome hue that Magnolia feared the optic might be permanently injured if the thing was allowed to proceed.

The technical K. O. was greeted by a chorus of boos from the 4,406 fans who paid a net gate of $12,497.39 to see the fight.

The bout was rather tiresome after the first few rounds because it developed into a monotonous sparring bee with Rosenbloom doing the sparring.

Bain was terribly upset at the result and he begged Magnolia to permit him to continue. After examining the eye, Lou refused to do this and Bain jumped angrily from the ring and rushed to his dressing room, after he had yelled into the microphone that he was strong and thought he would win if the bout had been allowed to proceed to a finish. Magnolia's action was a relief to the fans, anyway, who were beginning to wal kout at this stage of the bout.

CATONSVILLE BEATEN BY HAWKS

Sweeney's Run Paves Way for Touchdown in 1st Period.

MOHAWK A. C. won its first game and scored its first and only touchdown of the season last night at Griffith Stadium, where the highly touted Catonsville, Md., team bowed to the local prides, 6 to 0. Not more than 200 fans witnessed the tilt.

The only fireworks of the contest were in the first quarter, when the sprightly Joe Sweeny ripped off a 28-yard run around the Marylanders' end. Sweeney's dash eventually resulted in the lone score of the game, as the Northeast lad had carried the ball from his own 35-yard line, and plunges by Gass and De Labre carried the oval within striking distance of the visitors' goal. When 6 yards away De Labre plunged through Catonsville's defense for the solitary touchdown of the game.

Either the bright lights were something that the players were not used to or the ball was unusually slippery, as the teams completed few forward passes.

Many of the spectators left the park during half time, and although they may have avoided colds, they missed the best part of the contest.

Majors Can Not Draft From Their "Farms"

Chicago, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis ruled today that no major league club could draft a player from one of its own baseball farms.

The ruling, regarded as a slap at the farm system, was made after the Brooklyn Club of the National League attempted to select Jimmy Patterson, a pitcher, from its farm at Macon, in the South Atlantic Association.

It was the first attempt of its kind since he farm system became general throughout the major leagues.

"Selection of a player from a club's own farm is wholly inconsistent with the draft," Commissioner Landis said. "The club can buy any players before September 15 if it wants them."

DIES OF GRID INJURIES.

Chester, Pa., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Stanley Pominak, 22, of this city, died today from injuries received in a football game here two weeks ago. During the game he was tackled and knocked unconscious. He recovered at the time, but several days later complained of pains in the neck. An X-ray examination disclosed several fracutred vertebrae in his spine.

Mills Retains New Set of Regulars

King, Leary, Bozek, Bordeau Take Long Drill in Back Field.

Mountaineers to Outweigh Hilltoppers Tomorrow Night.

THE tentative Georgetown varsity selected Tuesday by Coach Tommy Mills was put through a long dummy scrimmage against the Freshmen, who used West Virginia plays yesterday afternoon at Griffith Stadium. The Hoyas will meet the Mountaineers tomorrow night at the stadium.

The half dozen second stringers, whom Mills moved up to the first team almost overnight, still were berthed in their new positions during yesterday's workout. These players—Ray Hudson and Lew Parlette, ends; Dave Muir, guard; Dick King, quarter back, and Ed Leary and Emil Bozek, half backs—previous to last Saturday's encounter with Western Maryland had not been regarded as regular starters.

Together with Gunnear Anderson and Ed Katalinas, tackles; Aurel Tremblay, guard; Capt. Bill Morris, center, and Leroy Bordeau, full back, the promoted sextet constitute an eleven which is expected to start tomorrow night's battle.

Displaced Regulars Likely to Play.

At the same time the tentative first team was familiarizing itself with Mountaineer plays, the second club was participating in a strenuous scrimmage with the third eleven. After the scrimmage the linemen came in for much attention from Mills and Assistant Coaches Smith, Colrick and Murphy. The charging sled was put to good use, and the men practiced charging and blocking, phases of the game in which Georgetown was noticeably weak last Saturday against the Westminster Team. Topping the practice, a tackling session was held, with the freshmen back field men carrying the ball.

The West Virginia outfit which the Hoyas are engaging tomorrow night will outweigh their hosts by at least 15 pounds per man. Conquerors of Duquesne and Washington and Lee earlier in the season, the Mountaineers will be out to avenge themselves at Georgetown's expense for the trouncing they received last Friday night at the hands of Detroit University.

West Virginia Primes Sophomores for G. U.

Special to The Washington Post.

Morgantown, W. Va., Oct. 22.—West Virginia University's sophomore grid outfit is just about ready to click against Georgetown University on Friday night at Clark Griffith Stadium, Washington, D. C., if practice sessions this week are to be taken as criteria.

The Mountaineer team is not, of course, entirely composed of sophomores, but at least six first-year varsity competitors have been getting the call in games to date. Bill Parriott and Andy Brawley, half backs; Leo Dotson, full back; Fred Schweitzer and "Pats" Lough, tackles; "Cotton" Sortet, end, and Floyd Schwartzwalder, center, all sophomores, have been starting most of the West Virginia games, despite their lack of college grid experience.

Naturally, the work of these sophomores has been ragged at times, but they have looked better in each succeeding game. Having gone through the experiences that go with five hard games, it is believed here that these youngsters are just about ready to collaborate with Gene Joseph, end; Jake Sebulsky, quarter back; Johnny Doyle and Eddie Bartrug, half backs, and Ctp. "Red" Gordon and Leland Brown, guards, all of whom are veterans, to make much trouble for Georgetown, Fordham, Kansas State, Washington and Jefferson and Oregon State.

BROWN TRAP LEADS FROM POST TO WIN AT LAUREL

Winner Never Headed in Feature

Prophyry Pays $45, Beating Halcyon for Place.

Garner Scores With Uncle Henry and Replevin.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 22.—The Geneseo Stable's 3-year-old, Brown Trap, won the Choptank Purse for all ages, leading all the way, in the feature race of today's program. S. W. Labrot's Porphyry, also a 3-year-old, was second, and H. P. Whitney's Halcyon, the only 2-year-old in the race, was third. Indian Chief was fourth in a field of seven that started for the mile gallop.

Steffen had trouble with Brown Trap at the gate and for punishment the horse was placed on the outside. This worked to his advantage. He was off like a rabbit and led all the way. Halcyon gave him a hard battle to the sixteenth, when Porphyry, a rank outsider, came along with an unexpected rush to take the place money. The time was 1:41 3-5. The winner paid $7.50. The place price on Porphyry was $45 for $2. The place horse was 100 to 1 on the approximate board, but the odds dropped before closing time.

The day was cool, but this had no effect on the attendance.

War Romps Home In Opener.

The Sagamore Stable's 2-year-old Man o' War—Milky Way colt, War, the highest priced yearling of the Saratoga sales of 1929, won his first race in the opening event here today, finishing two lengths in front of the Geneseo Stable's Rubio and running 6 furlongs in 1:13 1-5.

E. R. Bradley's Barometer was third and Tancred fourth. Rubio set the pace, but the ultimate winner fought gamely until he got the lead. He was the favorite, paying $5.30. War is a fine looking chestnut colt, Twelve started.

Entry One-Two in Steeplechase.

Mrs. Ambrose Clark's Crumpler won the Patuxent Steeplechase, the running mate of the winner, J. J. Nesbitt's Wayfair, getting the place, a length behind. The two were coupled in the betting as the Trainer J. W. Healy entry. A. E. Pierce's William Kennet was third and Abdul II fourth.

Crumpler, Jockey Hunt up, led all the way. MacCarthy More was a contender to the last hedge, when he dropped out. In the last mile, Wayfair moved up to Crumpler and the entry finished the course one, two. William Kennet moved up menacingly on the far turn on the last circle of the track, but MacCarthy More challenged at the same time and entering the stretch was a dangerous contender, to all appearances. The entry paid $8.20 to win and $6.30 for place.

Garner Gets Uncle Henry Home by a Nose.

Mack Garner got on his winning stride today when he piloted Max Hirsch's Uncle Henry to a nose victory in the third race for two-year-olds. Dunlin's Lad was second, three lengths in front of J. F. Schorr's Portcodine. Time 1:12 4-5.

The Glen Riddle Farm's Sea Fox set the pace to the far turn when Dunlin's Lad got his head in front and was leading within ten feet of the wire when Garner, fighting it out with the leader, got the decision. Portcodine was close up all the way. Gay Bird was fourth. Sea Fox quit in the stretch. The winner paid $7.40. He failed last week. It was said but not confirmed that Uncle Henry's saddle slipped on that occasion.

Crazy Coot Scores In the Fourth.

H. P. Whitney's Crazy Coot, overhauling the favorite, Lamp Black, won the fourth race, by a half length over Lamp Black, and the Geneseo Stable's Pantad saved the show money, with Flyer fourth. Lamp Black, off in front and leading to the first turn, had no excuse.

A. Robertson on Crazy Coot, getting the rail on the back stretch and fortunate not to get in a pocket, took advantage of the opening at the stretch turn and easily moved up front, holding his advantage with little effort, running six furlongs in 1:12 3-5. The winner paid $11.10. Flyer was backed from 15 to 1 down because Garner had the mount. He was close up in the early running.

Garner Wins With Replevin.

A head finish marked the sixth race at nine furlongs, the Lamar Stock Farm's Replevin catching E. R. Bradley's Bide a Wee in the last stride to win under a hand ride by Garner, making a double for the star jockey.

Ormonbird was third. Bide a Wee was off in front from the gate, pursued by Replevin, but Garner waited to the sixteenth before making his final drive for a victory that was as close as horses usually finish. This put Garner one race behind Adams for leader at this meeting. The winner paid $4.50. Time 1:53 3-5.

S. W. Labrot's Trudgeon, showing great improvement over his last race, won the seventh event easily, with Leishman up, finishing a length and a half in front of his field. He paid a return of $14.50 on a $2 mutual ticket. Wandering Gold was second, a length in front of Cabellsdale.

Trudgeon was held in restraint in second position, while Hat Brush was out making the pace, but in the stretch took the lead and drew away, in no danger from the rush of Wandering Gold. Daddy Nelson was made an equal favorite with Wandering Gold largely because Garner had the mount, but finished tenth. The time was very slow, 1:49, a mile and one-sixteenth.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAR, $5.30, $3.20, $2.80; RUBIO, $5.60, $3.50; BAROMETER, $6.10.

WAR, steadied within striking distance of the leaders, came stoutly for the closing test, shook off RUBIO and came away smartly. RUBIO, hard ridden from the start, saved ground, but could not keep pace with the winner. BAROMETER, slow to begin, circled his field to close with a belated rush. TANCRED weakened after forcing the early pace. PRINCE POST closed resolutely. CHRISTMAS weakened, as did SIR WRACK.

WAR WAS WELL IF YOU BET ON HIM.

SECOND RACE—About two miles. Purse, $2,000. Patuxant Steeplechase Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:15. Off at 2:16. Winner, Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's b. or br. g. (5), by Ed Crump—Eliza G. Trained by James Healy. Value to winner, $1,400; second, $400; third, $200. Time, 3:56. (14 jumps).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CRUMPLER, $8.20, $6.30, $3.50; WAYFAIR, $6.30, $3.50; WILLIAM KENNET, $2.90.

CRUMPLER, taken into early command, saved ground wherever possible, fenced in excellent fashion, withstood a stout drive gamely and outstayed WAYFAIR. CRUMPLER made a bad landing at the thirteenth fence. WAYFAIR, rated along early, worked his way up fast the last six furlongs to finish stoutly. WILLIAM KENNET dropped back after the first mile, lost ground when taken to the outside of his field and appeared to hang badly in the drive. ABDUL finished with good speed. MACCARTHY MORE had no mishaps. MISTENFLUTE was used up in the first mile and tired.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—UNCLE HENRY, $7.40, $5.40, $3.80; DUNLIN'S LAD, $3.30, $5.10; PORTCODINE, $3.90.

UNCLE HENRY, going in greatly improved fashion and kept close up from the start, came with a bold effort through the closing stages and, under an energetic finish, outfinished DUNLIN'S LAD. Latter raced SEA FOX into defeat, saved ground and fought it out with good courage. PORTCODINE, on the outside all the way, held on well. GAY BIRD raced evenly. SEA FOX tired the last half mile.

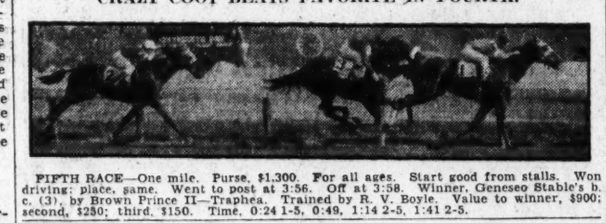
Two-dollar mutuels paid—CRAZY COOT, $11.10, $3.70, $3.40; LAMP BLACK, $2.80, $2.40; FANTAD, $4.80.

CRAZY COOT moved to LAMP BLACK with a rush when reaching the turn, secured racing room on the inside to take command and was hard ridden thereafter. LAMP BLACK took an easy lead, lost command at the turn, but held on willingly. FANTAD was held safe in the final stages. FLYER could not stay with the pace. CURTSEY had no excuse.

CRAZY COOT BEATS FAVORITE IN FOURTH.



FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,300. For all ages. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:56. Off at 3:58. Winner, Geneseo Stable's b. c. (3), by Brown Prince II—Traphea. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROWN TRAP, $7.50, $3.90, $2.60; PORPHYRY, $45.00, $8.30; HALCYON, $2.40.

BROWN TRAP broke fast outside the stalls from the extreme outside post position and was taken under slight restraint after asuming an easy lead in run to first turn, hung on well when put to a drive in stretch run. PORPHYRY, shut off going to first turn, was forced to go finished stoutly under punishment to outgame HALCYON in final drive. HALCYON was held under slight restraint to top of home stretch, but weakened when called on in stretch run.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—REPLEVIN, $4.50, $3.40, $2.80; BIDE A WEE, $5.90, $3.50; ORMONBIRD, $3.00.

REPLEVIN, kept close to BIDE A WEE to force the early running, responded to severe pressure the last half mile and, given a strong ride in the late stages, was up right at end. BIDE A WEE, hurried to the front, saved much ground all the way and held on with rare courage in the final drive. ORMONBIRD was unable to menace the first two in the final issue. RUBY KELLER was held safe.

REPLEVIN BARELY BEATS BID A WEE.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:05. Off at 5:08. Winner, S. W. Labrot's ch. g. (3), by Baigneur—Innis Morris. Trained by C. R. Allen. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:15, 1:42 2-5, 1:49.

EASTERN FACES TEST IN BUSINESS IN SERIES DEBUT

Central Shows Woeful Weakness in Aerial Defense.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

COACH MIKE KELLEY ordered full steam ahead yesterday as Eastern's first game of the high school series approaches. Tomorrow afternoon at Central Stadium Kelley's green squad runs against Business High, a foe it can no longer take with its tongue in its cheek. There was a time when Eastern could play Business without precaution of removing its blankets. But not this year.

Kelley is not pleased especially with the spirit his boys have shown. Levity is as prevalent on the practice field at Eastern as dust. Bill Wells, his first-run quarter back, is one of the two or three players on the squad imbued with any form of the grimness this team will need during the long trek ahead of them. Corridon, one of Kelley's most promising ball carriers, has not shown up well in recent workouts. Eastern indeed will have to work with a perseverance yet to be shown if it is to maintain last season's position of third place.

Business Boasts

More Veterans.

Business finds itself, for one of the few times in recent years, almost in the role of a favorite. It is a veteran of the current high school series, having received inevitable experience, and a drubbing last Friday at the hands of Tech. It has four veterans, Duryee, Johnson, Levy and Mastromarino, in its line-up. Eastern is practically new from end to end. Business has met the smoothest running team of the series. An element of raggedness they will detect in every other team they meet.

Eastern should win, nevertheless. Coach Woodworth can place no more than twelve presentable men on the field. Kelley can replace three linesmen and two backs without seriously hampering his team's play.

Central Proves Weak

Against Aerials.

The Central-Western game turned up a number of surprises. Central's most flagrant weakness proved to be its defense against a well controlled aerial attack. Tom Webb, of the Georgetown crew, hurled the ball exceptionally well, to give credit where it is due.

Central's reputed weakness, its lines, belied its reputation in good style. Western's only consistent territory gain was held in Webb's passing arm, and the glue on the hands of Buscher and Amidon. Central's beef balked the plunges of the red jacketed backs.

Feldman and Miller, Central signal callers, worked Pinckney too much. Another goal might have been chalked up to Central's credit if Pinckney had not been too exhausted to gain a scant yard in the second period with the ball a mere 3 feet from Western's last white line and two downs to go.

Buscher, Coach Ahearn's lanky right end, looms large as All-High material through his work last Tuesday. As a tackler, it is doubtful if he has an equal in local scholastic ranks. The manner in which he grounded a well-guarded Pinckney in the third quarter when the Central heavyweight was well on his way to a goal, and his countless other tackles, kept Western in the game to the very end.

If Western continues the play it showed Tuesday there will be a new tenant in Western's old lodging place—fourth position in the high school series.

5,000 Witnesses Races At Frederick Fair

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 22.—About 5,000 persons witnessed the races at the fair today. There were five events, three harness and two running. The weather was ideal for racing and the track fast.

After several starts in the fifth race, two were left at the pole, while the others, disregarding the call of Starter Cushwa, finished the race with Little Flora, owned by Baker, Hagerstown, in front. The race was called off and another start, in which five entered, was made. Owing to confusion among the entries, the result of the race was withheld until tomorrow.

VA. STAGES LAST DRILL AT HOME

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 22. Virginia's football eleven held its final scrimmage this afternoon in preparation for the game with Kentucky University in Lexington on Saturday. Tomorrow night the squad of 36 men, including coaches and managers, will head South. They will reach Lexington in time for a workout Friday afternoon.

Saturday's game, the first gridiron meeting of Cavaliers and Wildcats in more than a quarter of a century, will provide a second comparison of strength with the Washington and Lee Eleven, which will be the gridiron foe of the Cavaliers in the "homecoming game" here November 15.

The Generals met the Wildcats last week and at the end of the third quarter the score was 14-14. Then Kentucky smashed through in the final period to win, 33 to 14.

Early season contests would indicate that the Cavaliers may have slightly more scoring power than the Generals. Virginia defeated Randolph-Macon 48 to 0 a week after W. and L. won from the Jackets, 32 to 0. But such comparisons mean nothing at all.

Rivals Played in Early 70's.

Virginia's football rivalry dates back into the dark ages of sport when organized athletics were not known. There is a record of a game between student teams from Charlottesville and Lexington in the early 70's, but all trace of the score has been lost. The first organized Virginia-W. and L. game was in 1890, just 40 years ago.

Kentucky first appeared on the Virginia schedule much later. It was not until 1902 that the Wildcat Eleven was met. That Virginia team, undefeated in the South, won from Kentucky, 12 to 0. Later it licked the Carlisle Indians, in Norfolk. The next fall Virginia defeated Kentucky, 6 to 0.

Earl Abell, Cavalier head coach, has not decided who he will start in this fourth hard game in a row away from home. He will probably use Bill Thomas, Frank Sippley and Herbert Bryant in the back field, with either Ward Brewer or Jim Beury in the fourth position. The line will be practically the same as that starting against Virginia Military Institute last Saturday, with one possible change, Buck Poss for Bob Kimball at tackle.

Art Phelan Is Named Fort Worth Manager

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Art Phelan, for more than four years manager of the Shreveport, La., team of the Texas League, today was announced as the 1931 manager of the Fort Worth Cats, Dixie champions for 1930.

Phelan succeeds Frank Snyder, formerly with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Before going to Shreveport Phelan was with the Fort Worth Texas League Club for five and one-half seasons.

Snyder's contract had expired and the management was unable to reach an agreement with him, Red Robinson, president of the club said. He indicated Snyder had expressed a desire to make a connection with some club of higher classification. Snyder has not been in Fort Worth since the Dixie series closed.

Boys Club Sponsors Basket Ball Leagues

The Boys Club of Washington is organizing basket ball teams to compete in unlimited ranks and in the 145-pound sections. A call has been broadcast for material for these teams. Schedules for the two teams are being made, with local scholastic teams listed among other opponents.

Teams wishing to enter the other leagues sponsored by the Boys Club are rquested to make reservations for practice nights. August E. Marcare is in charge of permits to use the gymnasium.

V. P. I. CHIEFS SEEK DRIVE IN LINE

Gobblers Preparing for Davidson on Saturday.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Oct. 22 (A.P.). Training activities center in V. P. I.'s line this week while the Gobblers are preparing for their new role as homecoming guests at Davidson.

"We must have more drive in that line," was the cry of the coaches today. "The reason V. P. I.'s line has looked poor in two preceding games is because it was outfought. The other fellow is across the scrimmage line a fraction quicker and keeps plugging a little harder." The coaches are permitting no let-up in the work of the linemen this week. Not even Monday was given to easy work.

Because a fighting line has been characteristic of Gobbler teams of the past, the 1930 forwards are expected to swing into action against Davidson with an assault in keeping with fighting traditions.

Their work in scrimmages this week is on the offense. The first line was pitted against a second array Tuesday but was hurled at the freshmen Wednesday in yet longer drills. The tackling is showing steady improvement from day to day, so little attention is due the defense.

Line and Back Field

Hit by Injuries.

Both line and back-field forces are hit by injuries this week. Johnny McIntire and Jim Swart are taking only light work on their injured shoulders; Gene Brown and Mark Ritter are suffering with leg injuries and Harry Stark dislocated his elbow in the William and Mary game. Bus Hall, sophomore half back, carried the duties of Phil Spear like a veteran, but he has been able to do little work this week. Severe foot injuries to Cushman Hagerty may keep the former Tome School full back out of the game for remainder of the season. Gene Hite, sophomore guard, recovered from injuries sustained against Vandy, only to miss time this week while physicians extracted from his eye a steel splinter from the testing machines in the building of mechanic arts.

Will Phil Spear be ready to play? This is the question of the hour at V. P. I. The Tidewater phantom is chafing under tight reins and is eager for a chance after two weeks of inactivity. If Spear can play, the Gobblers will hurl at the Presbyterians a veteran back field of three seniors in Capt. Hooper, Owens and Spear, and Ottley, a junior. This combination is scheming to match the sensational antics of Joe McCall, ace of Davidson ground gainers, and his buddies, Capt. Fraley, Don King and Tom Brohard.

Intercity Gun Meet Scheduled Saturday

The second shoot of the annual intercity match between Baltimore and Washington will be held Saturday at 1 o'clock at the Washington Gun Club, sponsors of the event.

Baltimore has won the first race of the 1930-31 series, and the District aggregation is out to even matters.

The usual program of 100 singles and 25 pairs will prevail.

W. & L. BACKS RETURN TO ACTION

Generals Will Present Best Front Against St. John's.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 22.—Washington and Lee hopes to present a full team for the game here this Saturday with St. John's as several men forced out last week with injuries are quickly recovering and are expected to be able to play against the Johnnies.

Gene Martin, regular quarter back, Baltimore, Md., and Nace Collins, sophomore full back, Covington, Va., were not taken to Kentucky last week. Martin was injured in the last days of practice when he ran into a line marker during scrimmage, while Collins sustained a cracked rib in the West Virginia game, which did not seem to bother him until the first scrimmage last week.

Both men are now working out lightly and Martin will probably get his share of heavier work before Collins is called upon. The rest of the team is in fair shape, with minor bruises reported here and there.

Mattox Not Hampered

By Injury.

Despite the severe beating he has taken in the last two games at the hands of the heavier West Virginia and Kentucky forwards, "Monk" Mattox, Washington and Lee's 160-pound back field ace, is not being hampered by the cut over his eye. Generals followers look to Mattox to pick up his heels and run against the remainder of the Washington and Lee opponents. If his performances against the teams played to date can be used as a basis of future play, Mattox will continue rolling up impressive yardage.

Kentucky covered Leigh Williams, the Generals' candidate for All-Southern honors, and Washington and Lee resorted to running attack which functioned well. The Johnnies are faced with stopping the passing attack or the running offensive led by Mattox, Thibodeau, Martin, Jones, Smith, Mitchell and Collins. More than likely Coach Gene Oberst will give his charges a pass scrimmage tomorrow and then work out against Johnnies' plays.

Episcopal Jrs. Beat G. U. Prep Jrs., 26-0

Episcopal High's Junior Football Team experienced little difficulty yesterday in garnering its first game of the season, when it turned back the Georgetown Prep Juniors, 26 to 0, in a game played on Episcopal's field.

Swift and Woodwrass, fleet Episcopal quarter and left half backs, kept the Georgetown lads constantly on the run. Swift scored two of his team's touchdowns. Other tallies were contributed by Brookings and Woodwrass.

Episcopal scored in the first, second, and third periods, but remained scoreless in the final period.

Washington-Lee Plays In Second State Test

Washington-Lee High School's undefeated football eleven will journey to Fredericksburg, Va., today to tackle the strong representatives of that town's high school, in the second intrastate tussle of the Little Generals.

With victories over Episcopal, Eastern and Western, Washington-Lee appears well penned for the defense of its title as scholastic champions of Virginia.

Coach O. L. Driver has been putting his charges through stiff workouts during the last week and reports that all his huskies are in good shape for the tussle.

AMERICAN U. BACKS ARE AILING

Coach Young Eases Work for Virginia Beach Game.

EVERY member of the back field is more or less incapacitated as the American University Eleven prepares for its game Saturday with Atlantic University at Virginia Beach, Va. Due to this condition, Coach Walter Young is drilling his charges at a slow pace.

Fred Johnson, left half back, is out for the season with a broken ankle. George Borsari, quarter back, has a sprained ankle; Bob Fuchale suffers a broken nose, and Forrest Diehl is injured in the groin. With the exception of Johnson, Coach Young is hopeful that rest will bring his "crippies" around to playing condition in time for the game.

Olsen Will Start

In Back Field.

George "Reds" Olsen will take Johnson's place in the starting line-up against Atlantic. Young as yet has not found replacements for Borsari or Diehl, but has decided that Bill Clark, a promising freshman possessed of great speed afoot, will fill in for Fuchale if the latter is unable to return to action.

The Eagle line also has been weakened by injury, Will Denit, right guard, having suffered a badly bruised arm. Kenneth Hoover will replace him.

Young, in spite of current conditions, is not unduly worried. Atlantic U. is a newly organized institution and is not believed to have a particularly capable team.

The Eagles will journey to the game by water, leaving on the steamer Northland Friday evening.

NAVY SHOWS POWER IN WORKOUT

Varsity Runs Up Big Score on Reserves; Kirn Stands Out.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 22.—Naval Academy varsity gridders today scored several touchdowns on the "B" squad employing Princeton formations in one of the heaviest practice sessions of the season. The regulars mixed off tackle thrusts, speed and aerials to bewilder the scrubs. Kirn especially smashed the line like a superdreadnaught, carrying three or four would-be tacklers with him repeatedly.

The back field was composed of Dale Bauer, Kirn, Tschirgi and Hagberg. The combination worked well together. Interference, which has been lax to date, showed improvement. Steffanides and Greathouse, sub flanks heretofore, did some good dropping for the ball toters.

Chambers and James, regular tackles of last season's freshman team, were in the regular line-up tonight. Bowstrom was rested along with Bryan. The latter was in poor shape against Duke, while Bowstrom has been worked hard. Underwood and Gray remained as guards and Tuttle as the pivot man.

Second Team Goes

Into Action.

Near the close of the workout Navy Bill Ingram called the second team into action. This group did not make the progress of the first combination although gaining ground. Both teams as a whole showed satisfactory improvement.

Navy Soccerists Win Over Western Maryland

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 22.—Naval Academy Soccer Teams staged a double-header here this afternoon, the varsity defeating Western Maryland by a score of 3 to 1, but the freshmen or plebes bowed to Baltimore Polytechnic by a like score.

In the big game Navy took the lead from the outset, scoring two goals in the first period, as the result of fine team work. Both counters were made by Williamson. There was no more scoring during the half. In the third period Townsend booted the ball between the posts for the up-Staters' orphan tally. Navy was held scoreless during this period, but in the final frame Gurnette booted a goal. The Terrors threatened several times but could not develop the scoring punch.

In the Plebe-Poly game conditions were just the reverse, the visitors getting the jump and scoring twice in the first period. The Plebes got their goal in the second period, while the Engineers registered their third tally in the third session.

Western High Riflists Win Junior Tourney

The National Rifle Association has announced that Western High School has won the first of the biweekly prone matches in the 1930-31 tournament, sponsored by the Junior Rifle Corps of the Association.

Scoring 497 bull's-eyes out of a possible 500, 4 points ahead of Warren Harding High, of Bridgeport, Conn., which finished second. Western's marksmen placed their school on top of 44 rifle teams from all over the country.

Bill Collins and Bob Glass scored a perfect 100, while S. J. Haydon, W. Crenshaw, and Penelon A. Brock were scarcely behind, with 99.

In the experts' division Central High's Girls Rifle Team took sixth place, scoring 791 out of a possible 1,000. In this division conditions call for ten prone shots and ten standing. Members of the team were Martha Cannon, score 178; Jean Wilson, 163; Beverly Mathews, 163; Eleanor Cranford, 144, and Sidney Hamilton, 143.

Veteran Soccer Club Ousted To Even Teams in League

Surprising Decision by Capital Circuit Puts Washington Soccer Club Out; Five Games Listed Sunday.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

A RECENT decision by the Washington Soccer League will come as a distinct surprise to local fans who have been under the impression that the league officials always had uppermost in their minds the idea of increasing the number of teams competing in the District.

The pioneer soccer organization of Washington, the Washington Soccer League, voted the Washington Soccer Club out of the circuit and the only explanation given for the move was the inclusion of this club would give the league the uneven number of five teams.

Numbered among the Washington Soccer Club players are some of the best known in the District. George Fauids, Dave McLain and Tom Blanche, of Walford fame; Heise, Louie and Emil Konnel, stars of the old Concord Club, are a few of the best-known players here who are faced with a season of inactivity as a result of the Washington Soccer League ban.

Club One of First to Pay Franchise.

A strange twist in the decision is that the Washington Soccer Club was one of the first to pay its franchise in the league this season. Hugh Lamont, of the British United Club, stated last night that he was acting secretary early in the season and accepted Manager Eddie Bruce's check in an open meeting. The Washington club was a member of the league last year.

William Kriemelmeyer, manager of last year's Concord Club, reported about ten days ago that he was unable to muster sufficient players to form a team and Bruce then signed the few players that Kriemelmeyer had collected, with the consent and aid of Kriemelmeyer.

Observers are of the opinion that this fact, more than anything else, had influenced the team representatives who form the executive body of the league. No doubt Manager Bruce has corralled a formidable team, but soccer devotees at large can not see in this a reason to drop it.

Five Games Listed

For Sunday.

The two leagues, Capital City and Washington, have scheduled five games for Sunday. Army will play Rockville at Rockville; Rosedale will be host to Silver Spring, and Gaithersburg will play Fashion Shop at Silver Spring in the Capital City League.

The Washington Soccer League games will be British United vs. D. C. Kickers, on Monument field No. 2, and Marlboro vs. Gaelic Americans on Monument field No. 1. Referees for the contests have not been assigned.

Although Gaithersburg is leading the league and will meet in Fashion Shop a team that has lost two games, the Marylanders will do well not to be too confident, as the Ninth street boys have lost each contest only after a battle, and to strong teams at that.

Gaithersburg Team

Is Sensation.

Incidentally, Gaithersburg, with practically the same team it had last year, is the sensation of the Capital City League. The boys are playing "heads up" soccer and are now accepted as a strong contender for the league title. Army and Rockville each have won and lost a game and should put up a good exhibition. Silver Spring, with two defeats, will have its hands full with the strong Rosedale club.

British United, formidable even in defeat last Sunday, will meet a worthy foe in Gaelic-Americans, while Marlboro will meet a capable eleven in D. C. Kickers, but should have little difficulty in stopping the Germans.

Aggressive Dickinson Team To Battle Colonials Here

AN aggressive Dickinson team noted for its fighting spirit will take the field at Griffith Stadium next Saturday to oppose the George Washington Colonials in what is expected to be one of the feature clashes of the local gridiron season.

Previous to last Saturday's battle with Muhlenberg, Dickinson had been doped to lose by at least three touchdowns. As events turned out, however, the Red Devils played the Mules to a standstill for the major portion of the contest only to lose out in the final three minutes when their opponents shoved across the winning six-pointer. This same Muhlenberg outfit held Western Maryland last year to a 7-0 victory.

G. W.'s 1929 nemesis, Adam Lipinski, 166 pound halfback, again will face the Colonials Saturday. Lipinski is the slippery-hipped individual who last season galloped 80 yards for the touchdown which gave victory to Dickinson in its clash with the locals. His speciality is going off-tackle for long runs.

Coach P. W. Griffith, Red Devil mentor, has four other ball carriers who are fast, versatile, and extremely capable. These players are Joe Myers, 185-pound crashing full back; Joe Foley, triple threat quarter back, Charlie Myers, Joe's younger brother, who understudies Foley, and Laverne Casner, 170-pound 10 second man in track, who will be probably the fastest man on the field Saturday.

The advantage in weight which the Colonials have had in their first few games will be to no avail to them against Dickinson, as the Red Devils stack up evenly with them on the scales. The Dickinson back field averages about 170 pounds, while the linemen tip the beams around 190. Coach Griffith's forward wall is bulwarked around Joe Shomock, Hank Eichorn and Bill Jankins, tackles, and Fred Hindenberg, a guard.

G. U. Prep Organizes Junior Grid Team

Thirty-five players are seeking places on the junior football team of Georgetown Prep. Under the direction of Joe Gardner, former Georgetown University quarter back, a fast, light squad is well on the way of development.

George M. Cohan, jr., son of the theatrical producer, bids fair to capture the first-string quarter-back post. Other likely candidates are Jack Panghorn, Tom Thompson, Guy Fenwick, Babe Conner, Bill Williams, Tom Keating, Joe Nurre, Side Cummings, Joe Sheehan, Bill Karr, Bobby La Plante, Jim Collins and Frank Kelly.

Busy Day Saturday For Knute Rockne, Jr.

Lawrence, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—While Knute Rockne is sending the Notre Dame Eleven against Pitt next Saturday in Pittsburgh, Knute Rockne, jr., will be captaining the Pembroke Midgits in a game at the University of Kansas stadium.

Pembroke, a Kansas City preparatory school, will play the South Side Midgets, another Kansas City boy team where the age limit is 13 and the maximum weight allowed is 105 pounds.

The youngsters will hold the gridiron before the start of the Kansas-Iowa State game and between halves of the big six conference tussle.

BRENTWOODS TO DRILL.

The Brentwood Hawks will practice tonight at 7:30 o'clock on the Mount Reinier Field. All players are asked to report.

PALACE-D. G. S. WANTS GAME.

MERCURYS CARD DRILL.

All Mercury players are requested to report for practice tonight at 7:30 o'clock on the Seventeenth and B streets gridiron.

BROOKLANDS LIST PRACTICE.

The fifield at Twelfth and Monroe street northeast will be the scene of a short practice tonight for Coach Billy Gates' Brookland Eleven.

STOCKS PRICE TREND RULED BY CONFUSION

FEW SMALL GAINS SEEN

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The stock market had difficulty in making up its mind today and the result was the most confusing session in some time.

A break to new lows in the forenoon was followed by complete recovery. Then came another reaction and on its heels another rally, so that net losses were reduced to fractions in most of the leading shares. Few stocks lost more than 2 points net and there were some small advances. Sales totaled 2,742,240 shar regarded as a normal turnover.

The morning drop of 2 to 3 points pierced the previous lows of U. S. Steel, General Electric, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Westinghouse Electric. Selling was lively for about half an hour and the ticker dropped three minutes behind the market, but bears utilized the decline for covering and the list crept slowly back until some stocks were quoted 1 to 5 points net higher. The later selling started in the electrical equipment, which closed heavy. General Electric losing 1⅝ and Westinghouse 4½ points.

Wheat and Corn Strong.

The market paid little attention to outside developments. Although short selling was doubtless encouraged by the decline in steel operations, wheat and corn were strong. The former rallied about a cent and a half when it was reported that the surplus was being reduced, more extensively than had been expected, through increased feeding to livestock. Corn gained as much as 2¼ on unfavorable weather forecasts as well as disappointing husking returns from Kansas. Cotton recovered from early easiness, which had been based on a favorable weather map, and closed 1 to 11 points higher.

Domestic bonds softened, but foreign issues continued to point higher. Time money rates held steady and day accommodations were available in large amounts at 1½ per cent, although the stock exchange made no concession from 2 per cent.

Points of interest in the steel reviews included reports of larger inquiries for rails and the sustained demand for structural material. The surveys pointed out, however, that general demand was very quiet and would probably remain so until business sentiment improved. "Iron Age" estimated that ingot production has declined to 53 per cent, a 2 per cent decrease; steel scrap was reduced 25 cents at Chicago.

Freight Car Loadings Drop.

Previous indications of improvement in the textile industry were supported by the Census Bureau's report on spinning activity, which rose to 76.4 per cent of capacity last month, against 65.4 in August. However, in September, 1929, the ratio was 104. Less than comforting was the decrease in freight car loadings, amounting to 17,618 cars, from the previous week and to 224,666 from the same period last year.

The heads of two large corporations were added to the list of executives who have made reassuring statements regarding dividends. Gen. Harbord, chairman of Radio, said he believed earnings should cover payments on both the preferred and Class B stocks and expressed satisfaction with the present outlook. The president of Texas Corporation indicated that no change in the rate was being contemplated.

New lows carry comparatively little significance at this time, when small declines are sufficient to send the leaders to minimum prices, although such moves may have some psychological effect and do show that so-called supporting levels are thinly held lines.

U. S. Steel Loses Half Point.

U. S. Steel's low today was 143¼, but it rallied thereafter to 146 and closed at 145, off one-half. Standard Oil of New Jersey dropped to 52, only 2 points above the level at which the famous 1,000,000-share buying order was placed last fall. It rallied three-fourths and was seven-eighths net lower. General Electric weakened to 48¾, Westinghouse to 101¼ and Radio to 20.

American Can and American Telephone yielded grudgingly and closed one-fourth lower and one-fourth higher, respectively. International Harvester, Johns-Manville and Public Service of New Jersey were up less than a point net. Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Electric Power & Light, Anaconda, New York Central, General Motors and Radio closed barely steady. Consolidated Gas and Fox lost a point, Du Pont and Case 2, and Auburn Auto 4¾. The last named sold as low as 68, against its year's high of 263¾.

Foreign currencies lost their vigor and reacted slightly. The German mark, with the American demand apparently satisfied, sagged more than 2 points. The Japanese yen, on the other hand, made its nearest approach to parity since the World War on the announcement of a gold shipment from Tokyo.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—An early decline in cotton under Southern and local selling promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and a favorable view of the weather, was followed by advances in today's later trading on trade buying and covering. New December contracts sold up from 10.41 to 10.57 and closed at 10.55 with the general market closing very steady at an advance of 1 point on the old October and of 5 to 11 points on other positions.

The opening was steady at a decline of 2 points to an advance of 2 points. Orders seemed to be pretty well divided at the start, but the selling soon increased. It was influenced, apparently, by a favorable interpretation of the weekly report of the Weather Bureau. Prospects for moderating temperatures in the South, the easier showing of Liverpool and the action of the stock market. There was also some near-month liquidation incident to the circulation of October notices estimated at about 2,800 bales and the new October contracts sold off to 10.24 during the early trading or about 6 points net lower.

March declined to 10.77 with the general list showing net declines of about 6 to 9 points before the end of the morning. Southern selling was considered a factor, but offerings tapered off at the decline which seemed to bring in a little more trade buying and the market firmed up during the afternoon on a moderate demand which was mostly in small lots but which seemed to come from various directions. They were supposed to include some foreign, Western and Wall street buying as well as scattering commission house demand and covering or repurchasing by some of the early sellers. New October sold up to 10.41 and March to 10.95, and the close was within 2 or 3 points of the best.

The day's trading was attributed to selling of near months against purchases of late deliveries based, apparently, on the differences or the late month premiums. Considerable switching was also reported from near to later positions. There were reiterated reports of a sufficient spot demand to absorb current offerings at a steady basis and trade interests were credited with buying some May and July contracts in the local market.

Liverpool cables said that hedging and liquidation had been taken by trade calling, but that Manchester was quieter. Exports today, 20,164, making 1,959,200 so far this season. Port receipts, 74,298; port stocks, 3,315,625.

LOAN LEAGUE HEAD TO BE DINNER GUEST

District Council of Building Associations to Honor R. Holtby Myers.

BANK AUDITORS TO MEET

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

R. Holtby Myers, Los Angeles, president of the United States Building & Loan League, will be a guest of the District of Columbia Council of Building & Loan Associations at its annual meetng at the Ambassador Hotel, next Wednesday evening, beginning at 6:30 o'clock. Mr. Myers and C. Clinton James of this city, a director of the National League, will be guests of the Delaware Council of Building & Loan Associations at a meeting at the Du Pont Hotel at Wilmington on Monday night and on Tuesday, Mr. Myers will meet with directors of the Maryland Council of Building and Loan Associations at a luncheon in Baltimore.

Edward C. Baltz, is president of the local council, Chapin B. Bauman, vice president; William S. Quinter, secretary, and William Neuland, treasurer. Officers and the following form the executive committee: C. Clinton James, James L. Sherwood, James F. Shea, John B. Geier, George M. Emmerich and Carl C. Bergmann.

Harold Bellman, general manager of the Abbey Road Building Society of London, England, a $140,000,000 organization, will arrive in the city today on a Nation-wide tour, studying American building and loan associations. He will leave tomorrow.

President Thomas J. Watson, of the International Business Machines Corporation, one plant of which is located here, said yesterday that the current year is the best the corporation has ever had.

"Our earnings are running ahead of those for the corresponding period of 1929. Our cash position is stronger than a year ago and inventories are approximately the same. The increase in our business recently made it necessary to substantially enlarge our factory at Endicott, N. Y.," Mr. Watson added.

The auditors section of the District of Columbia Bankers Association will hold a dinner meeting tonight at 6 o'clock at the National Press Club.

Many local trust company officials will attend the twelfth conference of the trust company division of the American Bankers Association at New York February 17 to 19.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—With buying active and carrying the market briskly upward, wheat attained the highest close today in several weeks, simultaneously the wheat market gave notable evidence of a disposition to ignore weakness in stocks, and much of the buying of wheat appeared to be based on recent refusal of grain values to follow downturns in securities. Another strengthening factor as to wheat was announcement that a Canadian crop authority had almost doubled his estimate of the quantity of wheat unthrashed in Canada and now being subjected to damage.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1@1⅞ cents a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1⅜@2¾ cents up. Oats ¾@⅞ cent advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

Accompanying the rise of wheat values were statements from important houses putting emphasis on the fact that for the first time since 1927, at this season of the year, wheat available for immediate use commanded a premium over future deliveries. Stress was also put on detailed figures showing that as compared with October 8, wheat values displayed relatively little change, whereas industrial shares have declined more than 17 points. There was also talk of a liberal export business in Canadian wheat under way, and that a conservative estimate of wheat unthrashed in the prairie provinces was 65,000,000 to 70,00,000 bushels, against previous estimates from the same source that total was but 45,000,000 bushels.

Contributing impetus to the upward swing of wheat values was word that arrivals of wheat at Winnipeg totaled only 476 cars, compared with 1,174 cars a week ago and 1,028 cars at this time last year. Advices were likewise at hand that notwithstanding lower quotations at Liverpool the demand for wheat there was broadening, and that selling pressure in Liverpool was chiefly on undesirable grades of Russian wheat, with new Argentine wheat offered only at a premium. Of the old crop, under such circumstances, wheat prices here reached the day's highest level shortly before the close.

Corn showed independent strength affected even more decidedly than wheat by purchases which appeared to be based a good deal on belief that agricultural commodities had touched bottom, and that price rallies were in order. Country receipts in Chicago today were meager. 89 cars, fewer than half as many as a year ago. Oats followed corn and wheat.

Closing indemnities—Wheat, December, 79¼, 79⅛, 82⅜; March, 83, 86; May, 84⅛, 87¼. Corn, December, 78½, 81¼; March, (bids), 80¾; May, 83, 85½.

LARGE TURKEY CROP IS SEEN IN VIRGINIA

NATION'S OUTPUT SINKS

Richmond, Va., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—With Thanksgiving only a month off, John J. Hicks, Federal-State agricultural statistician, today said the Virginia turkey crop this year is indicated to be approximately 5 per cent larger than last year.

The estimate, he said, was based on information compiled from several hundred reports furnished by growers to the Federal-State crop reporting service.

"In general, the dry, hot weather of the past season was exceptionally favorable for raising young turkeys, and the proportion of turkeys raised to poults hatched was larger than usual, the report said.

"The supply which will be available for the Thanksgiving market is estimated at 48 per cent of the total crop, while the Christmas supply will be 41 per cent, leaving 11 per cent to be marketed later."

The turkey crop of 1930 for the country as a whole was about 3 per cent smaller than that of 1929, but larger than either the 1928 or 1927 crops, according to the turkey report of the Department of Agriculture. The decrease in the States from which the commercial supply of turkeys comes, which are the States from the Dakotas to Texas and westward, was considerably greater than 3 per cent, amounting for the whole area to about 10 per cent. The increase which tended to offset the decreases in the commercial area were mostly in the East Central States, being largely in the States where the drought of last spring and summer was most severe.

In spite of the shortage of feed supplies in some areas, the condition of the young turkeys about October 1 this year, as reported by growers, was about the same as of the same date last year. For the country as a whole, the proportions of the turkeys that would be ready for the Thanksgiving and Christmas markets this year were reported as practically the same as last year.

Suspect Arrested In Postal Robbery

New Jersey Mail Officials on Way to Canton, Ohio, With Extradition Papers.

Canton, Ohio, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Benson Groves, alias George Wilson and Benjamin Grayson, was held by Canton police today in connection with the postoffice robbery committed at Asbury Park, N. J., July 6, 1929.

Postal Inspectors George Pate, of Cincinnati, and R. V. Kelley, of Philadelphia, were reported en route here with papers for extradition of the suspect to Asbury Park for arraignment.

Asbury Park, N. J., Oct. 22 A.P.).—Benson Groves, arrested in Canton, Ohio, today is the fourth man to be captured in connection with the robbery of the postoffice here in 1929. The total loot was estimated at $16,000 in cash, stamps and money orders.

Frank Grabowski, of Cleveland, was arrested with another man in that city last January and extradited to New Jersey but has not been brought to trial. He was accused of participating in postoffice thefts totaling $317,771.

Woman Seeks $10,000 In Trolley Accident

Elizabeth Bryant, of Pulaski, Va., yesterday filed suit in District Supreme Court seeking to recover $10,000 damages against the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway Co., of 1202 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, as the result of injuries she received last February 2.

The woman asserts she was standing on North Payne street, in Alexandria, Va., when a car of the defendant company jumped the track and struck her. She charges that the track and the car both were in neglected condition. Attorneys Claude A. Thompson and Julius C. Martin appeared.

Capital Woman Bequeathed $5,000.

Louise Rexford Wilson, of 2915 Connecticut avenue, receives $5,000 of the estate of her late uncle, Lorenzo Daniels, under his will filed for probate yesterday in New York City. Mr. Daniels, who died October 14, left "more than $10,000."

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

DISTRICT PLAN ILLS CITED BY ANDERSON

Head of Arlington County Civic Federation Urges Election at Large.

DAIRY INSPECTION MADE

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

In a statement issued last night by Robert N. Anderson, chairman of the Arlington County Civic Federation committee in charge of the campaign for a change in the form of county government, he warned voters against dangers which would follow adoption of the plan of election of members of the county board by districts instead of electing them at large.

"If the plan of election by districts should prevail," he said, "every section of the county would be exposed to the danger of a combination of three members of the board to conduct the affairs of the county in the interest of their own districts and against the interest of the other two districts. Under such an arrangement, representation on the board of the two districts discriminated against would avail them nothing, since the other three members of the board would exercise a controlling vote at all times.

"The voters in the other two districts, having had no voice in their selection, the three members in the combination could discriminate against the other districts without fear of retaliation at the polls. Such a 3-to-2 combination might easily be on the part of the thickly populated districts against the outlying districts.

"Under election at large every voter in the county will have a voice in selection of all five members of the board. He will have five representatives on the board; whereas, under the other plan of election, he will have but one.

"With the members elected at large, combinations of representatives of certain groups against other groups of voters will be impossible for the reason that all five members of the board will be equally answerable at the polls to all voters of the county.

"Domination of the county affairs of the kind just indicated would be disastrous to good government. The danger of such domination lies in election by districts. The only security against such domination lies in the plan of election at large. It is the plan in vogue in practicaly all the cities in America which have the city manager plan."

Two alarms less than one hour apart brought out the Clarendon fire department to fight a 10 acre field fire adjacent to the Clarendon school yesterday afternoon.

With the continued drought which made the burning of trash or brush dangerous, firemen have again appealed to the residents of the county to use care in starting fires of any nature in the open and at no time to leave them while they are still burning.

Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth made public a letter which he has received from J. C. Albright, District Engineer of the State Highway Department, in reply to his letter asking that a meeting with State Highway Engineers be arranged with members of the Board of Supervisors to discuss ways and means of having provided more adequate signals at the narrow bridge on the Washington-Richmond Highway at Four Mile Run.

Mr. Albright stated that he will meet with the supervisors at any time that will suit them.

Mr. Gloth said that a date will be set within the next few days.

Fred Driver, food and dairy inspector for the State, and Norbert Melnick, Arlington County health inspector, are now making an inspection of all dairies within the county to see that milk distributed from county dairies meets with State Health Department standards.

Mr. Milnick stated that upon the completion of the inspection a complete report will be given out showing different grades of milk found.

The Men's Club of St. George's Episcopal Church will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the Parish Hall at 8 o'clock. Following a short business session the club will hear a talk on "China and Pieping" by Capt. Norman L. Baldwin, U. S. A.

The meeting will conclude with refreshments served by ladies of the church.

The Arlington Rotary Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting today at 12:30 o'clock at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

With the view of having the county board of supervisors provide necessary funds for purchase of gasoline and other necessary expenses for county fire departments, Walter U. Varney, president of the Arlington-Fairfax Counties Firemens Associations, announces appointment of the following committee to appear before the board at its next meeting: G. Frank Allwine, Jefferson District Department; J. R. Mallock, Ballston Department, and John A. Spates, of the Cherrydale Department. The committee is instructed to compile figures showing operating expenses of the county departments covering a period of the past two years.

Mr. Varney pointed out that equipment now furnished by the county is of the finest, and communities of the county are given fire protection equal to any section of the State, but the new apparatus is costing departments much more to operate, and they need the county's support.

Roy Sha, president of the Cherrydale department, stated that the department is now making provisions for four members of the department to spend the night at the firehouse, which will enable the department to give the community more efficient service.

Julian Tapp, chairman; B. S. Kidwell and Roy Sha were appointed a committee by the president to obtain the cost of an American flag, State flag and a banner of the organization to be used in parades.

The county health department has certified the following pupils from John Marshall and Saegmueller Schools as 5-point health children: From Saegmueller School—Harry Breedon, Katherine Cornwell, William Dinsmore, Elsie Ennis, Donald Bloedon, Betty Carter, Rodney Heath, Betty Hill, Helen Mackey and Beula Reid. From John Marshall School—Margaret Anne Elliott, Charles Boyer, Henrietta Thomson, Helen Gosnell, Ruth Kendall, Don Nicklason, Henry Shepherd, Golda Mae Sutton, Eleanor Buhler, Margaret Beach Hermon Wells, Betty Brown, Robert Wright, Marshal Powell, Stanley Carroll, Hugh Nicklason Richard Bassett, Jack Wernig, Richard Davis, Robert Brown, Glory Richardson, Carl Leissler, George Simmerman, Philip Van Doren, Evelyn Ferguson, Alan Coville, Virginia Simmerman, John Harlan, Walter Warner, jr., Jane Wells, Cynthia Winslow, Dorothy Donaldson, John Holman, James Wright, Richard Robb, George Oyster, Millicent Wright, Richard Petty, Wade Byrnes, Charles Wire, Alice Kershenbaum, David Coville, Robert Ball, Helen Jones, Arthur Ennis, Charles Buhler, Alice Winslow, Fred Gosnell, William Suddeth, George Wire, William Kidwell, Stephen Simmerman, James Harlan, Junior Cole, David Thomson, William Boyer, George O'Brien, Helen Dodd, Fred Harper, Charles Healy, Henry Taylor, Peggy McFall, Anne Draper, Mary E. Davis and Martha K. Harris.

The report of the school nurse for the Saegmueller School shows that of the total enrollment of 37 children, 37 have been examined and 27 show defects. Defects found are as follows: Defective teeth, 18; defective eyes, 4; defective ears, none, and defective throats, 10.

The report of the nurse for the John Marshall School shows that of the total enrollment of 111 children, 107 have been examined and 42 show defects. Defects found are as follows: defective teeth, 36; defective ears, 2; and defective throats, 19.

Meeting last night at the home of the president, Robert E. Freer, the Lyon Village Citizens Association showed much interest in the question on the proposed change in the form of the local county government.

The question was covered both by Walter U. Varney and Mrs. Florence E. Cannon, members of the legislation and legal action committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation, which has spent many months making a study of the question.

The association at its recent meeting, went on record as favoring recommendations of the committee for a county manager form of Government and election of five members of the county board at large.

POSTOFFICE YIELDS $500 TO YEGGMEN

Charlottesville Mail Taken Shortly After Theft at Palmyra.

VALUE IS NOT DISCLOSED

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 22.—Postoffice inspectors, railroad special agents and detectives tonight had found no clews that might lead to the capture of yeggmen who blew the postoffice safe at Palmyra early this morning. Four sacks of registered mail were stolen from the mail house at union station here an hour later.

At Palmyra, county seat of Fluvanna, the yeggmen blew open the postoffice safe and escaped with $500 in money and stamps. Residents heard an explosion about 2:30 o'clock, but no report of the robbery was made until after Postmaster Haden opened the office this morning. The heavy safe door was blown from its hinges and thrown across the room.

The registered pouches were taken from a steel box inside the mail house at union station while the transfer clerk was receiving other pouches from a Southern Railway train.

The value of the contents of the sacks has not been divulged. One is said to have contained a shipment of bonds.

Special to The Washington Post.

Moorefield, W. Va., Oct. 22.—J. Dan Cullers, Hardy County farmer, was indicted here Tuesday on a manslaughter charge by the Hardy County grand jury in connection with the death of his son, George, 25, at their home near Virginia line, September 23. Cullers is alleged to have hurled a stick of wood which struck his son and caused a fatal fracture of the skull. The incident followed a dispute between father and son.

Cullers was not arrested until after the son's body was exhumed and an autopsy revealed the fracture. Members of the family had said at the time of death the youth died of a paralytic attack.

Frederick Woman Dies At Home of Daughter

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 22.—Mrs. Ida M. Michael, 73, wife of Granville Michael, Frederick, Md., died today at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Jamison, with whom she and her husband have been living several years. Death followed a protracted illness.

Mrs. Michael was a daughter of the late Benjamin and Ellen Boteler, Frederick County, Md., and was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Surviving are her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Jamison, here and Mrs. W. Alvey Smith, Mount Airy, Md., and one brother, William L. Boteler, Buckeyestown, Md. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Frederick, Friday afternoon.

VIRGINIA TO ASK U.S. ROAD FUND ADVANCE

Sum of $7,500,000 Sought to Be Made Available for Immediate Work.

FARM CREDITS PLANNED

Richmond, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Virginia's drought relief committee today decided to call upon Congress for a special appropriation to be repaid from Federal aid road funds over a period of ten years in order to push highway construction and relieve unemployment and distress in drought-stricken areas.

The plans, advanced by Gov. Pollard, contemplated a bill for a special drought appropriation of $5,000,000 for each drought State to be made available a soon as the bill is passed. Together with the 1931-1932 Federal aid funds, which Congress also will be asked to make available at once, would give to the State approximately $7,500,000 for road building.

Gov. Pollard, in a statement tonight, said he would recommend to Congress that the special drought appropriation be made without the requirement that it be matched by State funds.

Minor Roads May Benefit.

In making available such an appropriation Congress would be asked to remove the restrictions on Federal aid funds so as to permit use of the money on construction projects on the minor and connecting highways. The Virginia committee felt that the real purpose of the legislation could be better accomplished by using the funds on construction projects requiring a maximum of human labor and a minimum of machinery.

Counties were urged to anticipate their share of the State gasoline tax, payable in 1931. It was announced by the committee that freight rates on feed stuff, reduced by the railroads some time ago, would be continued until December 1.

The governor also was requested to seek from Congress a method of extending credit to farmers who are ordinarily good credit risks but who, because of the drought, are unable to present bankable paper. Such loans would be secured by crop liens.

State Awaits U. S. Action.

Harry F. Byrd, chairman of the Virginia committee, said that no action would be taken by the State toward providing credit until the Federal Government had had time to act. He said that such credit had been extended before by the Government and that the loans had generally been repaid.

If, however, no Federal action is taken, Mr. Byrd said that the State committee contemplated formation of a credit corporation, financed by Virginia capital, to provide such relief.

Mr. Byrd said that a meeting of State drought chairmen would be held in Washington on November 14 and that the plans of the Federal Government were expected to be developed at that time.

Hatfield Answers Roosevelt Charge

(Associated Press.)

Senator Hatfield, Republican, of West Virginia, yesterday took issue with the statement of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York that the administration made no effort to halt the stock market boom last year, asserting that both the Federal Reserve Board and Secretary Mellon had cautioned the investing public.

The New York governor, he said, "must be acquainted with the fact that long before the collapse of security prices the Federal Reserve Board was immediately decrying the widespread speculation, and that as early as seven months before the crash Secretary Mellon, greatly concerned as to the misleading advice being given the public to invest their money in common stocks, made a public statement, widely published over the country, advising that that was a very good time to buy bonds and cautioning investors as to the prices of common stocks."

This was in sharp contrast, the senator added, with the action of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, who, he said, was "actually encouraging stock speculation."

Artificial Limb Maker Fails in Love; Ends Life

Special to The Washington Post.

Besides parents the young man leaves a sister and six brothers.

FAIRFAX RED CROSS DRIVE OPENS TODAY

4-H CLUB HEADS NAMED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The annual Fairfax County Red Cross drive officially opens today instead of November 11 as in previous years. The executive committee decided to make this change to meet the particular situation that exists in the counties surrounding Washington. A large portion of the residents of Fairfax County are Government employes or work in Washington, where drives are made to enroll the offices with 100 per cent Red Cross memberships. Because of this situation the Red Cross chapter in the county claims that it loses several hundred dollars in likely memberships each year.

The goal in the county has been set for at least 2,500 members and an especial effort will be made to enroll a larger number of the higher priced memberships in the $10, $25 and $50 class. Edward C. Gibbs, chairman of last year's drive, has been unanimously reelected chairman of this year's drive. Edmund H. Allen, chairman of the Fairfax County drought relief committee, and several members of the committee have promised their backing and cooperation. They state that they feel that the local Red Cross Chapter is the logical agency to handle the minor calls for relief which are becoming more numerous each day due to the drought and unemployment conditions.

In addition to the local relief work, the Fairfax County Red Cross Chapter contributes $1,000 per year toward the salary of Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamons, the county health nurse. The Falls Church branch of the Red Cross operates as a separate unit and will be under the supervision of Horace Brown during the roll call.

The subcommittee chairmen in charge of the roll call have been named as follows: Mrs. George R. Bready, Herndon; C. E. Gardner, Dranesville; Mrs. G. Ashley Money, Colvin Run; Mrs. Ben Middleton, Floris; Mrs. Ernest Harrison, Centerville; Miss Ruth Richards, Clifton Station; Mrs. M. M. Barnard, Lorton; Mrs. J. B. Davis, Burke; Mrs. U. S. Walters, McLean; Mrs. John Warnock Echols, Vienna; Mrs. James E. Nickells, Fairfax; Mrs. J. W. Cox, Mount Vernon; Mrs. D. F. Hannah, Falls Church district; Mrs. William Cleveland, Seminary; Mrs. C. The Lee-Jackson School and Community League will hold its annual supper this evening under the direction of Mrs. D. K. Parrish. The women of the community will assist her in the preparation and serving of the supper.

The Madison School at Falls Church has reorganized its Literary Society with Earl Hall, as president; Betty Hunt, vice president; Alonzo Allison, secretary, and Margaret Brown, publicity agent. The meeting will be held each Tuesday afternoon in the auditorium of the school.

The Falls Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hold its meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mary Munson at Veitch Summit.

Mrs. Herbert Marcey will be in charge of the rummage sale that is being held today in East Falls Church by the members of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Robert E. Lee School.

The Fairfax County drought relief committee will hold a meeting this evening in the county agent's rooms at Fairfax. Chairman Edmund H. Allen has asked that each member of the committee report as to the conditions now existing in their respective neighborhoods. Chairman Allen also states that the committee will consider ways and means to assist the Red Cross officials in enrolling at least 2,500 members this year, as it is recognized that the unusual conditions will mean many additional calls for relief.

The Mount Vernon Grange will hold a special meeting tomorrow evening in the Woodlawn Community Hall. H. M. Gaston, master of the Pioneer Grange, will act as installing officer when the third and fourth degrees will be conferred. A harvest supper will be served immediately following the degree work.

ALEXANDRIA MOVES TO CONSERVE WATER

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Still further measures to curtail the use of water were taken yesterday by the Alexandria Water Co., when the Southern Railway Co. was notified to cease using city water for the company's engines. The railway has been using a minimum of approximately 500,000 gallons a day. Since the order cutting off its supply, the railway company has been obtaining its water supply from Hunting Creek, using connections already existing.

The water company now has, it is understood, only 30 days' supply of water on reserve, and arrangements have been made with the Mutual Ice Co. for using the deep well at the ice plant, which will supply approximately 500,000 gallons a day, and the company has als oagreed to permit the use of another well at the foot of Cameron street, if it becomes necessary, thus adding another 500,000 gallons to hte daily supply.

These moves by the water company, it is explained, are only precautionary, and taken to guard against any possible shortage, if the drought continues. Garages were notified yesterday that they must discontinue washing cars, and householders are asked to refrain from using water for their lawns.

Fire Chief James M. Duncan, jr., notified the various fire companies yesterday that in cases of fires near the river the supply of water must be obtained from that source, and also requests that the firemen prevent unnecessary waste of water when using fire hydrants.

The entire paneling in a house at 201 South Lee street has been purchased by the City Arts Museum, of St. Louis, Mo., through Mrs. Charles R. Hooff, of Alexandria. Meyric Powers, director of the City Arts Museum, came to Alexandria, and after seeing the old paneling was so impressed that he at once entered negotiations for the purchase.

In addition to the paneling, which is of the Georgian period, Mr. Powers also purchased an old iron firebox in the room, which was manufactured by the Columbia Brass Works, of Washington. He also took three windows and three doors on the second floor of the house, which is 20 feet square.

The house was erected in 1755 by a man named Jenifer, of Maryland, and was one of the first houses erected in Alexandria. It later was purchased by the Hooe family, and still later became the property of the Hooff family, which held it for several generations, the first Hooff owner being Lawrence Hooff, who was one of the pallbearers at the funeral of George Washington.

For many years the building was occupied by the First National Bank of Alexandria, and since the bank moved the property has been converted into five dwelling houses.

The City Arts Museum will set up the entire room in its museum, and it will be designated as the "Hooff Room."

Plans for a Christmas seal sale were made Tuesday night at a meeting of the Antituberculosis Society, held in the George Mason Hotel, presided over by Mrs. Taylor Burke, who announced these committees to aid in the work: Miss Mary Lindsey, general chairman; Mrs. George T. Klipstein, treasurer of seal fund; Mrs. Louis Scott, posters, and Mrs. Thomas W. Robison, publicity.

Mrs. Burke, the chairman, with the assistance of the other members, will direct the mailing list. The society now maintains seven patients at the sanatorium, four colored and three white. During the year 1930 fourteen patients have been maintained at the State sanatorium.

Navy Day will be observed by the Kiwanis Club today at its weekly luncheon in the George Mason Hotel, although October 27 is the official date for the celebration. Dr. Robert South Barrett will be the principal speaker, and George E. Warfield is chairman of the committee on entertainment. Vocal selections by the "Navy's Sextet" will be an added attraction.

Acting Chief of Police Heber Thompson received a telegram yesterday from the chief of police of Newark, N. J., asking that the three boys arrested in an automobile here Tuesday be held for the New Jersey authorities, it being reported that the automobile in which they were arrested had been stolen. The boys agreed to return to New Jersey without requisition papers. They gave the names of Clayton Kiefrider, 17; Arthur March, 17, and Joseph Bakum, 19.

Dr. Edward A. Gorman was slightly burned and sustained a slight cut on his wrist while fighting a fire Tuesday night at his home, 321 Duke street, caused by the explosion of an oil burner. The damage to the house was slight.

The will of J. Armistead Eggborn dated May 28, 1930, has been admitted to probate in the circuit court The entire estate is left to his widow, Mrs. Anita R. Eggborn, who is named as executrix.

Members of the Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons have received a special invitation from Worshipful Master C. F. Swetnam to attend the regular communication of the lodge tonight, when the Rev. Z. Barney Phillips, of the Church of the Epiphany, Washington, and chaplain of the United States Senate, will deliver a message of great interest. All master Masons in good standing have also been invited to attend.

Mrs. Ruth Kuhn Dabney, 39 years old, widow of B. Taylor Dabney, died Tuesday night at the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank T. Cain, 127 Stewart avenue, Del Ray. She is survived by two sisters and a brother-in-law, of Del Ray; Mrs. Bertha Elizabeth Pierpoint, of Baltimore, and Chester Kuhn, of Alexandria.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at Grace Episcopal Church, by the Rev. Edgar Carpenter, rector, and burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Lucy L. Bane will be held at 9:30 o'clock this morning from Wheatley's funeral home, services being conducted by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Funeral services will be conducted today for Mrs. Maria Cooper Lumpkins, who died suddenly at her residence, 117 S street northwest, Washington, Monday, of heart trouble. The funeral will be conducted at Meade's Protestant Episcopal Church at 2 o'clock and interment will be in Bethel Cemetery.

Mrs. Lumpkins is survived by her husband, James Lumpkins; her daughter, Mrs. Bernice Lumpkins Brandon; three sisters, Mrs. Mabel Morris and Mrs. Martha Grobes, both of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Nanny Piper, who lives in South America, and one brother, Samuel Cooper, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

MR. TWITCHELL CALLS FOR BOLDER STEEL SHOPPING.

"Steel purchasers are more cautious than they have been for years. Extreme conservatism is holding back recovery in the industry."—Market letter.

"THAT'S the trouble," declared Elmer Twitchell today, as he exhibited the above paragraph. "America is too full of timid steel purchasers. Every fellow you ask to go out and buy a few steel rails or something gets so cautious that he's pathetic.

* * * *

"What the country needs today is some bold steel buyers. We need some courageous outspoken citizens who will come right out unhesitatingly and say, 'I'll take a ton of pig iron' without hemming and hawing all over the lot about the price. If you want to appreciate what real caution is just stop the next ten persons you meet and ask, 'How are you fixed for a little steel or scrap iron?' They will go into their shells so fast it will startle you."

* * * *

(Mr. Twitchell, readers may recall, is the originator of the Buy a Steel Rail movement to restore business prosperity. He launched a campaign several months ago to get every American to buy one rail or its equivalent in ingots, bar plates or line pipe.—Ed.)

* * * *

"IF WE want prosperity back we should all throw caution to the winds, phone the nearest steel mill and place an order," he continued. "I pointed out some time ago that if every American adult would buy one steel rail it would bring back a bull market almost overnight. The timidity is terrible. People get scared and fidgety the minute you suggest it to 'em. They immediately ask what they would do with a steel rail if they got it? Who cares what they do with it? Stick it out in the yard or shove it under the bed. The idea is to buy it and pay for it as a matter of duty."

* * * *

"What do you think makes people so cautious about buying steel?" Mr. Twitchell was asked.

"There are many reasons," Elmer replied. "One man I talked to was afraid to buy any because he said he thought that if he came home with a steel rail or a load of scrap iron he would have a hard time explaining things to the wife. Another said he always was cautious about buying steel because he felt foolish carrying it. Another man said he would not buy a single rail because the last time he bought one the wife always left it some place around the house where he would bark his shins on it."

* * * *

"However," concluded Elmer, "we must get rid of this steel buying timidity. My message to every citizen is: 'Be a bold steel purchaser! Don't hesitate. Don't delay, go to the telephone now and say in a clear, distinct voice, I wants steel rail.'"

COUNTY RULE IS HIT AT G. O. P. MEETING

BOND ISSUES RAPPED

About 125 voters attended the first Republican rally in Montgomery County, Md., at the Masonic Hall in Gaithersburg last night.

Walter W. Dawson, candidate for the State House of Delegates, was the first speaker. He charged that the county at present is subject to the dictatorship of one-man rule, and urged a Republican majority in the coming election as the solution of the situation.

Thomas M. Anderson, candidate for State senator, attacked proposed and current bond issues for public improvements as unsound. Wilson L. Townsend, who assisted in developing the county's financial system(also rapped the bond issues. He declared the present finance methods in Montgomery County are antiquated and that they are not fair to the taxpayers "because no one can understand the county treasurer's reports."

F. Barnard Welsh, candidate for State's atotrney, alleged that, the grand jury investigation of county conditions had been fruitless because "no one had been allowed to appear before the jury except Brooke Lee and his aides." He declared that E. Barrett Prettyman had given the grand jury the names of witnesses who could have revealed the true state of affairs, but that these witnesses had been ignored.

Referring to the action of Ward Savage in bolting the party by resigning as Republican election official, on the grounds that the Republican platform was not in accordance with the findings of the grand jury, Mr. Welsh declared that although the Republican party had lost one Republican, it had gained 5,000 Democrats in those members of the Progressive Democratic faction who have swung to the Republican banner.

College Will Open Celebration Today

Randolph-Macon to Mark 100th Anniversary; Finley to Speak.

Ashland, Va., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Randolph-Macon College, the oldest chartered Methodist college in the United States, tomorrow morning will begin a two-day celebration of its one-hundredth anniversary.

From several sections of the country noted educators are coming to take part in the program, which begins at the Walter Hines Page Libaray at 10:30 a. m. Among speakers for the morning session are Bishops John Moore and William B. Beachamp of the Southern Methodist Church and William Preston Few, President of Duke University. At a banquet in Richmond tomorrow night not only the centennial of the college will be celebrated, but the fifty-fourth year as president of Dr. Robert Emory Blackwell. Four hundred alumni are expected for the banquet, whose principal speaker will be Dean Gordon J. Laing of the University of Chicago.

Visitors for the celebration are to be welcomed Friday by Governor Pollard and President Blackwell, with the principal address of the day delivered by Dr. John H. Finley, of New York.

Kismet Council Will Honor Supreme Regent

The Kismet Council, Royal Arcanum, will hold a stag banquet in the Raleigh Hotel at 7 o'clock tomorrow night. Harold C. Knceppel, of New York, supreme regent of the Royal Arcanum, and members of his staff will be guests.

Ralph S. Brothers is chairman of the committee in charge, while the reception committee will be composed of grand council officers, headed by Grand Regent Charles A. Bell and Grand Secretary Stephen H. Talkes.

LEE DENIES EFFORT TO PICK BRIDGE SITE

9 PLAINTIFFS INVOLVED

Denying that he had brought any political influence to bear upon the Maryland State Roads Commission to bring about the selection of the Lincoln avenue site for the Kensington overhead bridge, Maj. E. Brooke Lee, speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates and Montgomery County Democratic leader, last night appeared before an examiner in chancery who is taking testimony on a motion for a rule to show cause why a temporary injunction barring action on the grade crossing elimination should not be dissolved.

The hearing was held in the office of Miss Vivian B. Simpson, one of a group occupied in the Rockvile Police Court Building by several leaders of the Progressive Democratic party. Leo Bender, Rockville attorney, acted as examiner in the absence of Kenneth Lyddane, who became ill while acting as examiner in chancery.

Maj. Lee flatly denied that he had brought any political pressure to bear and stated that the only pressure he knew had been exerted was by State Senator Eugene Jones, of Kensington, who, he said, told Howard Bruce, one of the members of the roads commission that to dely the selection of the site would aid him in furthering the cause of Senator MacIntosh, who at that time was being groomed to run against Gov. Ritchie.

Good Natured at Quiz.

Maj. Lee said that the members of the State Roads Commission had made three inspections of the seven possible sites and had agreed that from an engineering standpoint the Lincoln avenue site was the only feasible one. Maj. Lee denied that he had told one arker Weller to purchase a property at Aspen, Md., because "he was going to put Connecticut avenue through," although Maj. Lee admitted that he had advised Mr. Weller to purchase the property.

Maj. Lee stated that the flow of traffic on Georgia avenue could be depended upon to increase the value of the property and that the construction of Connecticut avenue would not have a monetary value to the property for from 10 0to 20 years.

The county leader appeared in good humor as he submitted to the questioning of counsel for the nine plaintiffs who are seeking to bar the construction of the bridge at the Lincoln avenue site. The plaintiff claimed that the decision of the State Roads Commission was arbitrary and that the due process of law was not followed. Since the time of the granting of the temporary injunction, the whole legal procedure has been carired out, Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, counsel for the roads body, stated in his petition for a dissolution of the temporary injunction.

Parker Weller Testifies.

Plaintiffs closed their case without introducing any testimony from engineers as to the proper location for the crossing.

Parker Weller, who followed Maj. Lee to the stand, said that
